Peer Slapped For Repeating Royal 'Slur'

(From Times News Services)

LONDON—An angry Briton slapped Lord Altrincham on the face tonight after he repeated his complaints against Queen Elizabeth's royal retainers in a nationwide television broadcast.

The outspoken peer was accosted when he left the headquarters of the Independent Television Authority in downtown London.

Lord Altrincham, whose complaints against royal "priggishness" fired off a nation-wide tempest, had just told a TV audience he had not meant to be "personal or beastly" in his criticism of the Queen.

But he said "the boss" should fire some of her advisors.

A crowd was waiting when Lord Altrincham left the studios and one man stepped up to him, aimed a forceful slap at his face and cried out: "That's for insulting our Queen."

Lord Altrincham, a husky 33, haughtily replied, "You can't even hit hard enough." He did not return the blow.

GRABBED BY POLICE

Two husky bobbies, meanwhile, grabbed the attacker and marched him off to Bow Street police station.

The man who delivered the slap was short and grey-headed and barely could reach up to the tall, lithe peer.

The outspoken peer refused to retract his criticisms of the Queen's court. But he denied that his royal criticism were "personal."

"They were not meant to be personal or beastly or anything like that," Altrincham said, "I have only the warmest personal feelings for the Queen as I should."

Altrincham said his criticisms instead were made "in hopes of bringing about a change in the atmosphere which surrounds the Queen and in the country's attitude toward the monarchy."

APOLOGY DEMANDED

In a television appearance immediately after Altrincham's, but over the nationalized British Broadcasting Company, the leading councillor of the city of Altrincham called on the peer to "apologize publicly" to the Queen.

"The Queen is the head of our family," Councillor Edward Chorlton said. "She should not be criticized in public by peer or commoner and a peer like Lord Altrincham should certainly know better."

Meanwhile, Lord Altrincham found a friend today in the League Against Cruel Sports—the people who side with the foxes against the aristocratic hunting set.

"We congratulate Lord Altringham on his outspoken and forthright comments on the tweedy nature of the mediocrities who surround the present Queen," said the league's executive committee.

'NOT SERIOUS'

Reported in good condition after surgery, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower was resting today in Walter Reed Hospital in Washington. The operation was for "a benign condition" and took two hours to perform.

British Set To Attack Rebels

MANAMA, Bahrein (Reuters)—British ground forces which have been moving into Oman now are ready to start counter - attacks against rebel tribesmen, an official communique announced today.

As the British troops made last-minute preparations at a newly prepared field base, representatives of the Arab League met in Cairo to formulate a uniform plan of aid for Oman in its "struggle against the British."

The league already has called on Communist China and 19 other Afro-Asian states, as well at its own members, to intervene in the fighting between the rebellious Iman of Oman and the pro-British sultan. The Imam's representative in Cairo Monday also asked the United States and Russia to stop the fighting.

Preparations for British ground moves followed numerous RAF strikes by rocket-firing jet fighters against large stone and mud forts controlled by the Iman.

BASE READY

An official British spokesman said Brig. J. A. R. Robertson, who is commanding ground forces in the Arabian peninsula state, has established a logistical field headquarters in Oman in readiness for operations against rebel tribesmen.

35,000 HP Plant For Power Board

By PETER MURRAY

Plans for a major new hydro development on the northern end of Vancouver Island were disclosed today by the B.C. Power Commission.

Cost of the project on the Kokish River is estimated at about $12,000,000.

Commission officials emphasized the development is still in the early planning stages.

An application for a water licence on the river now is before the provincial water rights branch.

A. F. Paget, water rights controller, said he is awaiting detailed plans from the commission and representations from any interested groups before dealing with the application.

The Kokish River flows into the eastern shore of the Island at Beaver Cove, five miles southeast of Alert Bay.

Plans call for an 86-mile, 138,000-volt transmission line to Campbell River to join with the commission's main system.

A rock-fill dam would be built half a mile downstream from the confluence of the east branch of the Kokish, which would raise the level of Bonanza and Ida Lakes.

A 5½-mile conduit, including a 600-foot-long tunnel, would carry the water to the 35,000-horsepower generating station about a mile from Beaver Cove.

The area is one of the most remote on the Island. There are no roads and the only access is by sea or air.

New Road Needed to Build Line

Unless the proposed Kelsey Bay-Port Hardy road is completed by that time, the Commission would have to put through its own road for construction of the transmission line.

Highways department engineers now are surveying the long-talked-of northern road link. Logging firms with big holdings in the area would pay part of the cost.

Logging is the main activity in the region. Northern Pulpwood Ltd. has an operation in the Kokish Valley and a base camp at Beaver Cove, and Canadian Forest Products has a shipping centre at Beaver Cove.

The new hydro project would supply low-cost power to Port Hardy and Beaver Cove, and likely increase the demand there.

Total area drained by the Kokish is 110 square miles. It is not considered to be a fish river and no problem is expected in this regard.

The Kokish runs almost parallel to the larger Nimpkish River but has a greater head than the Nimpkish.

Exact estimate of the cost has not been determined, but Commission officials said it would be at least as much as the Ash River development, which is expected to cost $12,000,000.

The Ash River project, first stage in the three-part Somass Valley development in the Alberni district, is of a similar size.

Cost of transmission lines is a major item in both projects.

The Kokish River plan is the Power Commission's latest in its efforts to keep pace with the rapidly-expanding demand for power on Vancouver Island.

The fact that it is going so far north indicates there are few suitable hydro sites left on the Island.

Besides the Somass Valley and Upper Campbell developments now underway, the Commission is investigating the possibility of harnessing the Homathko River on the mainland and bringing the power across to the Island.

Open Sky Plan For All Bases Asked by Reds

LONDON (UP)—The Soviet Union asked today why the Western disarmament proposal for open skies inspection did not include American and NATO bases in North Africa, the Near East, Turkey and Pakistan.

The question was the first official Russian reaction to the plan advanced last week at the five-power disarmament conference here by U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

It was put before today's session of the conference by Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin as one of three formal questions in which he sought further information about the West's plan.

Dulles set forth the Western proposal last Friday. He offered to open all the United States and most of Western Europe to air and ground inspection in exchange for similar rights in the entire Soviet Union.

The first proposal was to open all the territory of North America north of the Mexican border to air and ground inspection in return for similar inspection of all of the Soviet Union.

Should this proposal be rejected, the Western powers offered similar inspection of an Arctic zone to include all of the Soviet Union, Canada, Alaska, Denmark and Norway north of the Arctic circle, and specified portions of the United States and the Soviet Union, as well as the Kamchatka Peninsula, the Aleutians and Kuriles Islands.

If the Soviet Union accepts either of these zones, a zone of inspection in Europe will be offered. This would extend southward from the Arctic circle.

Mine Union Asks Retaliation Against U.S. Metal Tarrif Boost

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A plea to the Canadian government to stockpile lead, zinc and copper and to consider retaliatory action against the United States if the American Congress approves higher tariffs against base metals, was made Tuesday to the Canadian government by a delegation from the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

A brief was submitted to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Hon. Gordon Churchill, minister of trade and commerce; Hon. Davie Fulton, justice minister, and Hon Leon Balcer, solicitor-general, by the executive of the union.

The union said unemployment was already mounting in the base-metal industry as a result of falling world prices. Five base metal producers had already shut down and the largest, the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of British Columbia, was cutting down production.

To provide immediate relief the union officers asked the government to establish support prices and to stockpile lead, zinc and copper.

Nels Thibault, Sudbury, president; Harvey Murphy, Vancouver, vice-president; William Kennedy, Winnipeg, national vice-president, and W. Longridge, Toronto, secretary treasurer, headed the delegation.

In their brief the union officers contended that the new sliding scale of tariffs on lead and zinc proposed to the U.S. Congress by President Eisenhower's administration would raise duties three times as high as those now in effect and intensify the instability of an already unstable industry.

"Accordingly the union urges the government of Canada to consider taking retaliatory action," the brief declared.

Messrs. Thibault and Murphy said they received a good hearing from the cabinet and that the cabinet ministers promised that the government would give early consideration to the problems outlined in the brief.

The submission said: "The U.S. is dependent not only on Canadian lead and zinc which they now propose as far as possible to exclude, but it is even more dependent on Canadian nickel, Canadian iron ore, Canadian asbestos and Canadian pulp and paper.

"Let the U.S. government be told that if the higher tariffs proposed against lead and zinc are put into effect, Canada for its part will tax and place restrictions on the export to the U.S. of nickel, iron ore, asbestos and pulp and paper," the brief said.

French Troops Ambushed By Algerians

ALGIERS (Reuters)—French troops backed by planes and artillery today battled with a large Algerian rebel band that killed 21 soldiers in an ambush in the rugged Bou Zegba mountains.

Reports reaching here said 21 other French soldiers were missing and 20 wounded in the ambush. Sixteen rebels were reported killed.

Fires started by shells and bombs could be seen in Algiers, 44 miles away from the battle area.

Five French generals commanded the operation. The rebels were reported armed with mortars, bazookas and machine-guns.

According to reports, a unit of French soldiers mistook the rebels—dressed in khaki uniforms and steel helmets—for their own and were shot down at point-blank range.

Gov't Appointments Expected Wednesday

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he will announce appointments of some new cabinet members and parliamentary assistants Wednesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker, talking to a reporter, declined to say how many in each category would be named.

He would say only that there would be "some" of each.

There now are five cabinet vacancies, and Mr. Diefenbaker has 16 ministers besides himself. He holds temporarily the external affairs portfolio.

The ministerial vacancies are agriculture, defence production, health and welfare, citizenship and immigration, and mines and technical surveys.

It is expected one of the new appointments will be to the agriculture portfolio, now held by Resources Minister Harkness.

The parliamentary assistants will be the first appointed by Mr. Diefenbaker since his government took office June 21.

The preceding Liberal government had up to about 15 assistants at various times.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he expected the appointments would be made public about noon Wednesday.

Anti A-Bomb Demonstrators Held in U.S.

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) — Eleven demonstrators against atomic tests were arrested today as they attempted to enter the Nevada test site.

There was no violence as Atomic Energy Commission guards took the demonstrators into custody at the main gate of Camp Mercury, headquarters for the U.S. nuclear testing program.

The demonstrators are members of the committee for non-violent action against nuclear weapons. The group's membership comes from pacific organizations throughout the country.

The first group of three which started through the gate was led by Lawrence Scott, 48, ordained Baptist minister, formerly of Chicago and Kansas City.

AEC guards arrested them when they advanced two feet inside the gate.

The arrests were made under the state's trespass law.

Bennett Rejects Debate Challenge On Debt, BCHIS

Premier Bennett has declined an invitation by Erhart Regier, CCF MP for Burnaby-Coquitlam, to debate British Columbia's debt picture and hospital insurance.

Mr. Regier issued the challenge after the premier sent out a challenge of his own to the editors of a Vancouver newspaper. (The newspaper suggested Mr. Bennett write a letter instead).

To Mr. Regier's invitation the premier said Monday:

"We have lots of debates on these subjects in the proper place—the legislature — where the CCF is represented."

Lou Boudreau Fired

CHICAGO (AP) — Lou Boudreau was replaced today as manager of Kansas City Athletics by Harry Craft, a coach with the American League club.

Bomb Blast in Store Marks Cuban Unrest

HAVANA, Cuba (UP) — A bomb exploded in a Woolworth store in the heart of Havana today, willing one person and injuring eight others. Some of the injured were reported in serious condition.

The rest of the city generally was quiet. There was no sign of a predicted general strike, since attempts to start a walkout apparently had failed.

In Santiago, a stronghold of rebel sympathizers, Americans who work there were sending their wives and children to safer places. It was reported that mounting tension in the capital city of Oriente Province might explode into large-scale violence at any time.

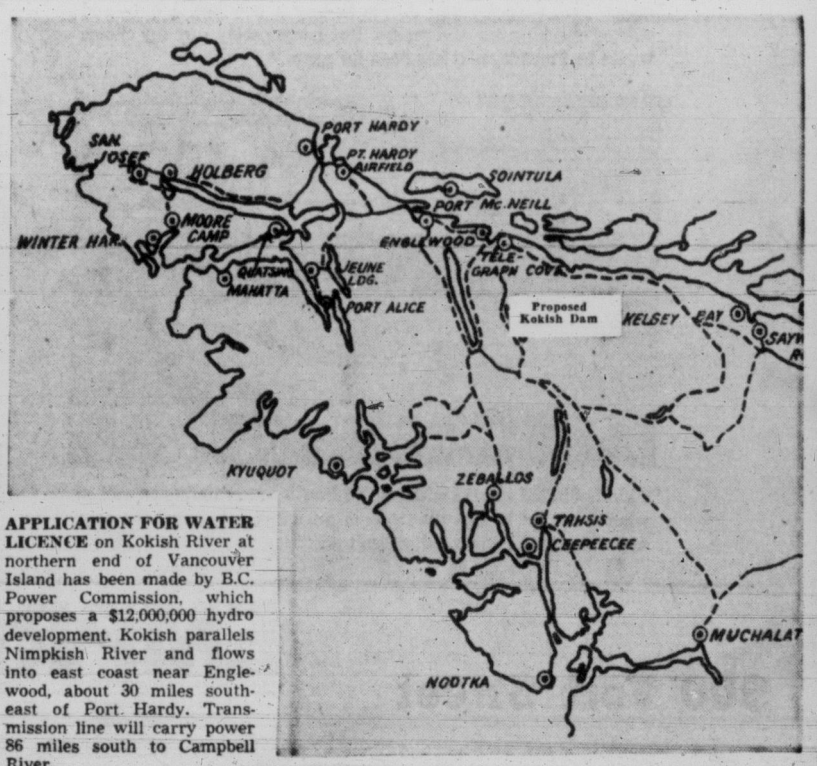
It was in Santiago that a demonstration against President Fulgencio Batista last Wednesday caused some friction in Cuban-American affairs.

The demonstration was staged during a visit to that city by U.S. Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith. Santiago police acted forcefully to crush the opposition, and Smith criticized the police brutality.

Cuban critics promptly condemned Smith for his comments, but U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gave the Ambassador a vote of confidence in Washington today.

Dulles told his news conference that Smith's remarks may have been technically unwarranted. But Dulles said he felt the Ambassador's comments were a very human reaction, and he hoped the Cuban government would understand them in their proper frame of reference.

Ten to 15 wives of U.S. employees of the Texas company's 14-million-dollar refinery in Santiago have left this troubled provincial capital in the past few days. Others are expected to leave soon.



APPLICATION FOR WATER LICENCE on Kokish River at northern end of Vancouver Island has been made by B.C. Power Commission, which proposes a $12,000,000 hydro development. Kokish parallels Nimpkish River and flows into east coast near Englewood, about 30 miles southeast of Port Hardy. Transmission line will carry power 86 miles south to Campbell River.

Bulganin Denies Illness Rumors

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Bulganin scotched any rumors about his health Monday night by his robust appearance at a World Youth Festival reception here.

Bulganin appeared in fine fettle as he raised several glasses of wine during toasts 3,000 delegates. Speculation about his health had followed his withdrawal from the top-level Soviet delegation going to East Germany Wednesday.

Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev was mobbed at the dinner by autograph hunters who pushed any piece of paper handy—including cheque books and bus tickets—for him to sign. The enthusiastic crowds shouted "duzba" friendship as they grabbed him around the neck.

Khrushchev was accompanied by Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, Defence Minister Georgi Zhukov and other members of the praesidium.

Many western ambassadors, including those of the United States, Britain, France and Italy, declined to come to the reception. They said their governments were not associated with the festival aims.

Speculation has been rife in the West that Bulganin may be ousted as premier.

Many experts believe Bulganin may have lost out in the big shakeup which brought the dismissals of Georgi Malenkov, Vyacheslav Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich from the party central committee last month. It was thought that he first sided with the Molotov faction but switched when he saw Khrushchev had the winning votes.

In Cario Monday, the representative of the Iman of Oman, fighting a pro-British sultan in a tribal war, went to the Soviet Embassy to deliver a message asking Russian aid to stop the fighting in the Arabian peninsula state. "It is better to change the name of the recipient from Marshal Bulganin to President Klimenti Voroshilov," the embassy said.

Observers think that if Bulganin does fall it will not affect Soviet policy-making, since he was largely a figure-head premier.

WHITE HOUSE TO BE HOME FOR QUEEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will stay at the White House during their Washington visit in October.

There had been some doubt whether the Royal Couple would be guests in the White House or in nearby Blair House, where distinguished foreign guests usually are housed.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty announced the decision today with the explanation that President and Mrs. Eisenhower are personal friends of the Queen and her husband and would like to have them in the White House where there will be an opportunity for informal chats.

Appointment of 685 teachers, 34 more than taught here last year, has been almost completed by Greater Victoria School Board it was announced today. There were 135 new appointments. The district student body is expected to number over 19,000 when school starts September 3. This is 1,000 more than were registered last year. Late registrations will be accepted at district schools later this month. Details will be announced.

Liquor Store Vote Opposed By Norris

It is up to the Liquor Control Board to decide whether or not Oak Bay can have a liquor store outlet, Reeve Fred Norris told his council Monday.

He was commenting on a suggestion by Councillor Fred Hawes that a referendum on the subject be taken among residents. Whether the vote was "yes" or "no", would have little bearing on the government board's decision, said the reeve.

The matter came up at council before a letter from LCB chairman Col. Donald McGugan was received and filed.

The letter was in answer to a council query asking feasibility of establishing the store, and enclosed signatures of approval from some 180 citizens.

The LCB reply was inconclusive, council agreed.

Reeve Norris said "To let him get away with an answer like that is balderdash."

Council also approved contract award for construction of a new municipal hall on the site of the old Oak Bay High School to Pollard Construction Co. for a low bid of $184,481 of the five tenders received.

HEALTH BILLS FOR REFUGEES PILING UP

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Health bills are piling up here as a result of Canada's generous open-door immigration policy for Hungarian refugees when the strict health requirements of the Immigration Act were waived.

Health authorities here today said about 10 per cent of the 33,000 refugee immigrants are now hospitalized or under active treatment for two diseases, tuberculosis and syphillis.

The two diseases bar immigrants from coming to Canada under normal conditions, but the barriers were lifted when Canada swung wide its doors to admit Hungarians after Communist Russia moved into that country.

The daily hospitalization and medical costs are now well over $25,000. The bills go to the National Health and Welfare Department.

Health authorities reported the rate of active TB cases among the immigrants is .5 per cent, or over. The rate for active syphillis cases is approximately the same.

U.S. Cyprus Aid Asked by Britain

LONDON (UP) — Britain sought United States support for a solution of the explosive Cyprus issue during last week's visit of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles but Dulles was cool to the idea, official sources disclosed today.

The Foreign Office also said it had been "in diplomatic contact" with both Greece and Turkey over the possibility of direct negotiations on the future of the troubled Mediterranean island.

The new moves followed long deliberations by the British cabinet in which Cyprus Governor Sir John Harding took part.

The Foreign Office denied Athens reports that London has actually sent out invitations to Greece and Turkey to a full-dress conference. The present efforts are described as preliminary soundings.

Present feelers are for a round table conference among Britain, Greece and Turkey—the chief parties in the dispute over the island.

But there is hesitation stemming from the dismal experience of the tripartite Cyprus conference convened in London in the summer of 1955 by then Premier Sir Anthony Eden which ended in total failure and in even sharper antagonism between Greece and Turkey.

Britain as well as the other powers want to avoid a repetition of this experience. The plan now is to hold, if possible, a new conference in which the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be represented as an observer.

NATO has agreed to mediate in the dispute, and NATO Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium is known to be ready to accept such a mandate.

Britain would also want the United States to identify itself with such a move by sending an observer to the projected meeting.

Liz Taylor Has Daughter

NEW YORK (UP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, wife of producer Michael Todd, had a girl by caesarian section today, a spokesman at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital said. The baby had not been expected until Oct. 15.

Both Mrs. Todd and the four-pound, 14-ounce baby are doing well, the hospital said.

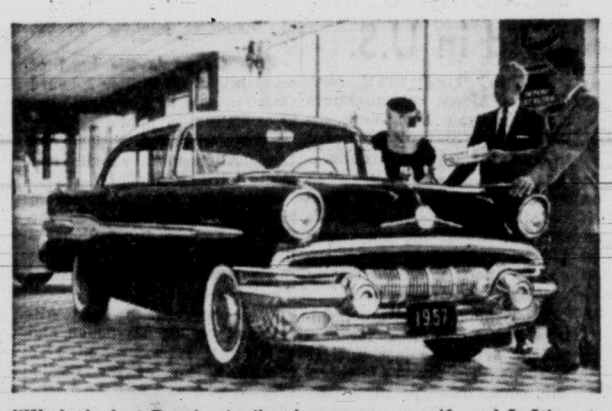
A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

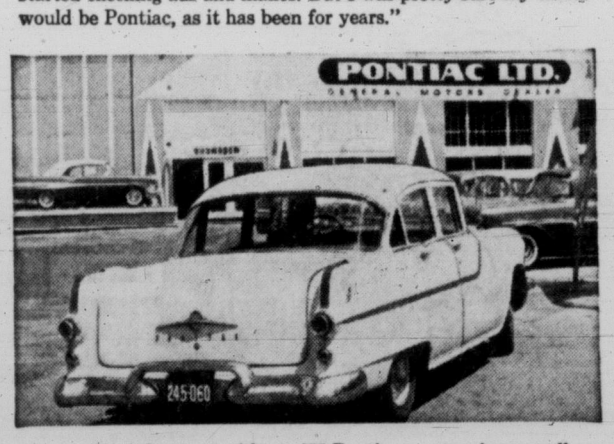
I bought Pontiac again!

"Seems like, suddenly you decide to buy a new car. I did—and started checking ads and makes. But I was pretty sure my choice would be Pontiac, as it has been for years."



"We looked at Pontiac in the showroom, my wife and I. It's got 'em all beat by miles for looks and style. And Marg—that's my wife—was wild about the new interiors."

"The dealer and I went for a Demonstration Drive. That was my first time behind a '57 Pontiac's wheel—and what an experience. Slickest, smoothest car on any road—and it convinced me!"



"I kind of hated to part with my '55 Pontiac . . . running as well as when I bought it. But the trade-in price certainly eased the pain of parting. Still looks good, doesn't it?"

"And here are the neighbours admiring our new Pontiac. And after the envious glances and pointed remarks I wouldn't be surprised to see them blossom out in a new Pontiac, too!

Violent Deaths Over Weekend Totalled 91

Hot weather and the civic holiday combined to raise Canada's accidental death toll to 91 during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey to midnight local time Monday showed.

Traffic accidents accounted for 52 lives. 31 were drowned and eight met death in other mishaps. The Canadian highway safety conference last week predicted a total of 50 traffic deaths.

The survey started at 6 p.m. local time Friday. Monday was a civic holiday in Ontario and some other communities throughout the country.

Ontario led the provinces with 36 deaths—21 on the highways, 10 drownings and five miscellaneous.

Quebec followed with 31—20 traffic and 11 drownings. Alberta, which also observed the holiday, reported seven. Saskatchewan five, British Columbia and Nova Scoita four each and New Brunswick and Manitoba two each. Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland reported no fatalities.

In Quebec a mother and three children were drowned at Thetford Mines when they were swept by floods from the top of their automobile where they had been trapped in a heavy rainstorm.

'Bomb' on Railway Tracks Causes Scare, Proves Hoax

TEMPSFORD, England (UP)—Police blamed a practical joker today for a time-bomb scare which tied up railroad traffic on the main London-Edinburgh line for two hours Monday.

The Price of Poultry

IN TERMS OF TRADE AND money the Canadian Government's embargo on American poultry is a relatively small thing. As an indication of Conservative policy it may turn out to be a very big thing.

If the poultrymen are to be protected absolutely from American competition in order to keep their prices as high as possible, other branches of agriculture have the right to claim, and undoubtedly will claim, the same sort of protection.

Already, indeed, cheese producers and strawberry growers have received it. In a desperate, last-minute effort to catch the farm vote, the former Liberal Government prohibited cheddar cheese imports, just before the election, and placed a fixed valuation on American strawberries for tariff purposes. Also, it agreed to provide price supports for poultry.

Once the Government agrees to support poultry prices at a minimum figure, higher than the competitive market price, then it is bound, of course, to exclude imports.

If it did not, American producers would send large quantities of poultry into Canada in order to secure the high, government-guaranteed price. Then the Canadian taxpayers would find themselves supporting the prices and swelling the income of American farmers.

As price supports are designed solely to help the Canadian farmers, it follows that imports must be excluded, as they have been and will continue to be, at least until the present large stocks of Canadian poultry are consumed.

This is doubtless only the beginning of measures to protect our mixed farming industry. The Diefenbaker Government is pledged to such a policy and will feel bound to enforce it one way or another. And apart from the economics of this process, the Government will find, in politics, much justification for its measures in the pre-election manoeuvres of its predecessors.

The tariff is a large, complex subject on which Canadians have always differed and which has often been the fulcrum of our politics.

If the ordinary man cannot understand the intricacies of the tariff law, he should be able to understand that he is paying for protecting the farm industry or any other industry. He must pay in higher prices than he could secure if there were no customs duties.

For instance he must now pay as a consumer higher prices for poultry than his American neighbor a few miles away. On top of that, where the Government supports a farm price, he must pay again as a taxpayer the cost of subsidizing the producer.

For old, historic and valid national reasons Canada protects a large part of its economy by tariffs. Sir John A. Macdonald's National Policy has been altered in detail, never in principle.

But because it is necessary to protect our economy in general, it does not follow that every industry, however inefficient and non-competitive, should be protected at the expense of the consumer.

The economic problem of government is, and always has been, to decide how much protection should be allowed and where in the general interest of the nation, but usually the tariff is governed not so much by economic considerations as by local political pressures.

If we are now about to provide broad new protection for farmers, and thus affect every household purse in the nation, the Government is bound to consider the economics, as assuredly it will have to consider the politics, of agriculture in its various branches.

The poultry industry is a good example. As a turkey producer wrote on this page the other day, his small flock cannot compete in cost with the huge flocks of the United States. Undoubtedly that is so and it should persuade the Government to consider some means of making our farm industry more competitive in the interests of producer and consumer alike.

The basic flaw in much of our mixed agriculture is the small, inefficient farm unit which, unable to provide a good living for the farmer, naturally prompts him to demand tariff protection, as already assured to most manufacturers.

A long-term re-organization of agriculture in larger units, perhaps with state assistance, is obviously required and we hope that Senator C. G. Power's new Senate committee on land use is considering it.

The PM and His House

TWO LITTLE ITEMS OF NEWS touch, in a friendly way, the personal affairs of Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The Ottawa Journal notes regretfully that at a recent press conference Mr. Diefenbaker was not treated by all correspondents with proper respect.

"Those whom he meets," says The Journal, "should not take advantage of Mr. Diefenbaker's friendliness and approachability. They are dealing not with Mr. John Diefenbaker, the Prince Albert lawyer, but with the Queen's First Minister in Canada, the head of our Government, and a decent feeling for the dignity of his office demands that he be addressed as Mr. Prime Minister, as Mr. Diefenbaker, or as Sir."

This sharp lecture in manners, we hope, will not be lost on the Ottawa press corps. But probably it is difficult for the old hands, who have always called Mr. Diefenbaker "John", to get used to his new status. And we doubt that this most democratic of statesmen will be as worried as The Journal about his dignity. It is not as fragile as all that.

The Financial Post notes a more practical matter.

As it says, the Government supplies a fine residence on Sussex Street to the Prime Minister and offers it free of charge. Mr. St. Laurent, however, insisted on paying $5,000 a year in rent.

The former Government, we think, was mistaken in accepting this rent but could hardly refuse the money from its own leader. Poorer men than Mr. St. Laurent may be unable to afford his generous payment but may be embarrassed by his precedent.

Mr. Diefenbaker, we hope, will not feel bound by it. In his long life of politics he had the talent but not the time to make himself rich and the salary of his office, as compared to its inevitable costs, is by no means large. If no more rent is paid on No. 24 Sussex Street, the public, we think, will approve.

Ike's Secondary Question

TOP POLITICAL COLUMNISTS in the United States are still discussing President Eisenhower's confession that he was hard put to it to answer the case made by Marshal Zukov in 1945 for idealistic communism.

This is the old and familiar argument on definitions. According to Marshal Zukov the individual exists for the state and performs unselfishly for the state. According to one definition of democracy the state exists for the individual and performs for the individual's benefit.

The columnists have no difficulty in pointing out the superiority of democracy. Nor does any of them think that the President has any doubt on that score. The difficulty, if there is one, seems to be in terms of argument only.

But the President could raise a very neat, if restricted, point. During recent months he has tried to enlist outstanding men for several of the highest departmental offices the state in the U.S. can offer. These are positions which become inseparably identified with the state. And time after time the President's invitation to serve has been declined.

This does not impinge too greatly on the theory of democracy. But it does pose an interesting secondary question: If, in democracy, the state serves the individual, how does it fulfil that function if individuals will not serve the state?

The Dropsical Giants

ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL figures issued by the Government of the United States, Tokyo is now the largest city in the world. It contains 8,471,637 people, as compared with 8,239,910 in metropolitan London and 7,771,509 in New York.

Of course some patriotic Londoners and New Yorkers will instantly protest that these figures are unfair. They do not include the huge agglomerations of people who live just outside the municipal limits of London and New York.

If the whole populations of the largest British and American cities are considered they may still be the champions, the dropsical, heavyweight champions.

But why any nation should be proud of crowding millions of human beings into gigantic, unmanageable and uneconomic metropolitan ant hills, we don't quite know. The super-city is not entitled to pride. It deserves only sympathy.

LOOSE ENDS — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Boy in the Pot

THE most significant news story of the year recently appeared in this paper, though the public may not have regarded it as such. Somewhere in the United States, I forget just where, a woman was reported as visiting a doctor in order to have an old-fashioned enamel receptable removed from the head of her young son. The boy had thrust has cranium into this pot and could not remove it. This, I say, was a significant news story not because it was new but because it was old.

Hutchison

Every year at this season the story reappears with regularity. No summer passes in America without some boy, somewhere, imprisoning his cranium in an iron pot. And no summer passes without the news editors, who know news when they see it, playing up this story where it belongs, on the front page.

It is not news, as Dana might have said, when boy seizes pot. It is news when pot seizes boy.

BUT the importance of this event goes far deeper than mere considerations of news value. It goes even deeper than fact; for in physical fact, of course (with great deference to the news service and news editors) there was no boy in the pot.

The thing didn't happen, in a factual sense, but it was far truer than fact. It did not concern a particular boy and a particular pot; it concerned our whole North American civilization. And it indicated the final truth and the tragedy of our life.

Let us go into this rather deeply.

NOW, I claim to know nothing about anything else, but I am something of a scholar in the field of boys and pots. I have been studying this recurrent phenomenon for the past 37 years and it has failed to recur only once in this period.

At first, I confess, the importance of the annual news story escaped me. I was too young to grasp its true meaning.

Thus, pursuing the pot story only as a matter of news and history, I took the trouble to track down the first report from southern Ontario more than three decades ago. Diligent research in the Niagara country soon convinced me that the story was really a ghost story, that the boy reported with pot on head was a phantom from Canada's early days, a disembodied survivor of the United Empire Loyalists migration and, from the minute descriptions in the newspapers I was even able to identify the original owners of the pot.

IT was made of porcelain, not metal, in those primitive times and ornamented with a splendid pattern of roses, violets and recumbent cupids—a charming heirloom of the sort much sought after by modern tourists and antique collectors from the American Middle West.

You can sometimes find these museum pieces in the antique stores of the Niagara country even today and one of them, displayed there last autumn, somewhat cracked but still saleable, hence the modern term of denigration "crackpot", was recommended to me as the former property of General Isaac Brock, the victor of Queenston Heights.

FURTHER research showed me that the potted boy from Niagara was not a ghost in the ordinary meaning of the word. He was a portent. And he was immortal.

Here we enter a region of psychology as difficult for the layman to follow as the current regions of economics which so closely resemble the cracked pot.

There is no space to explain either the potted boy or the potted social system in detail, but the direct connection between the two should not be beyond the reader's grasp.

Put simply, in layman's terms, the imprisoned boy, though physically unreal, represents, embodies and proclaims for all to see the imprisonment of the human species in the dark dungeon of this century.

EVERY now and then, about once a year, and especially in the summer holiday season, when the human species yearns for escape, that boy, that myth, that tragic manifestation materializes like a cry of agony from the North American soul.

In the midst of prosperity, in the throes of a boom, from a house filled with gadgets, from an automobile with fish-tail fenders, from every apparent assurance of comfort, ease, and well being, the North American rebels in despair and frustration.

Society realizes that all its modern inventions have not really set it free but have only imprisoned its spirit. It feels an iron pot tightly fastened and immovable on its head and this universal potsense bursts the bounds of physics, explodes in psychic desperation and issues in the annual manifestation.

The front pages do not record a boy and a pot; they record the tragedy of our kind. In the news story the boy is taken by his mother to a doctor or, more wisely, to a plumber, and the obstacle is removed with a hackshaw. Alas, there is no hacksaw for the spirit. There is no doctor or plumber wise enough to remove the psychic pot.

Fine Birds

As an old pigeon fancier and racer of over 60 years ago, I have been following with great interest the reports in the press and over radio of the performance of two racing pigeons owned by Mr. Wolley and Mr. Owens, who flew 500 and 600 miles.

First I want to congratulate both the gentlemen for the great performances of their birds, especially Mr. Wolley for being the first to break the 500-mile record by clocking in a bird the same day of liberation in Victoria.

But in Nanaimo several fanciers have at several times clocked in birds from Ashland, Ore., 500 miles in 12 hours. Victoria birds have flown from the same place in a little over 10 hours, but our distance is only 435.

In the Times of Tuesday, July 30, a statement is made, "The flight marks the first time pigeons have attempted a 600-mile journey. They are all yearlings and two-year-olds." That is not true as regards the distances flown. I don't think Mr. Owens would intentionally make a misstatement, but if he had investigated he would have discovered that birds have flown to Victoria from Reading, Calif., also Oakland, Calif. Oakland is over 720 miles away. Eight birds were entered, one bird arrived home on the sixth day, the other on the seventh day. I am not quite sure but I think Joe Denoni and myself are the ony two charter members of the old Victoria Homing Society, later changed to Victoria and District Racing Pigeon Club. I am in a position to give you facts and figures over 40 years of pigeon racing in Victoria.

Our old 500-mile race point used to be Sissons, Calif., later changed to Mount Shasta, Calif. Although not flying it the day of liberation, we have had great success from Mt. Shasta.

Some of our best times were 7.30 next morning, 9 a.m. and 8.20 a.m. next day.

Very seldom did we get shut out.

Ludwig Feuerbach

A work first published in German in 1841 and long out of print has now been republished in English by Harpers of New York. It is entitled "The Essence of Christianity," by Ludwig Feuerbach, translated from the German by the famed George Eliot.

This is a book that greatly influenced such sharp thinkers as Thomas Henry Huxley, John Stuart Mill, Sigmund Freud, John Dewey, Robert G. Ingersoll, Erich Fromm and a host of others.

Feuerbach states his principal aim in writing the book is "to change the friends of God into friends of man, believers into thinkers, worshippers into workers, candidates for the other world into students of this world, Christians, who on their own confession are half animal and half angel, into men—whole men."

He presents many definitions of God, a typical one being "God is the moral nature of man posited as the absolute being." "Thus man is the god-maker, and God has no objective existence."

But says he "It does not follow that goodness, justice, and wisdom are illusions just because the existence of God is an illusion, nor would these have a claim on us merely because he existed. . . . Man is to be loved for man's sake. Man is an object of love because he is an end to himself, because he is a rational and loving being. This is the moral law of the species—the law of intelligence."

The book is highly recommended to all intelligent adults, and most particularly to open-minded Christians.

Circle Traffic

Before spending any further money on the so-called "Roundabout" at Hillside, Government, Douglas, etc., it would be a very sensible thing to make a study of the similar "traffic circle" on Decarie Boulevard in Montreal.

There the physical conditions are almost identical with those of the Victoria unit; same number of streets converging onto the circle, including the main artery to the Dorval Airport and that is really heavy traffic.

The writer has had occasion to watch the flow of traffic through the Montreal "Circle" as well as drive through it on many occasions and can assure you that with the heavy traffic to and from the Laurentians as well as that between Montreal and the airport, not to mention the flow to and from the other arteries the "Circle" functions efficiently at all hours of the day and gives the utmost satisfaction.

Outside of some brainless, moronic punks who should not be permitted to drive anything larger than a kiddy-car the City of Victoria has no real traffic problem to speak of and, with a few adjustments, the present maligned Victoria Roundabout would serve for many years to come.

Proud Delinquency?

As citizens we are faced with a double responsibility, personal and impersonal—what we do with our own lives and what we do with our fellow man's? The double responsibilty is an equal one. We function through all eyes!

If we are given a car to drive, the law comes into play. And where is the law? In the police who have the duty of enforcing it? In ourselves who have the duty of abiding by it? The law is resident in all.

The mature citizen enforces the law within himself and of his own free will. The immature awaits police action outside of himself and of the will of another. Responsibility and irresponsibility dramatized!

Today's question therefore is: Which shall it be, conscience in the driver's seat or proud delinquency?

FROM WASHINGTON — By STEWART ALSOP

Drama in the Senate

THERE are times—they are very rare—when a scene worth remembering, a moment of real drama and meaning, occurs on the Senate floor. There was such a moment last week, when the Senate, in the small hours of the morning, passed the jury trial amendment to the Civil Rights bill — a vote which will surely affect the political balance of power for a long time to come.

Alsop

("The original bill provided for action by the federal Attorney-General to seek court injunctions against anybody he felt was violating or might violate another person's rights, including voting rights. The amendment specifies that the accused should have the right to jury trial before the injunction could be imposed.)

It was a scene of a sort that occurs only once or twice in a decade—every fit senator on the floor, and the galleries choked with spectators, as the hands of the big Senate clock crept on past midnight. All present, spectators and senators alike, were caught up in the excitement of the great Senate game.

A man's pulse can be quickened, after all, by a close contest at chess, or on the golf course. But there is nothing quite like the Senate game, in which great issues can be decided by a sudden parliamentary manoeuvre, or a quick, sure sensing of the Senate mood.

Personal Contest

The game that was played out on the Senate floor last week was, moreover, a peculiarly personal contest. There were many speakers, but the floor was wholly dominated by two big men, stationed cheek by jowl on the centre aisle—big, chunky, earnest Minority Leader William Knowland, and lanky Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, the shrewdest Congressional leader of this generation.

They made a fascinating contract. Knowland sat stolidly, like a great cornered bull, his enormous forehead furrowed in parallel wrinkles, foretasting defeat.

Johnson sat back easily, his long legs negligently crossed, when he was not moving restlessly about. Once, when Everett Dirkson of Illinois, rose to support Knowland with his special brand of empty grandiloquence" ("I have been thinking much of Runnymede") Johnson half-yawned, and lazily scratched his chest, in a magnificent gesture of casual confidence.

Only a few hours before, Knowland thought he had won the game. He had the votes to beat off the crucial amendment, and everybody knew it. But Knowland, like an over-anxious golf player on the last hole of a close match, began to press too hard.

By insisting on twelve-hour sessions, and by other means, he brought pressure on the Senate for a quick vote. The Senate, a leisurely body, does not like being subjected to pressure.

Johnson, the master player of the Senate game, sniffed the Senate air, and played his hole card—a further amendment carefully tailored to attract the last of the waverers.

In the atmosphere of irritation created by Knowland's pressure, this was enough. Johnson soon knew that he, and not Knowland, had the votes. With brilliant timing, Johnson turned the tables on Knowland, when he rose to support Knowland's own motion for limited debate and an immediate vote. Knowland was checkmated, and there was nothing he could do.

Apparent Triumph

Johnson had predicted fifty votes for the jury trial amendment. He got fifty-one. On an issue which has divided his party as no other issue, he held all but nine Democrats, while Knowland lost twelve Republicans. The vote was a tribute to an authentic legislative genius, and for Johnson a moment of supreme triumph.

And yet, how solid was the triumph? Who really won?

Johnson won the great Senate game hands down. Yet in terms of national politics, it seems quite possible that Johnson, in winning, lost, and Knowland, in losing, won.

For those who become caught up in the excitement of the Senate game, it is easy to forget what the civil rights fight is all about. In hard political terms, the civil rights fight is all about the Negro vote in the key northern industrial states, where that vote can be absolutely decisive.

Negro voters interest themselves no more than white voters in the subtleties of parliamentary manoeuver, or the complex legal and moral issues involved in the fury trial amendment.

And yet, as a result of Lyndon Johnson's triumph, they have been treated to a spectacle which they are likely to interpret in only one way—the spectacle of the great bulk of the Senate Democrats siding with the bitter-end southerners, while a heavy majority of Republicans went down to defeat against them.

Kiss of Death?

The Negro vote is the swing vote in a whole series of big states—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, California, to name a few. That is why one cynical observer remarked as the vote was counted, "the Democrats may elect a president again in 1980—but not before," and that could be the real meaning of the midnight scene on the Senate floor last week, and the real measure of Johnson's triumph and Knowland's defeat.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

The 'Thin Man' and Leisure

WILLIAM Powell, 65, suave and sophisticated, has shaved off his whitening moustache and come to a significant philosophical conclusion.

"A man my age," says the urbane Mr. Powell, "shouldn't have to work if he doesn't want to."

Mr. Powell has always impressed me as a highly knowledgeable man. But when it comes to enunciating his philosophy of leisure, it seems that he doesn't "catch on very quick."

Stott

I have been saying the same thing for a couple of decades, only nobody was listening.

At that, I'm a little slow myself. Possibly four out of five teen-agers have already reached the same conclusions about work. If they haven't, they do an extremely good job of producing evidence which seems to support the case.

Back in the 'thirties, which most men over 45 like to talk about, we were sold on the idea that we wanted jobs. It was the old attraction of scarcity. There weren't enough to go around so they became hightly desirable.

THEY ONLY WANT AN INCOME

I've heard a few honest old Socialists dispute the point. These men of integrity have, on occasion, confessed publicly that they never did particularly want a job. All they wanted was an income.

Quite a few of today's youngsters haven't got around to the confession, but they're showing that actions speak louder than words.

The better-behaved youngsters do it very nicely. They appear eager to please. They talk a good helping-hand. They're ready to give you their assistance on this little project or that. But something almost inevitably intervenes between the offer and the performance.

They have attained a mastery of "tomorrow-ism." Sure they'll dig in and help—only would be it be all right if they did it on the afternoon of the next day. You see, today they were going to . . . and they present a long explanation of important plans made among themselves, plans which can't be put off to the future, like a chore can be.

The teen-ager, if my experience counts for anything—which I doubt—has not been sold on the nobility of toil. Neither were the teen-agers I remember 30 years ago. If you're old enough to think back that far, maybe you'll agree.

According to my recollection, packing in a load of wood was one of the most exhausting undertakings a teen-ager could contemplate. It was twice as hard as playing five sets of tennis, which also produced exhaustion. But that was different.

By the grace of progress, packing in wood is a labor which very few teen-agers face today. Oil and electricity and this marvelous age of ours have all but eliminated the woodpile as well as the woodshed, except for a few atavists living in the wilds of Shawnigan.

Mechanical inventiveness, petroleum and electronics have taken the agony out of a lot of work. They have helped to reduce any appreciation now existing for the nobility of toil, unless it's the labor of a football game, square-dance or general rough-house.

And it seems to me that the mere removal of labor from everyday activity and household operation shouldn't necessarily make us effete.

INTERNAL CONSTRUCTION

Only, under the old program, we who had not solved the problem of avoiding work whenever we wanted to seemed to build something into ourselves by working. Sometimes it was resentment. More often it was an inclination to persevere in order to get a job done. If it was hard, we had to work a little harder at it. That, I think, constructed a little more character in the person who undertook the chore.

Accept that theory, if you wish, but don't strain the logic by assuming virtue comes only from working harder than is necessary. You don't have to bail a leaking boat with a thimble to accomplish the bailing. And there isn't much sense in using a thimble when there are better ways of doing the job.

It seems to me that a lot of better ways will be found for doing all kinds of jobs as we move further into automation. Only what happens to the people who move into it? What kind of characters do they build when they don't have to work or develop the skills they once had to know for survival in a less mechanically advanced age?

Maybe the answer's not hard to find. You glide gracefully through a push-button life, pushing buttons that do the work for you until you hit the last button. It's rigged to make you work as you would have worked without the other buttons.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Itching Skin

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Many persons ask what to do for an itching skin. Obviously, the person should see a skin specialist who will promptly check to make sure that he hasn't diabetes, or Hodgkins' disease, or extreme nervousness, or any of the other troubles that cause wide-spread itching. The doctor, of course, will make sure that there is no local disease of the skin. Itching between the fingers or in the groins can be due to the tiny itch-mite. Itching between the toes can be due to the mold that produces so-called athlete's foot. Itching of the shins of older persons in cold weather is due to a lack of sufficient oil in the skin. It is washed out in the morning bath, and the cure is to rub some cold cream or oil into the skin every day.

Dr. Alvarez

Itching in the crotch calls for careful examination, often by several specialists. In a big clinic the skin specialist, the gynecologist, the rectal specialist, the psychiatrist and the internist may all have to consult on the problem. Often the local itching is due in part to nervousness, and perhaps a psychic conflict.

UTERINE FIBROIDS

Every week a number of women ask me if they must have their fibroid tumor out. Usually they say that it hasn't bothered them in any way, and was discovered accidentally on a routine examination. They haven't been flooding; they are not anemic, and they have no pain. I am happy to note that, today, most of these women tell me that at least one or two of the surgeons they have consulted have advised against an operation. They have said that they could see no urgent need for removing the thing. It was silent, and they did not have any fear that it would turn into cancer. Especially when a woman is in her twenties or thirties, and wants children, no surgeon wants to remove her womb.

Commonly, a hysterectomy doesn't do much harm, but we must face the fact that in some cases the woman becomes depressed and moody and unhappy; she may feel that her useful life is ended, and she may lose her sexual interest, thereby losing her husband. Because there are these dangers I see no sense in operating unless there is a definite reason for it.

I am so happy that today more and more gynecologists are saying that the mere presence of a fibroid or myomatous (muscular) nodule on the uterus is not an indication for surgery. We should remember that every third white woman has some fibroids, and every other colored woman has them. These nodules are made of muscle, much like the muscle in the rest of the uterus. The lump is not cancerous, and it very rarely changes into cancer. This happening is so rare that I cannot remember ever having seen a case of it. Sometimes the presence of myomas seems to interfere with a woman's ability to conceive, but I have known women with a good-sized tumor on the womb to have several children.

CRAMPS AND PAIN IN THE LEGS

Many elderly persons get severe pain in the legs if they try to walk fast. They have to stop and, after a few minutes, they can go on again. This is called intermittent claudication, and is due to the narrowing of an artery in the leg. With this narrowing only enough blood gets through for a resting muscle. When the muscle is active and needing more blood, not enough for it can come through. Then comes pain.

An expert can usually tell with tests whether it pays to try any of the drugs that are used to help this sort of thing. Experts tell me that in most cases the arteries are so stiff that even the best of the drugs will not do much good. In some cases, after tests show that the arteries can dilate with the help of drugs, a surgeon may go in in the back, and cut the sympathetic nerves that supply the arteries. After these nerves are cut, the arteries may remain more widely opened, and then they may supply an adequate amount of blood. In other cases the arteries are so stiff that cutting the nerves will not help.

Today, in bad cases, expert surgeons are cutting in, and replacing the narrowed bit of artery with a prepared piece of artery from an animal, or an artery made of nylon or some other material.

Naturally, most of us physicians do not see enough of this new type of work to know much about it, and hence usually the person will do well to go to some large clinic or university center where he can find the experts who know how to transplant segments of arteries. It is a wonderful new advance in surgery.

Life's Darkest Moment — A WEBSTER CLASSIC

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Perfection Needed For Show Standards

If you are jealously nursing a squash or marrow with the intent of putting it in one of the fall shows, be sure that the surface is free from blemishes, and the color even all over.

Jack

To prevent damage to the underside, place each fruit on a piece of wood or a sheet of glass, and to obtain the even color, turn each fruit.

Turning is quite an art and must be done carefully so that the vine is not broken. Seasoned exhibitors start when the fruits are quite small and thus eliminate the white mark on the underside.

When a class calls for a plate of berries, the plate should be adequately covered with the fruits. The number involved will depend on the individual size.

As you pull beets and carrots for kitchen use, cut a few roots crosswise as the judges do, and study the texture and colors. Whitish and red rings in a beet indicate old age. Light and dark rings are more pleasing to the judge, and a small core and wide flesh in a carrot will gather points.

The largest beans are not always winners. Prime condition for immediate eating is the standard. Where six or 12 of one kind of vegetable must be shown, uniformity in size, texture, and color takes high points.

As a guide to what the judges are looking for, drop into (or write) the Department of Agriculture, Douglas Block, Government Street, for a copy of Circular 50, "Exhibition Standards of Perfection for Fruits, Vegetables, Field Crops, Dairy Products, Eggs and Honey." All that title—and it's free!

Arabs Must Mend Social Systems Conference Told

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)—An Arab States spokesman said today the Arab League countries must abolish or drastically reform their obsolete social systems before they can become prosperous, democratic states.

Dr. Fayez A. Sayegh, acting director of the Arab States delegation's office in New York City said quasi-feudal systems of land holding, curtailment of women's rights and indifferent or oppressive uses of government power are obstacles to Arab progress.

He spoke at the Couchiching conference on international affairs on Lake Couchiching near Orillia.

Dr. Marshal McLuhan, of the University of Toronto, said true Canadianism consists of an "untaught and spontaneous habit of appraisal of other cultures and other scenes than our own."

Texts of both speeches were released to the press before delivery.

SEARCH FOR FREEDOM

Dr. Sayegh said his peoples' strongest urge is to "attain or to re-enforce our freedom, and to better our lives."

Resources development and creation of progressive and democratic societies in the Middle East depended on "the total eradiation or the essential modification of obsolete institutions, systems and outlooks."

There was an overpowering desire for unity among Arabs, cutting across artificial political boundaries which split the Middle East after the First World War.

If the formerly dominating powers reconciled themselves to a new nationalism in the Arab states and accepted them as equals, then the Arabs would certainly outgrow their bitterness and suspicion.

WON'T REPEAT MISTAKES

For, he said, the nations of Europe had evolved during centuries of struggle whereas the new nations of the Middle East and Africa are entering a world in which international organization is a reality.

"Nothing, then, makes it inevitable for them to repeat the costly mistakes committed by European nationalism."

Dr. McLuhan said Canadianism would "never be found in the search for an elusive national psyche." The country's national and literary identity would develop as she became more aware of the influences which "have so long postponed the development of this dubious egotism."

A rise in critical standards of literary work might be due to exposure to several media, he suggested.

There had been a "great enlargement of reading interests which has resulted from movies and television."

MINORITES DEFENDED

Anti-Roman Catholic Motion Faces Church Council Defeat

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A demand that the World Council of Churches pass a resolution branding the Roman Catholic Church with suppressing religious liberties in some countries appears likely to be dropped.

Officials, assessing sentiment at a meeting of the council's policy-making central committee here, predicted this outcome today.

The proposals came Monday night in an impassioned speech by Methodist Bishop Sante Uberto Barbieri of Argentina, who said religious minorities are oppressed "wherever the Roman Catholic Church is dominant."

"I have been pleading for many years for the World Council to stand up in defence of liberty in these Roman Catholic countries," said the bishop. He termed the Roman Catholic Church a "totalitarian power" and said it forces itself on populations "not by the grandness of the gospel of Jesus Christ, but by political means and treachery."

"We should not keep silent . . . we should state the facts of the struggle and insist that the Roman Catholic Church have the same respect for Protestants we have for it."

The Roman Catholic Church does not belong to the World Council, which is made up of 165 Protestant and Orthodox churches in 50 countries.

The flareup came over a proposed resolution saying Protestants in Columbia have suffered "grave disabilities" and expressing hopes that the new government there will "restore religious freedom." It did not mention the Roman Catholic Church.

Rev. K. Slack of London called the statement "timed and tepid," and theologian H. C. W. d'Espine of Geneva also said it was inadequate.

He said religious liberty "means more" at the present in Communist Czechoslovakia and Hungary than in predominantly Catholic Spain and Columbia.

The Anglican bishop of Chichester, England, Most Rev. Dr. George K. A. Bell, said Bishop Barbieri's proposal "goes into deeper and bigger questions" than the council is prepared to appraise at this time.

He moved that the statement on Columbia be abandoned, and the meeting so voted. But officials said a general statement on religious liberty will be offered later.

1,000 Students Stage Riots Against Reds

PEIPING (Reuters)—Chinese Communist newspapers reported that more than 1,000 high school students in Nanyang, central China, rioted and demonstrated against the government June 12 and 13.

The reports said "counter-revolutionaries"—all since arrested—incited the students to smash the local Communist party offices and kidnap leading local Communists and beat them up.

Students at the school at Nanyang, on the Yangtze River, shouted slogans such as: "Welcome to Kuomintang Chinese nationalist party to come back quickly."

Saskatchewan Opens Third Uranium Mill

BEAVERLODGE, Sask. (CP) Saskatchewan's third uranium refining mill, the $9,220,000 Lorado Uranium Mines Ltd. custom concentrating mill Monday was officially opened at this mining centre, 600 miles northwest of Regina.

The machinery of the automatically-controlled plant, two years under construction, was set in operation by Lorado president K. S. Oliver at a ceremony attended by Saskatchewan Mineral Resources Minister J. H. Brockelbank and other government officials.

The mill will handle ore from five uranium properties in the Beaverlodge area and when it reaches its ultimate capacity of 650 to 700 tons daily, will be the largest custom mill in northern Saskatchewan. Its immediate capacity is about 500 tons daily.

Following increased output this year at the crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. and Gunnar mills, provincial government officials estimated Saskatchewan's uranium output in 1957 will be 4,400 tons a day with a total value of $54,000,000, double last year's figure.

The new mill has a contract with the federal government to sell uranium ore concentrate to Eldorado to the value of $64,480,000 by March 31, 1963.

Lorado will be immediately milling 100 tons daily of its own ore. It has contracts to mill ore for five properties at the following ultimate rates: Cayzor Athabaska Mines Ltd., 200 tons daily; Lake Cinch Mines Limited, 150 tons; St. Michael's Uranium, 75 tons; National Explorations Limited, 50 tons; and Black Bay Uranium, 25 tons.

Hailstorms Hit Ontario Tobacco Crop

SIMCOE, Ont. (BUP) — Tobacco farmers estimated today that nearly 12,000,000 pounds of tobacco worth $5,000,000 were destroyed by weekend hailstorms.

The storms lashed tobacco fields from here to Tillsonburg.

Jesse Gray, chairman of the Ontario Tobacco Marketing Association, said he lost all of his 41 acres of tobacco crops.

The storms, which came in four waves and dropped hailstones as large as walnuts, threw 5,000 men and women out of work. Many of them were U.S. workers who had arrived Sunday to start work.

Gray said he had been told that 500 farms had been hit. He added that, although the domestic market should be well supplied with tobacco, "This may hit the export market to such an extent there will not be enough tobacco."

Business Tapers Off Bank Report Declares

TORONTO (BUP)—The Bank of Nova Scotia said today business was tapering off after two years of "remarkable expansion."

The bank's monthly review for July added, however, that the "momentum of growth was still apparent," particularly in non-residential construction, service trades, mining and some manufacturing.

The review noted that "activity has fallen notably in house-building and in logging and lumbering and production in many manufacturing lines has dropped below the peaks of the past two years."

"When allowance is made for seasonal factors and for uncertainty about the size of this year's crops, it would appear that the annual rate of growth in national production, which exceeded seven per cent in volume in 1956, has now all but disappeared," the bank said.

The employment picture, the bank said, "has become decidedly more mixed and, though the western provinces remain more buoyant than other regions, there has been a considerable moderation in tone all across the country."

The bank blamed a change in inventory policies abroad for a slackening in several Canadian export industries.

"The year-to-year gain in the total value of exports," the Review said, "has dropped from over 11 per cent in 1956 to not much more than three per cent in the first five months of 1957."

Moreover, it added, shipments of oil, aluminum and pulp and paper, which were all at record levels in the early months of the year, now show signs of at least a temporary sag.

Car Seat Belts Would Slash Deaths 50%, Claims Expert

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. estimated today that traffic casualties might be cut by more than half if all riders used seat belts.

Alex L. Haynes, advanced product study director for Ford, relayed this word to a congressional commerce subcommittee looking into traffic safety. He noted that Ford sales of seat belts at extra cost have dwindled after an initial spurt. The company first made the factory-installed optional equipment on all 1956 models.

SOME OPPOSITION

"It has been disappointing to us that the acceptance of seat belts by many groups interested in highway safety has been slow, and there has been a small vocal minority who have generally opposed seat belts on the basis of misinterpretation of data from a relatively small number of accidents and tests."

Ford's studies had "proved beyond all reasonable doubt" that seat belts are the most effective single safety item available.

One Ford-aided study had found that persons wearing seat belts had 2½ times as few injuries as persons injured in their cars and 3½ times as few dangerous and fatal injuries. Comparing seat belt users to non-users thrown out of their cars, the seat belt users had eight times as few dangerous or fatal injuries.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Aconic Mine Corp. Skids to $1 From $9

Main interest on the Toronto Stock Exchange today was the sudden plunge of the shares of Aconic Mining Corp.

Aconic tumbled to $1 from $9 in 15 minutes shortly after the afternoon session started.

Toronto exchange officials said they could give no reason for the drop but "we are looking into it." They said it was the sharpest loss by a stock in any single session they could recall.

The New York market extended its losses in sluggish trading today. Metals, oils and steels were the weakest sections.

AT TORONTO the market fell steadily on a broad front. Industrials were 4½ points lower on index with losses ranging to nearly $4. Several stocks lost at least $1.

Western oils, with senior issues losing as much as $2, lost four points on their index. Lower-priced oils were easier in a 25-cent range.

AT NEW YORK prominent Canadian issues included McIntyre Porcupine, off 2; International Nickel, down 1⅝; Aluminium Ltd., down ⅝ and Hudson Bay Mining, off ⅜.

Canadian issues were quiet on the American exchange. Fargo Oil lost 3/16; Brazilian Traction was off ⅛ and Richwell and Scurry-Rainbow Oil each lost 1/16.

AT MONTREAL industrial prices were irregularly lower today in afternoon trading on the stock exchange here.

AT LONDON business was dull on the stock exchange today, influenced by the holiday weekend, the overnight decline on Wall Street and the end of the current account.

Gilt-edged securities opened steady and closed fractionally lower in the absence of further investment buying.

Among rails, Canadian Pacifics eased and other trans-Atlantic stocks were lower particularly Canadians. Hudson Bay eased sharply.

Leading tobaccos were firm and textiles improved.

Oil shares were weak with the leaders several shillings lower, but Trinidad issues moved against the general trend.

AT VANCOUVER there was little change in prices. Peace River Pete sold 4,500 between $1.70 and $1.76. Vantor moved 6,600 up to $2.32. Trojan traded 4,500 at 60.

Worker Missing For Eight Days

NANAIMO—Police here are investigating the disappearance of Kenneth Speace, 42-year-old construction worker, missing from his Pleasant Valley trailer camp home since July 29.

His wife, Helen, reported he left without saying where he was going. He cashed a cheque in a Duncan store later that day but from there on his movements are a mystery.

The missing man was driving a 1951 Cadillac and had about $500 in his possession. He is six feet tall, almost bald and has blue eyes.

He was wearing a copper-colored shirt, brown pants, a blue, grey and brown sports jacket when he left home.

New Commission To Run Nanaimo Parks, Arena

NANAIMO — City council Monday combined the Civic Arena, parks and recreation commissions to form a single parks commission.

Commission, which will have seven members, will include the chairmen of both the arena and recreation commissions. Remainder will be appointed by city council, with appointees serving two-year terms.

Also to be appointed by the new commission is a parks recreation manager, the chief administrative officer, whose duties will include liaison between former commissions.

Hunting Season To Be Best In Four Years

NANAIMO—The hunting season this year on Vancouver Island will be the best of the last three or four years "if the weather does not break," provincial game biologist Don Robinson said here Monday.

Mr. Robinson said dates for opening of the fall hunting season are "pretty certain but not yet definite".

The season for blue grouse starts August 31 and lasts until October 31. Prospects are good. Bag limit will be eight birds in any one day with the season limit to be annouced later.

UP 25 PER CENT

The deer season will run from September 14 to December 1. Prospects are expected to be on a par with the record year of 1955, and up 25 per cent from last year. Bag limit is three deer in the season, of which two may be antlerless provided they are taken during the last three weeks of November.

The elk season starts October 5 and runs two weeks. Outlook is far better than last year and limit is one bull elk.

Willow grouse, pheasant, duck and geese, five per day. Prospects for water fowl are comparatively poor, however.

Nanaimo Boat Launching Site Requested by Outboard Club

NANAIMO — After working three hours on Nanaimo's waterfront in an unsuccessful effort to launch their pleasure craft, members of the Nanaimo Outboard Club appealed to the city council for help.

They won an admission from aldermen that the city needs a launching area for small boats.

Mayor Peter Maffeo said: "We are all very conscious of the wonderful marine playground at our door, but lack of suitable waterfront property has prevented us from acting."

But the city now owns Brechin Point where a suitable area for parking could be made next to a docking place for small craft.

The council, a group from the Chamber of Commerce and outboard club members will meet in an effort to arrive at a suitable site.

READY FOR FAIR

Centennial Centre here will be ready for commercial displays at the fall fair Sept. 11 to 14, and will be far enough advanced in construction for winter sports meets.

Foundations of the $30,000 project, financed by Nanaimo's $7,600 centennial grant, matched by the city, and underwritten by businessmen here, assures adequate financing.

The 200 by 60 foot building is being erected at Exhibition Park.

Charles Wilson, for 50 years a fireman in this city, was presented with a gold watch Monday in recognition of his volunteer service since 1907.

Mayor Peter Maffeo, who presented the watch, said Wilson had not missed a fire or fire drill "for the past 30 years."

Wilson had been captain of the volunteer firefighters since 1934 and secretary of the Firemen's Association and president of the Island Firefighters for many years.

IMPAIRED DRIVER

William Bristow of Vancouver was fined $150 and his driving licence was revoked until Sept. 30 after pleading guilty Monday to a charge of impaired driving.

YOUNG FATHER CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED RAPE

NANAIMO—A father of two children, David Gilbert Bob, 22, faced a charge in police court here Monday of attempted rape involving a 10-year-old girl in Nanaimo. The accused lives at Nanoose.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts set bail at $7,500. No plea was made. The next hearing will be Aug. 14.

Three More Pigeons Flap Home From Two-Week Edmonton Flight

Three tourists flapped their way home to Victoria over the weekend following a two-week flight from Edmonton after several stops along the way.

Tourists of a different kind, they didn't take the plane but made it on their own power.

They were racing pigeons from a Victoria-based team.

Bert Owens, 3332 Painter Road, said two birds came in Saturday and another completed the 600 airline miles distance Sunday morning.

SIX HOME

The new arrivals bring the total finishers so far to six out of 16 released July 21 in Edmonton. First to finish was a two-year-old hen that made it in 47 hours and five minutes. The second came in seven days later on July 29 and the third followed Aug. 1.

"I don't think all of the remaining 10 will make it into Victoria but I wouldn't be surprised to see about five more get here," Mr. Owens said.

Mr. Owens set the pigeons off on the record trans-mountain distance to obtain top breeders for his team of 44 racing pigeons.

ONE IN THOUSAND

"About one in a thousand birds can make that distance. The first one obviously came straight in but the others stopped off to feed and get their bearings," he said.

The flight of 16 was equally divided between yearlings and two-year-old birds. The present six arrivals held up that ratio, although it is unusual for yearlings to fly so far.

Mr. Owens has one bird in his flock that flew in five trans-mountain races, four times from Lethbridge, a distance of 490 air miles, and once from Edson, Alta., some 470 miles.

The Edmonton-Victoria trial was the longest attempted in western Canada through the mountains.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court Monday:

William Milne, 1053 Redfern, $250 and licence suspended six months for impaired driving.

Alvin W. Peltonaa, 2913 Quadra Street, $35 for careless driving.

Geno Imre Karaka, 42 South Turner, $25 for being without a driver's licence, and $15 for driving over 30 miles an hour.

Albert Ernest Rigby, Langford, $10 for driving over a fire hose.

Yinnie Lim, 1516 Westall Ave., $25 for having no rear licence plate and no light on the licence plate.

Victor D. Harrison, 1145 Fairfull Street, $35 and licence suspended for 30 days for careless driving.

Norman Underwood, Mount Newton, $35 and licence suspended for 30 days for careless driving.

They're Biting At Qualicum —Ask Mayor Hume

QUALICUM BEACH — Many limit catches of fish are reported by summer visitors here as weather conditions favor fishermen.

According to two guides, springs are averaging around 15 pounds.

Good catches were made by Lynn Hunter, Alma Snider and Robert Crewe, all of Victoria, while 12-year-old Mike Devlin of Victoria had a tough battle to land his 20 lb. 10 oz. fish.

Also with limit catches were Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver and industrialist H. R. McMillan, who topped his limit with a 21½-lb. spring.

New guide here this year is Jacques Erdley, whose 30-foot cruiser "Pamela" will be working out of Shady Rest boathouse.

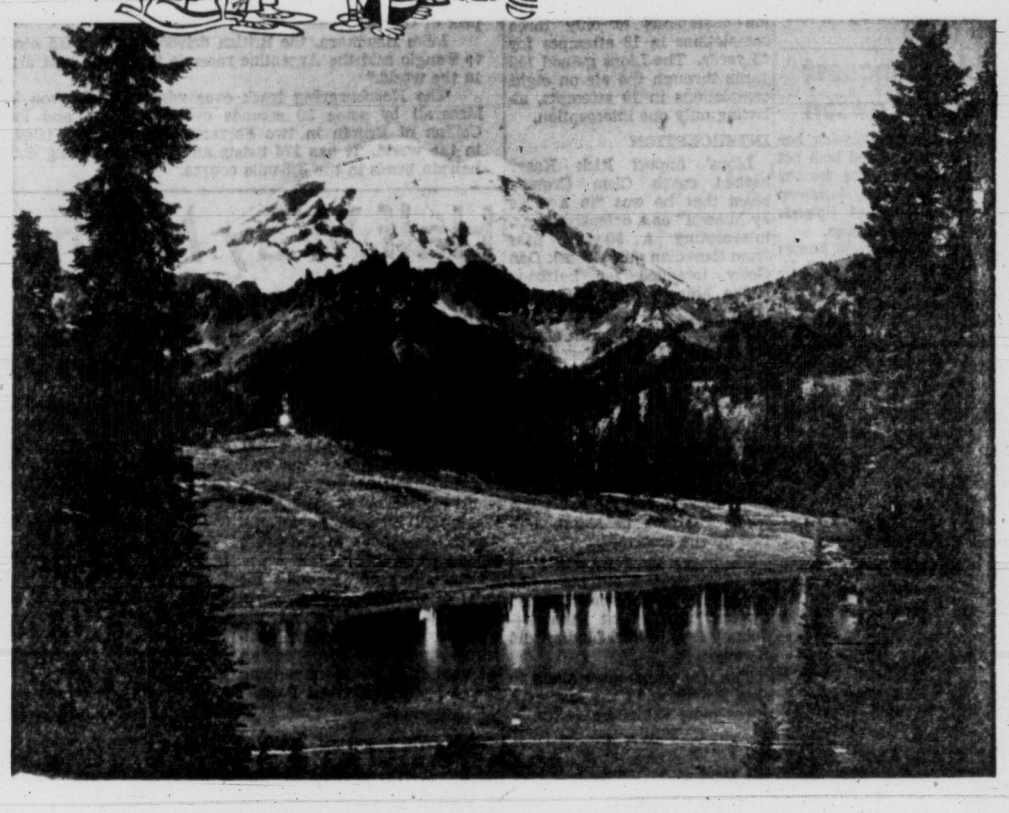
A Tall (14,410 foot) Tale and True



You'll understand why the Indians called it "God"

You've seen a mountain, of course. Most everyone has. But we doubt that you've ever seen one like Mt. Rainier. It's a "lone wolf." Seemingly out of nowhere, it rears its perpetually snow-crested peak over 14,000 feet into the heavens. The sight of this tremendous, cone-like image glistening in the sun will make your spine tingle. The Indians worshipped it as God and, as it casts its rapturous spell over you, you'll understand why.

But Rainier is not something to be enjoyed only from afar. Nearly 400 square miles of virgin national park surround its base. Twenty-six formidable glaciers hug its sides. Four entrances bid you welcome and over 80 miles of paved highways lead in all directions, including upward, within the area.

Mt. Rainier alone is worth traveling hundreds of miles to see, but it is but one of the wonders of might and magnificence with which Washington State has been so abundantly blessed.

Natural and man-made wonders which add up to the most interesting, most thrill-filled, most enjoyable vacation you have ever had.

The broad Pacific beaches, the Olympic Peninsula's virgin wonderland, the 177-island San Juan Archipelago, jewel-like Lake Chelan, the awe-inspiring Grand Coulee Dam, apple-scented Wenatchee and Yakima Valleys, Ginkgo—the world's largest petrified forest, are but a few.

And best of all, Washington State's wonder and beauty spots are not difficult to visit and enjoy. Many are but a matter of hours apart via modern, well-kept highways.

Fill out and mail the coupon below and we'll send you by return mail an attractive folder entitled "Only Hours Apart." It's loaded with full-color photographs of many of the places and things we think you would like to see, but, most interesting, is a center map. This shows the actual geographic location of all the things we've been talking about and is gridded every 50 miles both north and south and east and west. You can see at a glance how easily you can get around. Let us send you a copy, won't you? It could be the guide to the best vacation you have ever enjoyed!

Lions Impress (But Esks Win)

Kwong's Late TD Plunge Brings Champs From Behind

VANCOUVER (BUP) — The Edmonton Eskimos stormed from behind in the final quarter to edge the British Columbia Lions 14-11 Monday night in an exhibition football game before 14,919 fans at Empire Stadium.

TOP ANGLER in annual Cowichan Bay Salmon Club junior derby Sunday was Gordon Wadsworth, 13, who received new bicycle for this 22-pound, 12-ounce salmon. Gordon had caught only one other fish before—derby—a two-pounder. Peter Folk was second among 85 entrants with 20-pound catch. (Flett Studios photo.)

The Grey Cup champions trailed until fullback Normie Kwong drove through from the 12 with less than eight minutes remaining to defeat a fighting B.C. squad in one of the best exhibition games witnessed on the coast.

Lions were a much improved team from the one defeated by the same Eskimos, 29-8, in Portland, Ore., Friday night.

Quarterback Don Flynn from Houston University moved the Eskimos in a spectacular fashion in his first real taste of Canadian football. He looked like a second Jackie Parker as he weaved through Lion defenders for a 12-yard touchdown after B.C.'s Toppy Vann had opened the scoring with a 20-yard touchdown pass to halfback Tony Teresa late in the second quarter.

TIED AT FALF

Tom Pearson's convert tied the game, 7-7, at the half.

In the fourth quarter the tall, bandy-legged Flynn led the Esks from their own 25 to the Lions' 12 in 13 plays, from where Kwong rammed into the end zone for the winning touchdown.

The west coast club had taken the lead in the third quarter on a field goal by Duncan and a single by Chapman.

The Eskimos rolled over the Lions 229 yards to 152 along the ground, but the B.C. defence intercepted four passes, holding the three-time Dominion champions to only three completions in 13 attempts for 45 yards. The Lions gained 112 yards through the air on eight completions in 19 attempts, allowing only one interception.

INTERCEPTION

Lions' import Rick Kaser backed coach Clem Crowe's boast that he was "in a class by himself" as a defensive back, intercepting a 50-yard pass from Canadian quarterback Don Getty intended for halfback Rollie Miles on the B.C. goal line.

Edmonton's Bill Smith staved off a Lions' attack intercepting a pass on his own five after Vann had guided the Lions to the 22-yard line.

The two Western Conference teams chased each other into every section of the field in the second half. Quarterback Flynn was forced to run the ball twice when Eskimos defenders bottled up the receivers.

Halfbacks By Baily and Paul Cameron ground out big gains for the Lions, but were matched by the Esks' potent runners—Johnny Bright, Earl Lindley and Kwong.

The two teams meet again in San Francisco in the last of a three-game exhibition series.

Double Conquest For Mrs. Lawson

Mrs. Joan Lawson, playing her "home" course, captured both net and gross honors in the regular weekly 15-and-under handicap event for city ladies at Uplands Golf Club Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Lawson took gross honors with 82 and the net prize with 75. Mrs. B. Thirlwell of Gorge Vale was runner-up for net honors with 90-11—79.

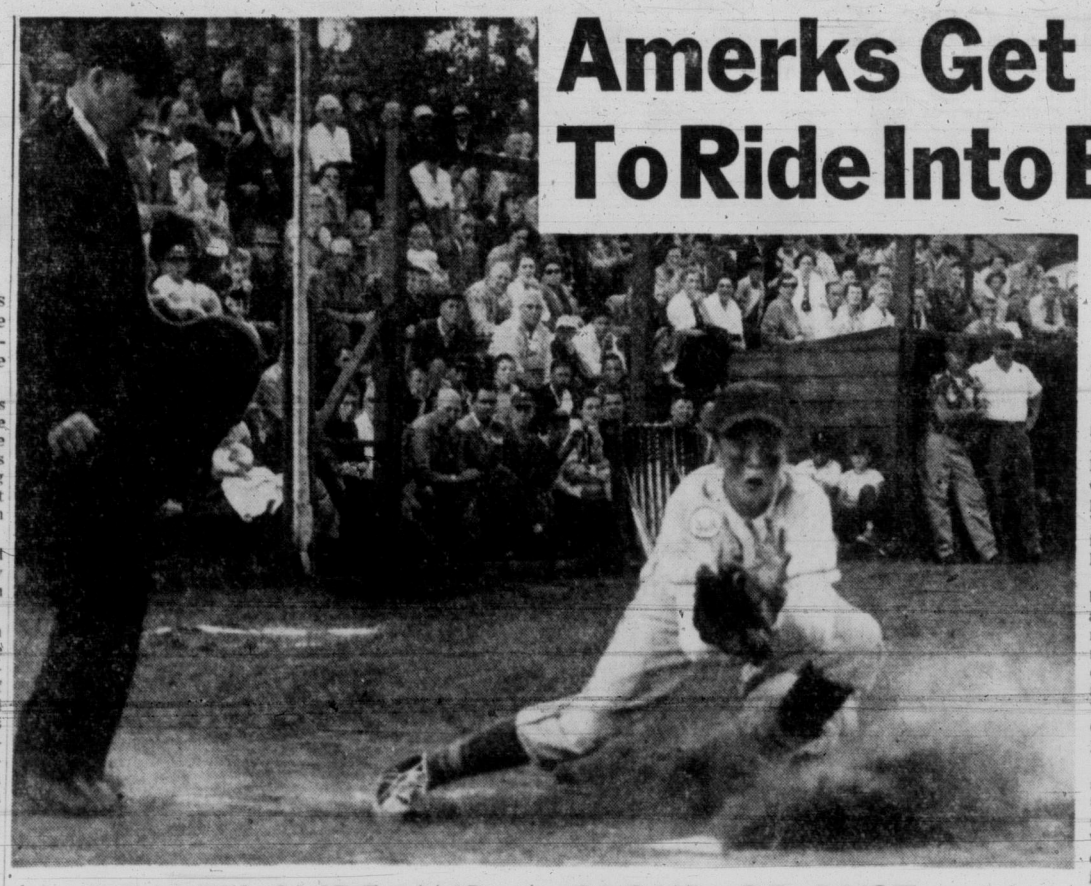
Amerks Get Free Ducats To Ride Into B.C. Playoffs



HEARTY SLIDE AND A CLOUD OF DUST . . .

With the cloud of dust providing a good screen, Wayne Carson of American League All-Stars slides safely across plate with run in first inning of Monday's Island final with Esquimalt-Victoria West All-Stars. Mabee Hurls Americans To First Island Crown

There's nothing wrong with free tickets—especially if you happen to be on the receiving end. They usually take you where you want to go.

Lefthander Bob Newman was generous with the free passes Monday night at Jaycee Park. He issued 14—more than enough—and those tickets proved good enough to take Victoria's American League into the provincial Little League baseball finals.

The B.C. championships will be staged in Victoria Friday and Saturday with the winners moving on to the Northwest regional playdowns at Port Orchard, Wash., later in the month. North Vancouver, New Westminster East and Prince George will join Victoria in the B.C. title hunt.

Newman, big, stylish and speedy, lacked only control, but that was the big factor that sent his Esquimalt-Victoria West All-Stars down to an 8-4 defeat to the American League in the Island final.

A capacity audience saw the Amerks win their first major title in the four-year history of the circuit. Earlier, in the consolation final, National Leaguers edged scrappy Hampton All-Stars 3-2.

Newman was charged with the loss and all 14 walks before giving way to Peter Raines in the fifth. Bob Mabee, a little righthander with a big, sweeping curve, was the winner. He walked only two and struck out 10.

A wild throw to first by pitcher Bobby Gee in the bottom of the sixth set up the stage for the National victory. The error enabled Dave Benn to reach base safely. Successive singles by Reb Strom and Bryan Harvey promptly sent Benn home with the winner.

Mounties Whip Sacramento; Seals Triumph

By The United Press

Vancouver Mounties looked like strong Pacific Coast League pennant contenders Monday night as they defeated the Sacramento Solons 7-1 for their third straight victory.

But San Francisco was still in first place by four games after beating the Los Angeles Angels, 6 to 2. Seattle dropped Hollywood down another half game by beating the Stars 4 to 3.

Vancouver right-hander Mel Held pitched a beautiful game as he scattered eight hits and didn't give up one walk. The Mounties also placed their hits effectively, collecting seven runs on only 10 hits, while the Solons could only squeeze one tally from eight safeties.

Bill Prout, San Francisco's 18-year-old pitching ace, struck out 10 men in earning his win. But the victory never was in question. The Seals scored in the first, third, fourth and eighth innings to insure the victory for young Prout.

RACING RIVALS ADMIT FANGIO 'BEST IN WORLD'

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Opposing auto race drivers and the West German press today hailed Juan Manuel Fangio as "the best driver in the world" after clinching his fifth world championship in Sunday's grand prix of Germany.

Mike Hawthorn, the British driver who finished second to Fangio said the Argentine racer is "truly the best driver in the world."

The Neurburgring track over which Fangio won in a Maserati by some 30 seconds over Hawthorn and Peter Collins of Britain in two Ferraris is one of the trickiest in the world. It has 176 twists and turns, including double hairpin bends in the 318-mile course.

Giants Agree Don's No Child

By UNITED PRESS

Long Don Drysdale, who celebrated his 21st birthday only two weeks ago, also has come of age as a major league pitcher.

The six-foot-four right-hander was less than two years out of high school when he joined the Brooklyn Dodgers last season but still managed to win five games, four against the hated New York Giants.

With that one year of experience behind him, the Dodgers predicted big things for the lanky Californian this spring and young Don is living up to his notices.

Although he allowed 10 hits, including four to Willie Mays, Drysdale fast-balled his way to a 5-2 victory over his favorite New York "cousins" Monday night in the only National League action. It was his ninth triumph of the season, tying him with Don Newcombe and Johnny Podres for the most victories on the Dodger staff.

Drysdale's career record against the Giants now stands at 6-1. He never has lost to them as a starter, suffering his lone defeat during a relief stint at the Polo Grounds earlier this season.

However, Mays almost ruined that gaudy record with another of his one-man-gang performances. Willie tagged Drysdale for a two-run homer that put the Giants ahead, 2-1, in the third inning.

Mays also picked up three singles along the way so when he came up with two men on and two out in the ninth inning, Dodger manager Walt Alston yanked Drysdale in favor of Clem Labine, who retired Willie on an infield grounder.

In an American League day game, the Cleveland Indians snapped the New York Yankees' eight-game winning streak, 7-2. Gene Woodling drove in five runs with a single and a three-run homer, while Mike Garcia gave up nine hits in beating the Yankees for the first time since Aug. 3, 1955. Don Larsen was the losing pitcher.

Canadian Outclassed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Herbie Rodriguez of New Orleans floored Cobey McCluskey four times Monday night and stopped the light-hitting Canadian in one minute, eight seconds of the sixth round. Rodriguez weighed 153, McCluskey 152½.

Rodriguez sent the 27-year-old native of Halifax to the canvas four times.

Brooklyn's Duke May Face Surgery

BROOKLYN (AP) — Duke Snider, Brooklyn's ace centrefielder, may be forced to undergo surgery on his ailing left knee after the end of the 1957 season.

Snider, 30, said today he had been advised by the Dodgers' trainer, Dr. Harold Wendler, that an operation on the knee probably would be the only permanent cure. Snider has been sidelined for the last three games with a recurrence of the ailment first incurred playing high school football.

Half Way Method Won't Win Second

Half Way House missed one chance Monday night and, as of today, their opportunities are decidely limited.

With only three games left to play before the Senior "A" Men's Softball League schedule winds up Sunday, the Half Ways will have to go all the way if they hope to recapture second place.

Occupants of second for most of the season, they dropped a full game behind the spot—now held by Arrow Furniture—when they dropped an 8-4 verdict to the front-running Gorge Hotel at Central Park.

JITTERY

Half Ways seemed troubled with the jitters Monday. They committed four of their six errors in the first four innings. Gorge scored all their runs then and never looked back.

Dave Price, despite a shaky start that saw him tagged for five hits in two innings, was the winner. It gave him a 9-3 won-lost record for the year. The loss was charged to starter Mark Cunningham, a victim of two costly errors that sent him to the showers in the first inning.

Verne Evans clouted a double and two singles to spark Gorge while Don Paulin contributed two hits. Outfielders Bob Lowe and Reg Marlett each had three hits for Half Ways.

Barefoot Buck Outlasts Mangan

Barefoot, but far from bashful, Jim Buck found himself in deep trouble after the opening set of his match against John Mangan of Philadelphia as both men sought to get the feel of unfamiliar and damp grass courts in the B.C. Open Lawn Tennis Championships at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club Monday.

Buck, third-seeded in the tournament, rallied from his first set drubbing to take the second 6-3 and then battle it out to a 7-5 decision on the strength of his powerful service.

Starting the match in regulation attire, the University of California shot expert soon gave up shoes and socks in an attempt to find firmer footing on the slippery court.

He went the rest of the way barefoot.

MORE HARD LUCK

Mangan had further hard luck as seedings told the story when he teamed up with Victoria's Peter Bousfield in the men's doubles against first-seeded Butch Krikorian, of San Jose College, and Merwin Miller of Pasadena.

Again the first set went against the favorites as they dropped the opener 4-6 but hustled back in the next two with 6-2, 6-2 scores.

Miller and Krokorian are expected to meet in the championship round of the singles. Miller is seeded first in the tournament on the strength of last week's Western Canada Open win at Vancouver.

Krikorian is tennis coach at San Jose College and seeded second in this tourney.

Victorian's Warren Cameron and Art Ngai advanced in the singles via the walk-over route against their opponents R. Cooper and G. Kramer.

Today's late draw follows:

4.30—Winner Miller/McCollough vs. winner Smith/Bousfield, Hodgdon and M. Diamond vs. S. Crane and Smith.

6.30—Miss P. Ferguson vs. Mrs. G. Gardner, Cameron and Peskett vs. Vidal and McCullough, Bray and Devine vs. Petersen and Davis, J. Kennedy vs. D. Thomson (F), A. Ross vs. G. Elder (F).
7.15—Willford and Krikorian vs. Boursot and Seymour.

Action Starts With Money In

Governors of Victoria's proposed entry in the Western Hockey League, ready to do business now that the team has raised the required minimum of $30,000 to assure professional hockey for another season, met Monday night.

Plans for forming the team as a public company were discussed. Other discussions concerned season ticket sales, issuing and printing of shares, the hiring of team employees and renting of an office.

A report on the hockey campaign was also given by drive manager Colin Kilburn.

Gordon Cameron and Gordon Holms were appointed to make necessary arrangements for formation and registration of the new company. Shares will be issued to shareholders as soon as possible.

Billett Tops Chinook, ANAF Fishing Derbies

Two salmon derbies highlighted weekend fishing activity and Clarence Billett and Art Midlane played the major roles in both.

Billett walked off with top prize in the Chinook Club derby with the 25-pound, three-ouncer he hooked near Deep Cove, for a chest of silver and then took top prize in the ANAF Vets competition.

He went even farther as he netted a 15-pounder that was good for third in the Veterans' event.

Right behind him in both affairs was Art Midlane, who took second with a 20-pounder that won him a garden lounge in the Chinook derby.

Third in the Chinook was Bill Prior who added a suitcase to his travelling set with a 16-pound, 12-ounce prize winner.

Other prize winners in the Chinook Club competition were Bob Vowles, fourth and George Heatherfield fifth. Hidden weight prizes went to George Wales, Mrs. Lorraine Halsom, Bill Kirk, C. Sims, Helen Halfhide, J. Waddell, J. Leggett and G. Miners.

Consolation prizes were awarded to Claude Creed, Fred Beecroft and Dr. Hugh Clarke.

J. Dempster took fourth in the ANAF Vets affair followed by Art Ward in fifth place while Bob Effa and Marie Dempster won first place in the boys' and girls' contest.

A special prize went to Doug Stobo with consolation awards taken by D. Williams, Frank Nuttall, J. Christenson, Cliff Sims and G. Davies.

Val Kept Busy Reaching Finals

Victoria's Val Druce teamed up with Portland's Carl Cole to successfully defend the mixed doubles championship in the Seattle Sea Fair table tennis tournament.

Cole, who hasn't been beaten in two years of tournament competition, completed a triple in the tourney by sharing the men's doubles title and also capturing the singles.

Val, the defending champion, lost her ladies' singles crown when beaten, 21-19, 16-11, by Seattle's Louise Robinson.

In a second tournament at Seattle, Mrs. Druce reached the finals of both the singles and mixed doubles but lost out both times. Pat MacKenzie of Seattle took the ladies' singles with a thrilling, five-set victory. Scores were 18-21, 22-20, 21-19, 22-24, 21-15.

EGGS, CHAIRS AND FIRECRACKERS — TWO SPECTATORS IN HOSPITAL

Without Pigeons, Old St. Nick's Won't Be Same

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK (UP) — Pigeons and firecrackers will be officially banned Thursday from future TV fights at St. Nicholas Arena because of Monday night's disorders that resulted in the hospitalization of two spectators, one arrest and the egg-pelting of ringsiders.

Deputy Boxing Commissioner Joe Tepper today ordered promoter Teddy Brenner, welterweight Eddie Lynch and manager Bill Cargaro to appear at commission headquarters Thursday for a "dressing down."

Lynch of New York, who has a large and noisy following known as "Pandemonium, Inc.," lost a split eight-round decision to Danny (Bang Bang) Russo of Brooklyn last night. It was a bloody fight, during which Russo's equally noisy Brooklyn followers were alleged to have thrown the eggs—hen's eggs — not pigeons!

Two spectators, struck by thrown chairs, were having their injuries x-rayed today at Roosevelt Hospital, where they were taken in an ambulance from St. Nick's. Abraham Lessner suffered a torn scalp and possible skull fracture. Nick Gravina sustained a compound fracture of the nose. Both are New Yorkers.

Just before the main event, one egg hit a fighter who was being introduced as a future contestant, and another hit a sports writer, later two more eggs landed in the ring, which had to be sprinkled liberally with resin dust to prevent Lynch and Russo from slipping. Just how many spectators were hit is not known.

Promoter Brenner was surprised that the Lynch and Russo followers got out of hand. At previous Lynch bouts, his followers had been noisy with their released pigeons, firecrackers, bugles, stamping and yelling; but nothing had been thrown.

Monday night a representative of the American Society for the prevention of cruelty to animals caused the arrest of William Boenzi of Valley Stream, N.Y., for alleged cruelty to pigeons. But Boenzi claims Joseph Schlesinger of the ASPCA got the wrong man.

"It wasn't my crate of pigeons," declared Boenzi. "I was just trying to move the crate out of my way. I don't know who put it there by my seat."

But Schlesinger claims he collared Boenzi when he had a pigeon in his hand.

Russo, weighing 148 pounds to Lynch's 151, won an upset split decision after suffering a deep and bloody gash on his cheek in the fourth round. Lynch's left brow was cut in the seventh.

Russo, a 6-5 underdog, was so effective with his body attack he earned the votes of the two judges, Nick Gamboli and Harold Barnes; but referee Barney Felix favored head-hunter Lynch.

Gene Receives Applause But Roberto Grabs Cash

CHICAGO (AP) — Virtually all of the top name golf pros were girding themselves today for the start of the game's richest event — the $101,200 "world" championship.

While they waited for practice rounds on the Tam O'Shanter course where the battle for a $50,000 first prize and $50,000 exhibition tour contract begins a 72-hole grind Thursday, talk centred on Gene Littler.

Littler's course record-matching 63 Monday all but overshadowed the fact that Roberto Vicenzo won the all-American title.

It was Littler's last round effort that drew the applause, and not De Vicenzo's final 70 which gave the hefty Argentine, now a club pro in Mexico City, a 72-hole tally of 273-15 under par and the $3,500 first prize.

Littler's final round equalling Lloyd Mangrum's mark set in 1948, ballooned him to second place with 277, worth $2,300.

Sam Snead was third with 278. Then followed Paul Harney with 279 and Art Wall Jr., Dow Finsterwald, Fred Hawkins and Bob Rosburg at 281.

LEONARD IN MONEY

Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a 69 and finished in an eight-place tie with 71-70-74-69—284, earning $775.

Littler would have won a $10,000 prize for breaking the tourney mark if he eagled the last hole. He was 120 yards away. The shot was near perfect. It hit in front of the pin and skidded to a stop 2½ feet beyond. He was down with a birdie three.

"But where I really lost the record was on the sixth hole," said Littler. "On the 445-yard sixth hole, a wedge shot hit the pin and stopped eight inches away. I got a par four, but if the pin had been out, I'd have gone in.

De Vicenzo uses a brassie without teeing up the ball on nearly all holes where others use a driver.

"I keep them straight with brassie. When I want to play a hook, I tee them up," he smiled.

PACE-SETTING FARMERS HOST BURNABY TONIGHT

With the Northern Division title of the Northwest International Baseball League all sewn up, Farmer Construction will take on Bill Kirder's Burnaby Athletics in an attempt to add a little padding tonight at Royal Athletic Park.

Manager Ed Ash is not certain who he will have working on the mound for Farmers, but it will be either veteran left-hander Art Worth or rookie right-hander Dave Emery.

Playoff time is drawing near and from the look of the Southern Division it will be Bellingham Bells who will be here to decide the playoff champion, possibly within the next two weeks.

Kerr Tops Field At Uplands Club

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Gorge Vale and Royal Colwood are in the midst of club championship play. Dr. George Bigelow tees at Victoria club and the quest for club crowns will end Oct. 6 when finalists at Uplands meet in a 36-hole final.

City titleholder Laurie Kerr took the first step in the direction of the Colwood championship Sunday when he posted a two-under-par 68 to take medalist honors. Laurie's steady 34-34 rounds gave him a five-stroke cushion over runner-up Dick Hanley.

Harold Lineham, Bill McColl and George Andrews tied for third, each with 74. With 81 good enough to qualify for the championship, others in the top 16 include Ken Brousseau, Tom Harris, Jim Robertson, Vince Clarkson, Mike Bartkow, Bob Woods, Don Ross, George Sparling, Vic Painter, Gil Anderson and Cy Spaven.

NORM BODEN

Scoring was steady but not spectacular. Painter, perennial threat for top honors in Island tournaments, related the day's sorriest story. He barely qualified with an 80.

The par-four 10th provided Vic with all the grief of an otherwise solid round. He knocked four balls out of bounds and wound up with an 11.

McColl also met with difficulty. Playing the 17th, and only one over par at the time, Bill's second shot landed in a fir tree and stayed there. He had to consider it a lost ball and took a penalty.

A field of 72 started out Sunday. Match play gets under way next weekend.

Chief threats for the Gorge crown advanced without mishap. Medalist John Merriman defeated Al MacLeod 3 and 2 while defending champion Norm Boden beat Hugh Fletcher 2 and 1.

Handicap champ Harry Donaldson recorded the easiest win of the day, 5 and 4 over Eric Barber, while Jack Storrie downed Al Senior one up.

The father-son combination of John and Mel Carlow both were forced into overtime. Mel had to go to the 20th to defeat Mike Kolb, the sharpshooting junior, while "dad" bowed out to Ron Cush on the 19th.

Others moving into the eights were Jack Clark, who downed Ted Bradshaw 3 and 1, and Jim McColl, Jr., who sidelined Roy Chappelle 4 and 3.

* * *

M. F. Smith, B. Cavanaugh and W. Hibbert each posted net 66s to tie for low net honors in the Class "B" championship played at Uplands. They'll play off for first prize later this week.

E. H. Williams won low gross honors while A. C. Watkins was runner-up.

Seniors will vie for the Harold Robinson trophy at Uplands next weekend.

Fletchers Drub Tars; Enter Final

Fletchers stepped from the semifinals into the finals in the Senior "B" Mens' Softball League playoffs at Heywood Avenue Park Monday when they handed Navy a 10-2 drubbing.

It was the second straight win for the Clothiers, who hammered the Tars, 5-2, in the semi-opener Sunday night.

Marching toward the B.C. playoffs, Fletchers now have to wait and see who wins between Brodies and Firefighters in the other semifinal.

Sunday was Firefighters' day as they took a one-game lead in the series with a 5-2 win. The teams meet again Thursday at Heywood Park in what could be their final tilt.

Fine pitching and plate power scuttled Navy as Ken Sturrock and Gerry Stillson combined to hurl a five-hitter, and Fletcher's Chuck Gummer had a big day at the plate with a two-run homer and a triple.

Totems Romp To Easy Win

Little Leaguers wound up everything but provincial championships Sunday as BCGE Totems swamped Victoria Sports 22-6 in the final game of the James Bay Little League.

Totems erupted in the third inning to pull into a 16-run lead on a 13-run splurge that was paced by Jim Coulson's grand-slam homer.

Officials called the game at the end of the fourth when the outcome was beyond doubt.

The win moved Totems to two and one-half games on top.

Marlene Again Player to Beat

MONTREAL (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit, Canada's No. 1 woman golfer, starts out today in defence of her Canadian ladies' open amateur title against 31 challengers.

A big, hopeful field of more than 100 was shaken down Monday in a tough qualifying round to 27 Canadian girls and four Americans — plus the poker-faced little champion from Fonthill, Ont.—for the perilous, swift elimination match play competition.

The first round draw indicated no particular worries for Marlene or for the small but highly ranked American delegation. For the Canadian girls, otherwise, there were cut-throat matches galore.

AIMS FOR FIFTH

Marlene is gunning for her fifth open title. Last Saturday she won the Canadian ladies' close championship for the seventh straight time. In the six years she has won the open four times.

From the way she waltzed through her qualifying round Monday with a four-under-par 73, she will take a lot of beating even at match play from anybody.

Three challengers from south of the border were next in line.

Mrs. Maurice Glick, of Baltimore, Md., eight times state champion of Maryland, shot a par 77. Marjorie Burns, a tall, capable golfer from Greensboro, N.C., shot 78. Mrs. C. F. Spalding, of Greenwich, Conn., shot 79, ad Mrs. Norma Woolworth, of New Canaan, Conn., qualified easily with 84.

Another American, Kathy Newton, of Cleveland, lost out in a playoff for the last qualifying spot. The playoff was for scores of 90.

Mona Morup of Calgary grabbed the last place at the third extra hole.

Mrs. Streit today meets Mrs. R. D. Bagley of Winnipeg, who shot 84 in her qualifying round.

The Canadian representation is a cross-country challenging field, including 14-year-old Gail Harvey of Toronto who qualified with an 87.

Closest score to Marlene's 73 Monday was 81, belonging to Janet MacWha of suburban St. Lambert and Kay Helleur, of Woodbridge, Ont.

Gold Cup Bids Set Fast Times

SEATTLE (AP) — The Gold Cup qualifying record was broken twice Monday as the first of the 20 speedboats expected to enter Sunday's main event here began qualifying runs on Lake Washington.

Miro Slovak, a Czech airman who fled to the West and became a speedboat pilot, pushed the Miss Wahoo to a record of 112.344 miles an hour over a three-mile course.

Two hours later Bill Stead drove Edgar Kaiser's Maverick at an average of 117.054 to top Slovak's mark.

The marks bettered the 108.160 set last year by Such Crust III on the Detroit River. Faster qualifying speeds have been set, however, on the old 3¾-mile Lake Washington course.

Gary Druce set the win pace as he hit for three, while in the second encounter, Oak Bay's Jasper Bomhof held his team up, scoring four of their five goals.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then Ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia. (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Thomas Dygert, aged eight, of Detroit, Mich., for his question:

Who Was Nostradamus?

His real name was Michel de Notredame. Nostradamus was the pen name he used, the name with which he signed the books he wrote. He lived in the sixteenth century, some 400 years ago. And some of the things which Nostradamus wrote amaze people to this day. Your old Andy, however, is more interested in what Nostradamus did than in what he wrote.

Young Michel was born in St. Remi, France, on Dec. 13, 1503. As a boy, he was a splendid student. At school in Avignon he was interested in philosophy and humanity. From these noble studies he learned about his fellow men and the difference between good and bad conduct. Michel came to the conclusion that he could help his fellow men best by being a doctor of medicine. At the age of 26 he graduated from Montpellier as a qualified doctor of his day.

For the next 15 years, Dr. Michel de Notredame treated his patients in various small towns of France. Of course, medical treatment was very different in those days. Chances are the doctor tried to cure his patients by letting out blood from their veins. There were no anticeptics, no antibiotic drugs and surgery was rare and dangerous. However, Dr. de Notredame did better than most. Twice his home town was attacked by the dreaded plague. And so hard and so well did he work to save the sick that his fame spread over the whole land.

But the busy doctor was not satisfied. He wanted to do more to comfort the sick and worried people in his care. He had the notion that they would like to know what would happen in the future. Naturally, we would all like to know the future. But Dr. Michel had the idea that our future depends upon what the stars do. He was an astrologer, a person who claims to tell the future from the stars.

There are astrologers today. They amuse us by pretending to figure out little messages from the stars. But religious people and sensible people frown when we take this fun too seriously. Andy thinks that astrology is a playful parlor game. No one can know the future for certain. What will happen next year depends a great deal on what we do this year. But we have to wait to see the results.

In Dr. Notredame's day, a great many people took the game of astrology very, very seriously. Maybe the good doctor also took it seriously. In any case, he wrote a book of verses. Each little poem claimed to be a prediction of things to come. However, he did not sign his book by his right name. He used the name Nostradamus. Perhaps he was only spoofing and did not want his friends to take him too seriously. But they did.

People puzzled over the poems of Nostradamus trying to figure out what he meant would happen. For his words were as mysterious as the future itself. Does he mean this event will happen, or that one, they wondered. When an event did happen, they said "Ah, that is what he meant." They kidded themselves that Nostradamus could foretell the future.

His fame spread and he was invited to spend his remaining life at the court of France. He added more and more writings to his fortune telling. Even today there are people who try to puzzle out what he meant. But his writings are still as big a puzzle as the mysterious future—for which we all must wait.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Kathy Wingenbach, age 9, of Leadville, Colo., for her question:

Is the koala bear a real bear?

The cuddly little koala bear is not really a bear at all. He is a member of the clan of marsupials, the pouched animals. The fat little koala is a relative of the leaping kangaroo. Both are natives of the big island continent of Australia. Most of the world's marsupials are Australians, but one member of the clan lives in North America. Our native marsupial is the shy little opossum—a very distant cousin of the koala bear.

The koala bear is a sleepy, lazy fellow who dreams away most of the time perched in a tree. He has a most charming face with large nose, bright eyes and a pair of floppy, furry ears. His thick, soft coat is ashy grey and he feeds on eucalyptus leaves. Junior is an only child. As a marsupial, he spends his cradle days in Mama's furry pouch. But he soon scrambles out and views the world as he clings to Mama's back.

ONLY GAL IN TOWN

Lover Boy Platypus Deserted by Spouse

NEW YORK (AP) — Penelope, the Bronx zoo's shy girl platypus, has walked out on her lover boy.

No Marilyn Monroe, Penelope. But as platypuses go, she's got what it takes—webbed feet, duck bill and a broad tail. She's about 13 inches long and a curvesome two pounds.

To Cecil, the zoo's mate platypus, she was a living doll. And why not? She's the only lady platypus in town. In fact, she and Cecil are the only two platypuses outside Australia.

Penelope disappeared July 26. Zoo keepers have dug up 185 feet of mudbank without finding her. They don't know whether she's somewhere on the zoo grounds or whether she's headed elsewhere.

"If she's outside, people should know that she's absolutely harmless," acting curator of mammals Leonard J. Goss said. "She hasn't any teeth and she dines on earthworms and crawfish."

Automobile Battle Between Hubby, Wife

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — An outraged wife chased her husband around town in her eight-year-old car, repeatedly ramming his brand-new one, police said Monday.

When the dust settled the husband had fled afoot, leaving a car that was ready for the junk heap, and his spitfire spouse was in jail. Police reconstructed events this way:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smallfield, both 42, argued while drinking at their home. The subject: other women. Smallfield departed before his wife had finished the dispute.

He hopped in his car, then she in hers.

She caught him at a corner and banged into him, shouting: "I'll teach you."

She slammed into him again at another intersection shouting, "Turn around and fight like a man."

After the third hit the husband lit out for the side streets, and lost his pursuer.

With a sigh of relief, he headed for his office. That was a mistake. Mrs. Smallfield was lying in ambush. Whammo!! Another crumpled fender.

Smallfield abandoned ship. As he hiked away, he heard repeated crashes as his wife slammed her car again and again into his.

Booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, Mrs. Smallfield admitted all, police said.

"But," she told officers, "you would have done the same thing yourselves."

SCOUT JAMBOREE ROUND-UP

B.C. Boys See Musical Ride For First Time in England

SUTTON PARK, England (Reuters)—Several British Columbia scouts got their first look Monday at the RCMP musical ride—in a performance nearly 7,000 miles from home.

The British Columbians are part of the Canadian contingent at the world boy scout jubilee jamboree here, attended by 34,000 scouts from 84 lands.

The Canadian scouts flocked with thousands of others to watch an RCMP police detachment which is on tour in Britain go through its musical paces at the jamboree arena.

Afterward, Ted Winslow of Vancouver said:

"It's the same thing as happens all the world over. We've lived in Canada all our lives and yet we've never seen the Mounties give a musical display."

A number of B.C. scouts have helped erect large paintings of Cathedral Mountain and the Lions near Vancouver at the entrance of a Canadian sub-camp site.

ATTRACT VISITORS

"It was quite a job getting this thing up," said Courtney Brouson, of West Vancouver. "It's more than 10 feet high but it was well worth it because it has attracted so many visitors in the last few days."

Winslow told of a meal he and two other Scouts had in a London restaurant.

"David Pym, from Point Grey, in Vancouver, went up to the counter and ordered 11 hamburgers, five milk shakes, five orange drinks and five side orders of chips for three of us.

"The waitress thought it was a terrible joke, and David had to repeat the order three times before she decided she had better give him what he wanted.

"She was still more amazed when she saw David devour most of it himself."

The British Columbia Scouts have rigged up a miniature sawmill, worked by a donkey engine, outside their encampment. Daily they cut chunks off a large red cedar log brought over from Canada and distribute pieces of cedar wood to visitors.

SUTTON PARK, England (CP)—A midnight storm forced hundreds of Boy Scouts to evacuate their tents in this world jamboree camp, but camp life was quickly getting back to normal this morning.

Upwards of 600 scouts, including a small segment of the 1,500-strong Canadian contingent, sought temporary shelter under marquees, in the camp theatre and in private homes in the area.

Camp officials said there was "no panic" among the 35,000 scouts from 84 countries and that the camp "is rapidly getting back to normal."

An inch of rain fell on the 750-acre campsite in less than an hour, covering low-lying ground and washing out some telephone lines.

SLEEP ON SHELVES

At Camp Copenhagen, one of the hardest-hit sub-camps, a troop from London, Ont., had a huge fire going to dry out their clothes. Another, from Newfoundland, spent the night "sleeping in tiers" on the shelves of an equipment store.

A number of Canadians turned out in the rain to dig trenches around the camp hospital tents to keep rain from seeping into the sick quarters.

Taking the rain in stride were scouts from British Columbia.

"We started singing One More River to Cross, and pretty soon the whole camp was taking it up," said Fred Sexsmith of West Vancouver. "What's a little rain? It is just one of the normal risks of scouting."

Jamboree officials called a special press conference to ease the minds of parents around the world. Officials denied earlier reports that 1,000 scouts had had to be evacuated to nearby private homes, schools and public halls.

"The facts are that certain parts of the camp did suffer unpleasant conditions, but these were quickly handled by the boys hemselves," an official statement from jamboree headquarters added.

A visitor to this ninth world jamboree camp, surveying the impressive sight of 35,000 boys from 84 countries living under canvas in close harmony, would answer "no." But many Scout leaders at the camp are inclined to reply with a qualified "yes."

For the main topic of discussion among Scout leaders at the camp is the problem of "leakage"—the term used by scoutmasters to describe the movement's loss of boys in the transition stage between Wolf Cub and Scout.

"It is much easier to get the boys than to keep them," says Robert Hertog, 38-year-old Toronto manufacturer and head of the 185-man Canadian contingent.

In Canada at least half the Wolf Cubs—age eight to 11—drop out of scouting before becoming full-fledged Scouts. And the number who carry on to become rover Scouts, aged 17 to 24, is about one per cent of the total Canadian membership.

The problem is by no means confined to Canada. A survey of British Scouts undertaken in 1954 showed that less than 50 per cent of the Wolf Cubs became Scouts and that the number of Scouts was declining.

"When Canada and some other countries have twice as many Cubs as Scouts there is something seriously wrong," says Archie Lewis of Belleville, Ont., deputy Canadian leader.

"Part of the trouble is that the youngsters are growing up faster than they used to and it is difficult to retain their interest."

NEW BRIDGE URGED

VANCOUVER — Mayor Fred Hume said Monday he will ask the provincial government to speed up plans for a new First Narrows crossing of Burrard Inlet.

Heavy traffic jams on the present Lion's Gate span prompted his approach.

"I am going to ask Premier Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi what they intend to do," Mr. Hume said. "It's up to them to decide whether they want a second bridge or a tunnel, but whatever it is, something must be done quickly."

SUTTON PARK, England (CP) — Does the Boy Scout movement need a new Baden-Powell to inject new life into the world-wide youth organization?

TRIPLET GIRLS TRIPLED HOPES

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Dawn's husband always wanted a daughter and he got one. But seven minutes later he got a second and five minutes after that he had three.

Mrs. Dawn, 22, gave birth to triplets in the general Hospital Saturday. Her comment Monday night was:

"I'm really feeling quite well, and I'm delighted because my husband always wanted a daughter."

Pants Bandits Pocket Loot In Game Raid

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A gang of pants-bandits broke up the oldest established permanent floating crap game in Philadelphia and got away with an estimated $50,000.

Armed with shotguns, pistols and knives, the bandits invaded the basement of a private club—supposedly leased for a wedding reception—where a group of about 50 gamblers were shooting dice.

The dice players were forced to hand over their wallets and take off their trousers.

Police said later they had been trying to locate the game for more than a year. They said the game was held in different places each week and that players had to have at least $1,000 to bet before they were admitted.

Patrolmen heard a group of men shouting.

They found some 30 men in their undershorts, stumbling around in a darkened cellar looking for their trousers.

"What's going on here?" the police asked. The only answers they got were unprintable.

Risque Show To Continue Despite Ban

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., (UP)—Producers and cast of a summer stock production of "La Ronde" here have stuck to the adage, "the show must go on," in spite of church condemnation, banning, and having their licence revoked.

The risque French play was ordered closed by selectmen last week after citizens complained it was "lewd" and "objectionable." Owner of the theatre has evaded the action putting on the show free of charge. The playhouse has been packed every night.

Prince Philip, Youngsters On Yacht Trip

COWES, Eng. (UP) — The royal yacht Britannia steamed out of this channel port Monday night, carrying Prince Philip and three royal youngsters—Prince Charles, Princess Anne and Prince Michael of Kent—on a six-day cruise.

Except for little Anne, the party was strictly stag. Queen Elizabeth did not accompany her family on the outing.

Able Seaman Dennis Ivory was assigned to keep an eye on young Charles, whose first reaction to shipboard life was to throw everything movable overboard.

"Dennis will have to be on the lookout," another crewman told newsmen. "Charles—we all call him that—is likely to get into plenty of mischief. The last time he was aboard he squirted the crew with a hose they were using to clean the decks."

The royal heir, who had made two previous trips on the Britannia, scampered up the gangway Monday night, without waiting for his father, to pay his respects to Vice Adm. Sir Connolly A. Smith, the yacht's captain.

(BB PLUS) "SOMETHING OF VALUE" (Royal) — What western reader hasn't shuddered as he read newspaper accounts of British residents of Kenya being slaughtered by the ruthless Mau Mau?

MGM's "Something of Value" makes the grisly subject as real as life. Under the taut direction of Richard ("The Blackboard Jungle") Brooks (who, according to accounts rewrote author Robert Ruark's best-seller for the screen because he didn't believe the facts presented) the picture glows with excitement and action.

Unfortunately, however, the sermon that goes along with the action—that violence settles nothing and that man is man, each with his equal rights, whether he be white or black—is laid on a trifle too thickly so that swallowing it becomes so difficult that it is hard to concentrate on the film.

★ ★ ★

ROCK HUDSON takes the whites' side of the story of Kenya and Sidney Poitier the blacks'. Raised together they are like brothers. Then trouble comes between them, brought about by friends on either side of the color line. Eventually Poitier heads for the hills and rises to become head man of the Mau Mau. Meanwhile Hudson becomes leader of the Whites. Under Brooks' careful hand the cameras spy upon both camps to find the leader of each slowly becoming disgusted and distrustful of the motives of his own kind.

The entire cast, Hudson, Poitier, Dana Wynter, the girl Hudson marries; Wendy Hiller, Robert Beatty and the rest play their parts with feeling. And when the curtain finally falls most thinking patrons will realize they have witnessed an honest attempt to paint an honest canvas of an ugly picture and, therefore, have received something of value.

Strike Stops Big Air Show

NEW YORK (AP)—A work stoppage by American Broadcasting Company technicians in several cities disrupted programs off and on Monday and knocked one major night show off the air.

Later it was learned settlement was reached in the dispute between the network and the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians.

Fiery Soprano Hailed By Athens Audience

ATHENS, Greece (UP) — Singer Maria Callas received a rousing ovation Monday night for a concert postponed from last week under strong public protest.

The fiery soprano, born in New York of Greek parents, cancelled her Athens fesival concert, at the last minute last Thursday, complaining of a sore Throat. There were reports of planned disturbances, however, by groups who objected to the $9.000 fee she asked for her two scheduled performances here.

The protests had died away by Monday night and an audience of 6,000, including high government officials, applauded her singing loud and long.

RELUCTANT CELEBRITIES

Judge Warns Stars To Heed Subpoenas

HOLLYWOOD, (UP) — Superior Judge Herbert V. Walker warned today he would issue bench warrants and send uniformed officers to haul into court any of the more than 100 subpoenaed movie stars who fail to appear as scheduled at the Confidential Magazine criminal libel trial.

The warning came as the trial entered its third day with the selection of a jury still not completed. Both the prosecution and defence hoped to seat a jury sometime today and open testimony.

Walker said he issued the warning because of some reports that reluctant celebrities have indicated that they would ignore subpoenas to appear as "defence witnesses".

The trial directed against two west coast representatives of Confidential and its sister publication, Whisper Magazine, was adjourned Monday after the prosecution and defence had examined 44 prospective jurors. At the end of the day's proceedings, 12 persons were given tentative approval to be seated on the jury but none was actually approved by both sides.

The subpoenaed stars were on "two-hour call" to testify at the trial which began last Friday. Defence attorney Arthur Crowley predicted the trial would last at least six months if he went ahead with his plans to put stars on the spot by asking them about stories printed about them in Confidential.

Some film colony leaders are working full steam behind the scenes to prevent the trial from turning into the biggest Hollywood scandal since the Fatty Arbuckle case.

PRESSURING

While the trial proceeds in Los Angeles Superior Court, filmsters were reported to be pressuring the attorney-general's office and Judge Herbert Walker to have the case settled out of court — or at least conducted without the lid being ripped off Hollywood boudoirs.

One executive at a major studio reportedly is working full time to prevent more than 100 subpoenaed stars from being called to the witness stand by the deefnce to testify as to whether stories about them in Confidential were true.

The attorney-general's office that brought the charges against the magazine has been visted by at least one studio public relations expert. Attorneys for film stars also have been pleading for a quick settlement.

PIANO SPEAKS FOR HUNGARIAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Hungarian pianist Georgy Cziffra, 36, faced with reporters who couldn't speak Hungarian, was having a hard time at his press conference Monday night because of his uncertain English and French.

Then he had an inspiration. He beckoned the group into his room and spoke to them in the language he understood best: Music.

The reporters understood, too. They listened raptly as Cziffra pounded out immortal compositions by Bach, Hummel, Strauss and Liszt with the mastery that has ranked him among the world's top 10 pianists.

Cziffra, who fled Hungary during last fall's revolt, will play in a Montreal festival concert tonight.

Crosby Not There When His Auto In Minor Crash

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—An automobile owned by Bing Crosby was involved in a minor accident near the entertainer's Pebble Beach home Monday, but none of the Crosby family was involved.

Sally Anne Blaine, 18, of Los Angeles, was driving the car, apparently one being used by the crooner's son, Lindsay, who is stationed at nearby Fort Ord. She was described as a niece of actress Loretta Young.

Riding with Miss Blaine was Phyllis Wanda Harris, 13-year-old daughter of Phil Harris, and Alice Fay.

Miss Blaine was treated at hospital. Two of three persons in the other car were shaken up.

MEET CALLED WITH NO HOPE OF MEETERS

SHEFFIELD, Eng. (Reuters)—The secretary of Sheffield's Cutlery Manufacturers' Association stayed in his office Monday for a meeting he knew wouldn't take place.

Allan Sykes deliberately twiddled his thumbs because of an Act of Parliament passed in 1791.

It laid down that the association should meet on the first Monday in August, which now is Britain's traditional bank holiday Monday.

No one has attended the meeting for more than 100 years but Sykes still had to call the meeting and wait two hours in case someone showed up.

Magnificent Myra, Bruised But Unbowed, Toasted by Swimming Clan

By DINAH KERR

Ol' Man Juan de Fuca's biggest threat in many a murky night, Myra Thompson held court at the Monterey Restaurant Monday.

Traces of her courageous advance on the strait Sunday still hung in scrapes about her neck and feet, but Myra shone with happiness.

After all, hadn't she pulled the beard of the ol' man, and won Victoria's heart and the Jaycee's pocketbook—all in the space of 16 hours, and 31 minutes?

Nine of the field of 17 swimmers in the mass assault on the strait attended the Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored reception.

The compact 22-year-old girl had whipped every swimmer in the room. But now they were offering their congratulations on the unbelievable swim that had taken her within dreaming distance of Port Angeles.

And Myra had been dreaming. "When I saw the street lights of Port Angeles, I really thought I would make it," she said.

"For the last hour of the swim I was spending the $5,000 prize money."

Then, 1½ miles from Ediz Hook, the ebb tide carried her westward, and the big dream was over.

Now Myra's looking for a lady masseur.

She didn't get much sleep after the swim because "every time I dozed and moved, the pain in my muscles woke me up."

"I still can't get up and down stairs very well," she said.

Officially engaged to her trainer Vic Anderson while in Victoria, Myra hopes to be married on February 14, Valentine's Day.

Marriage won't interfere much with Myra's swim career. "As long as I'm winning, I'll keep it up," she said.

Myra received a $2,500 cheque and the strait challenge trophy from Jaycee president-elect Ira Hill. Her speech of thanks to the Jaycees, her crew, and "all the people who were pulling for me" was short and simple.

"I'm more nervous standing up here than in the starting line," she said.

Second prize was presented by Harry Watts of CKDA to Amy Hiland, who confided earlier that she'd taken a dip in the strait a few hours after finishing her swim.

"It was like taking the hair of the dog that bit you," she said, "but it was fun and it limbered up my muscles."

She laughed at heavy bruises about her neck caused by chafing bathing suit straps. "That's where Doc (her trainer Dr. Bill Slater) whipped me," she said.

The $750 third prize was given to Victorian Billie Benedict, who didn't have any scrapes at all. She swam most of the strait with the top of her bathing suit down.

Billie lost five pounds in her game try. "Funny the things that come to you when you're swimming," she said, "In the last few hours all I could think was 'Well, at least I've started my reducing program'."

Gene Perle of Long Beach, winner of $500 fourth prize, announced his attempt on the strait wouldn't be repeated. "That cold water," he shuddered, "I can't stand it."

Although out of the money, five of the other swimmers plan to give the strait their best again.

"I'm mad now," said Paul Herron.

UCLA freshman Toufie Blake "definitely" will try again, and next time he'll train harder.

Victoria's Ben Laughren also claimed he wasn't "in good condition." "I'm very disgusted with myself," he said. Big Ben was last year's winner of the top prize money.

A Greek from California Jason Girganos, will try for a strait title in two weeks time "if I can get a sponsor," he said.

Next year the Junior Chamber of Commerce hopes to have a bigger prize list, and the challenge trophy will be awarded "for keeps."

Jaycee swim director Jim Nicol presented a box of cigars and a card signed by all the swimmers to Capt. Ellice Cavin, Island Champion skipper who has guided two swimmers across the strait.

He apologized for not making Myra the third. "The tide wouldn't work the way I wanted," he said.

LAST FROM THE STRAIT and first in the money early Monday was Myra Thompson (left), 22. The California co-ed received her $2,500 prize that night at a Jaycee reception. The $1,250 second prize was awarded Amy Hiland (right). Billie Benedict and Gene Perle followed with $750 and $500 respectively. MONTE ROBERTS

I had pretty well sworn off mentioning Strait swims in this space.

But I do feel I should make official record of my admiration for Miss Myra Thompson.

I think Miss Myra Thompson is my favorite swimmer.

I have never met the lady, but just look at the record:

She did not make the swim for the challenge, she did it for the dough.

She did not say she would lick Old Man Juan de Fuca next time.

In fact, to the best of my knowledge she made no mention of a next time, and shows every indication of settling down as a normal housewife.

All this, and she's pretty, too.

Gad!

But I think someone was rather neglected during the hulabaloo over the prize winners in the recent mass swim marathon.

This someone, of course, is Old Man Juan himself—the winner again and, in my book, still champion.

How many times has he lost?

Three times, that's how many.

And how many times has he won?

Take a couple of weeks off and count them. Old Man Juan has a won-lost record of which he can well be proud.

Caps off to Old Man Juan de Fuca—bathing caps, that is.

The swim day remark I liked best came just after the start, when the crowd along the Dallas waterfront was untangling itself.

From the centre of a busy mob scene came an exasperated voice::

"Why didn't the city charge admission? They'd have made a pot of money."

So much for swimming. Now for today's item of general knowledge to add to your memory file:

George Hees, the new Minister of Transport who was here Monday, is said to have an assured future in politics.

How can he lose with a natural theme song—"For Hees a jolly good fellow."

$112 Per Capita For Big Saanich Sewer Program

How do you sell a sewer?

That will be the problem faced by Saanich Council if it decides to go ahead with the master sanitary sewer plan drawn up by a Portland engineering firm.

H. Loren Thompson, consulting engineer, told councillors Monday night they would have to have a good selling program to convince ratepayers of the advantage of sewers.

He suggested a program of newspaper advertising and printed leaflets.

$400 PER FAMILY

The campaign will emphasize that the per capita cost of the $16,000,000 long-range plan would be $112, or about $400 for a family unit.

This is about the same cost as a septic tank, but councillors agreed home-owners will "howl" when council asks for the money.

Mr. Thompson advised council that storm sewers are not practical in Saanich at its present stage of development.

SANITARY SEWERS

"With the money you have it would be better to concentrate on sanitary sewers," he said.

Mr. Thompson appeared before council to explain the master sanitary plan drawn up by his firm, Stevens and Thompson of Portland, Ore.

He recommended that the municipality concentrate on improving its open drainage system, particularly the Colquitz River.

Spiritualist Minister Dies; Rites Thursday

Rev. Harold Moore, 51, of 1228 Oscar Street, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Monday after a long illness.

With his wife, Rev. Elsie Moore, he had been co-pastor of the Open Door Spiritualist Church, Cook Street, since coming to Victoria six years ago.

Prior to that he served Spiritualist congregations in Winnipeg. Mr. Moore was born in Barnsley, England, and came to Canada in 1914.

Surviving are the widow, two daughters, Mrs. W. B. Naylor, and Sylvia Gail, both of Victoria; one grandson; his mother, Mrs. Martha Ann Moore, Victoria, and one brother, Lawrence, in Virden, Man.

Rev. Mildred E. Fedde of Ellensburg, Wash., will officiate at a funeral service in McCall's Chapel Thursday at 3 p.m., to be followed by cremation.

Blackberries Top Jumbo Fruit Crop

A bumper fruit crop on Vancouver Island with estimated increases this year over 1956 as high as nearly 6,000 per cent in at least one major fruit category, were predicted today by provincial agricultural officials.

The jump in all major fruit production this year is attributed to a come-back from the heavy 1955 frosts which drastically cut production last year.

Heaviest production increase expected is in blackberries. In 1956 only 100 crates were produced; this year 6,000 crates are anticipated for shipment, giving a 5,900 per cent boost.

APPLES DOWN

Only estimated drop this year is in apples, from 16,429 boxes last year to 16,000 this year. Close and yellow transparencies are already over their peak, but other varieties are "doing well."

Here's the fruit breakdown: Strawberry production in 1956 was 50,279 crates; this year it will be around 64,000, a 27 per cent increase.

Loganberries in 1956 totalled 15,374 crates, and this year will be about 55,000 crates, a 257 per cent increase.

Black currant production is up only slightly by comparison, a mere 25 crates from the 275 in 1956. This is still nearly a 10 per cent rise.

Plums also will be up, from 1,800 crates to 2,000.

On the vegetable front, the growth of second early potatoes are in full swing, although damp chilly weather the past two weeks has all but halted growth of corn and tomatoes.

Pastures are good, kept green by the cool, moist period.

In 1956 total value of Vancouver Island fruit production was $348,197.

Esquimalt Moves To Head Off 'Tenements'

Construction of "tenament" buildings will be ruled out in Esquimalt.

The new municipal zoning by-law, to be given first reading by Esquimalt Council next Monday, limits apartments to two dwellings per level.

The restriction is imposed because council is "quite concerned" about the tendency to build "tenament" style apartments with three or four dwellings on one level," Reeve A. C. Wurtele said.

"With a four-plex crowded on a lot that's too small for it, there isn't sufficient space for parking cars," the reeve said. "The crowding of garbage cans and washing lines alone takes away from the value of other homes in the district."

The by-law also restricts Gorge Park and Fernhill district to single family dwellings, and combines garage and commercial areas.

Night Course Planned on New Municipal Act

District municipal officials will be able to get first-hand instruction in understanding the new B.C. Municipal Act.

A special course on the legislation is to be included in the fall and winter syllabus of Greated Victoria Evening Classes.

The instructor will be deputy minister of municipal affairs J. E. Brown.

The new act which sets the rules for every phase of municipal government will be main subject of study at the forthcoming Union of B.C. Municipalities convention at Nelson.

Victoria aldermen have prepared 50 pages of suggested amendments.

The Greater Victoria School District evening division will have 14 other new courses to offer an anticipated enrolment of 4,500 adult students when classes begin September 30.

ESQUIMALT TO ACCEPT GRANT FOR GORGE PARK FROM KINSMEN

Esquimalt council will give formal approval next Monday night to a Victoria Kinsmen offer of $20,000 for beautification of Gorge Park.

Parks and playgrounds chairman Coun. James Bryant recommended acceptance of the offer at a special council meeting Monday.

Development would be confined to 21 acres on the south shores of the Gorge and, for footing the bill, the club specifies that "Kinsmen" must appear in the title.

The municipality will follow a plan prepared earlier this year by municipal engineer John Graeme.

New Snag Faces Centennial Plan

Lake Land Dedication As Park Held Essential

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria's four-in-one Centennial project was approved by Oak Bay council Monday night but there was still doubt today it will be okayed by the provincial government.

Oak Bay followed Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt in sanctioning the latest plan for disbursement of the $141,408 pot.

Recommended by the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee was expenditure of $70,908 to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, $52,000 to Beaver-Elk Lake development, $10,000 to Esquimalt's Gorge Park and $8,500 to Oak Bay to be spent on any permanent project it desires.

OAK BAY AWAITED

So far Oak Bay has not made public its plan.

No application to the province for its share of the project money can be made until Oak Bay acts on the matter.

The province will contribute 60 cents per capita to each municipality. The municipalities must match the grant.

Most worrisome question in the minds of municipal officials is whether the provincial government will approve the Beaver-Elk Lake expenditure.

At present, Victoria owns the land which would be developed. Some officials feel, unless this land is forever dedicated as a park, the province won't approve.

COULD SELL

Theoretically, the city could sell the land for other purposes, at some future date, unless it is dedicated.

Mayor Percy Scurrah said today he did not feel his council would approve dedicating the land unless there is some "reasonable compensation."

He felt either Saanich or the Capital Improvement District Commission should repay the city for its past investments in the lake area.

The mayor said prior to 1910 the city had spent $37,000 in the park and more had been spent since.

He felt the land to be developed under the grant would be the all-round margin of the lakes and the area in which the old filter beds are located.

MUCH MORE

If the city is to dedicate all the holdings near the lake, the compensation should be "a good deal more."

"The question of dedication was not discussed when council agreed to put its (Centennial) share into the project," he stated.

If the province balks at putting money into undedicated land, the next move will be up to Saanich or the CIDC. If neither will buy the area from the city, Greater Victoria Centennial Committee will be back where it started.

The provincial centennial committee meets Wednesday morning to consider applications from B.C. points which have decided on their project.

Greater Victoria's application has not yet been sent in.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today:

Jerry Denis Walter, 1697 Earle, $10 for failing to carry auto registration in a conspicuous place.

Harvey Alexander Shaw, 320 Cook, $10 for unloading a passenger while his cab was in an intersection.

John R. Bean, 615 Vancouver, $35 and 30-day licence suspension for careless driving.

In Esquimalt police court Monday:

Michael Ernest Rye, RCN, $25 for driving without a licence.

William Pittman, RCN, $25 for violation of driver's licence restriction.

IN MADISON, WIS. THIS WEEK for meetings with credit union leaders in the western hemisphere will be Robert F. Williams, 1012 Finlayson Avenue, treasurer of the Credit Union National Association. Williams is president of the Victel Credit Union for telephone employees, treasurer of the Greater Victoria Chapter of Credit Unions and a director of the B.C. Credit Union League.

Four RCN Ships Return Friday

A four-ship naval training fleet will return to base as Esquimalt Friday after a two-month training cruise in the Pacific.

They are the cruiser Ontario, the Tribal class destroyers Cayuga and Athabaskan, and the new DDE Skeena. Aboard are cadets enrolled in the regular officer training plan.

Ontario will dock at the government jetty, approached through HMCS Naden; the other ships berth at Dockyard.

Arrival time is 10 a.m., and friends and relatives of the ships' companies will be permitted entry.

Another training cruise, also for junior officer candidates, started Monday when two frigates sailed on the third and final cruise of the year for University Naval Training Division cadets.

HMCS Sussexvale and HMCS Ste. Therese will visit Pearl Pearl Harbor and Californian ports, returning to Esquimalt Sept. 1.

Japanese to Survey Iron Ore in B.C.

Japan will make its own survey of British Columbia's iron ore resources before deciding whether to set up a steel plant here, D. Toru Hagiwara, newly-appointed Japanese ambassador to Canada, said on his arrival in Victoria today.

"As yet we do not know the extent of British Columbia's iron ore resources," said the dapper, quiet-spoken envoy who flew here from Vancouver to meet Premier Bennett, Chief Justice Gordon Sloan and Hon. Robert Mayhew, former Canadian ambassador to Japan.

Mr. Mayhew gave a luncheon in his honor at the Union Club.

Dr. Hagiwara said Japan is now importing about 500,000 tons of iron ore from B.C. every year.

NEED MORE

"That is a very small contribution to our steel industry," he said. "We must be sure there is very much more than that before we can consider setting up a steel plant here."

He added that the delegation of Japanese industrialists which visited B.C. last June will present "a formal report" on marketing problems in about two months' time.

"We have already three big steel mills in Japan which enable us to work much iron ore into finished steel. Therefore we are not very much interested in buying pig iron at the moment."

By the end of 1957, Dr. Hagiwara expects Japan will have purchased goods from Canada totalling about $120,000,000 and including some 900,000 tons of wheat.

$60 MILLION

Over this same period Japan will export more than $60,000,000 worth of goods to Canada consisting mainly of textiles, steel products, heavy machinery, oranges, canned fish, agricultural goods, toys and cameras.

"Our trade with Canada and the United States is improving," he said, "but we must also try to improve our trade with the Asian countries.

"With this in mind we have been thinking of offering assistance to Asian countries to which we do not pay reparations."

The ambassador will return to Vancouver Wednesday for a visit to Kitimat and Kemano.

Bridge, Tunnel Under Study For First Narrows

The provincial government is studying the need for another crossing — either bridge or tunnel — at Vancouver's First Narrows, Premier Bennett said today.

The premier made the comment after Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver said the government should do something "quickly."

Lion's Gate Bridge, operated by the provincial Toll Highways and Bridges Authority, cannot handle the heavy flow of traffic to the north and west shores, Mayor Hume said.

"We're watching the situation," Mr. Bennett said.

Call for Help Believed False Alarm

Air-sea rescue headquarters at Vancouver today gave up attempts to trace a mysterious wireless call for help, believed to have originated in the Nanoose Bay area.

A boat moored in Nanaimo Harbor reported the call Monday night. The garbled message mentioned West Wind and possibly Nanoose Bay.

An air-sea spokesman today said it was almost certainly a false alarm.

Q.—When was lacrosse first played in Victoria?—L.T.L.

A.—It was played at least as long ago as August, 1893. Lacrosse was among the attractions announced for the Victoria Exhibition of the Agricultural Association in August of that year.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Lost Keys No Problem—They'll Return by Mail

By PENNY SAVER

You won't need to worry if you lose your house or apartment keys if you take advantage of the service one Victoria firm offers. For 25 cents, you can buy a key ring with a plastic tag giving a number on one side and the firm's name and address on the other.

Your number is registered, and the finder just needs to pop the keys in the nearest mailbox. The firm will return them to you.

It won't help you much, of course, if you're a person who loses your keys in the accumulated junk in the bottom of your handbag or in your other coat pocket.

The leaves of your indoor ivy or philodendron plants may lose their gloss, especially later on when you have the furnace on.

You can restore their lustre by giving them a beauty treatment with a product I've found. You just dab it onto the leaves with a sponge—it won't do the plant any harm and it will definitely improve their appearance.

A bottle is 50 cents.

MADE HERE

I came across some whimsical little ornaments today, made of seashells and ceramic work on a driftwood base. They're the handiwork of a Victoria woman.

Every one is different, and most have pert little gnomes hiding under shells or peering out over tiny flowers. They're $1 each.

Similar but smaller are place-card holders, set with dainty violets and roses. These are 50 cents each, and would be nice for party guests to take home afterwards.

If members of your family complain that ordinary cups don't hold nearly enough coffee, why not get them giant size cups or mugs?

The cups would hold about four times as much as an ordinary one and come in several designs at $2.50 each. The huge mugs are $2.

China banks in the form of rather smug-looking pigs will hold plenty of pennies. One is marked "For Baby," the other hopefully says "For My Mink". Price of these is $1.95.

I'll be pleased to tell you where I found any of these items if you call me at 2-3131.

On Etiquette

Neighbors' golden wedding:

We have received an invitation to a Sunday afternoon reception to be given in honor of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of a neighbor couple. We are not close friends or long-time neighbors, but we like them very much and they have always been so nice to our children. Please advise what we might take along as a gift—something moderate in price. Are gifts expected for such an occasion? Also, may we take the children along?

Louise Davis

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS:

People receiving invitations to a golden wedding anniversary party usually wish to send the couple something, but there is no definite obligation. Those giving such a reception primarily want the family and friends around to share in the happy occasion. The main thing is their "pleasure of your company." Such a milestone has a priority over others, such as birthdays or any other anniversaries, so the thought of a gift is logical. If you are getting something have it delivered to the couple's home before the reception, rather than take it with you. I hope you know the couple well enough to know what they might like or need and that can be your guide. It is difficult for me to make suggestions, not knowing the couple, but if you puurchase something, be sure it is for both and not something personal for just one of them. Your gift doesn't have to be gold. It can suggest it. It doesn't have to be expensive either. Yellow flowers, such as roses, would be appropriate. Unless your children were included in the invitation, don't take them.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

After Marathon These Readers Gain Again

It is time to remember how rapidly the next few weeks will pass. Before we know it summer will have gone and fall will be upon us, with a huff and puff. I am sure you know what I am thinking! This is just camouflage before I throw the hook into you.

What about getting into those fall and winter clothes? Have you gained a few pounds during the hot months, or are you going to buy some new clothes? Had you promised yourself that you will never again go shopping when you are overweight? Even 10 extra pounds can make that a chore instead of a pleasure.

This week I have been printing some letters from Marathon winners. This one will give you cause for thought.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman, This is the third year I have joined your Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon. I do not know what I would have done without it! Every year I lose from 15 to 18 pounds (all I need to lose). I also drop inches and look like a different person but, come fall and winter, I have gained them back.

"I have a friend who always sends for your Marathon when you print letters from winners in the late summer. SHE gains in the summer, uses Marathon and loses and then gains it back during the next summer. She is writing to you again this summer. We are disgusted with ourselves and wish you would give us some advice as to how to stay the way we are at the end of Marathon. I guess we are just weak minded and shouldn't expect you to help. Thanks."

This writer and her friend are not weak minded but just human. They evidently have will power once they make up their minds. I think I can give them, and any of you who are in the same boat, some helpful suggestions.

In the first place don't go haywire the minute you stop dieting. Add just a few hundred calories to your daily intake and only a FEW of the things you like especially and had given up, not ALL of them.

With a dieting period as long as eight weeks you will have somewhat lost your craving for the rich calorie packed foods, anyway, so that it is easier to use them moderately and occasionally. Do not let it become a habit again.

Second, make an absolute rule that you never will become more than five pounds overweight, six at the most. If you go on a trip where part of the fun is eating foods which are different or if you have house guests or an especially gala week or so, enjoy them, but not past five or six pounds worth.

Usually those who gain easily lose easily. Anyway if you go after the first five pounds as soon as they arrive in the spots you least want them, you never will have a big reducing job on your hands.

If you missed my Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon and want to get in shape for fall and winter clothes, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the Marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Singing Play Highlights Pupils' Recital

A traditional German singing play, "Let Us Build a Town," by Paul Hindemith, was highlight of a recital presented last weekend by pupils of Miss Nora Haimberger at her studio on Cook Street.

Other outstanding items were a two-piano arrangement by Bach with Mrs. K. Greenwood and Miss Haimberger; a talk on Haydn's life by Eddie Edgson and a surprise symphony theme by Katherine Alexis.

Others on the program were Kathleen Joy, Steven Russell, Tanya Charters, Frances Coalston, Timothy Vernon, Stephanie Soulsby, Jennifer Soulsby, Olivia Greenwood, Peter Gibb, Louise Kennedy, John Bergbusch, Hanna Okland and Judith Andrews.

Hamburgers Jerez

Hamburgers take on a special taste when marinated for a minute before broiling in a mixture of half a cup of soy sauce and half a cup of dry Spanish sherry, either a dry fino or nutty amontillado, to which has been added half a teaspoon of ginger. The marinade is good on both beef or lamb hamburger, and also on steaks or shish kebab. A green salad, crusty bread and Spanish sherry and soda water completes the meal.

YOUNG COWGIRL TOP HAND AT SOUTH ALBERTA RANCH

HIGH RIVER, Alta. (CP) — The top hand at Happy Valley Ranch is attractive, hard working, capable—and feminine.

Working in a man's domain isn't new to Muriel MacLeod, 22-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. MacLeod, High River, 30 miles south of Calgary.

Last spring she was the only girl to graduate from the faculty of agriculture at the University of Alberta.

How did the agriculture students like having a female invade their classes?

"They were a little suspicious at first," Muriel says, "but when they realized I was really serious and meant to stick to it, they were wonderful. All of them—even the professors—treated me just like one of the boys."

FLIGHT AROUND THE WORLD

Paul in Damascus; Jesus on The Via Dolorosa; Live Again

By STELLA GUMMOW

Jerusalem, Jordan.

"We have followed, in story, Paul's journey to Damascus, his blindness and his healing by Ananias. And we went into the home of Ananias which is preserved as a small chapel. We saw the window from which Paul was let down to escape from the city and we visited the bazaars.

Stella

"That same afternoon we drove to Amman, the capital of Jordan, over the desert and across a border bristling with guns and soldiers. It was a hot drive over arid country enlivened only by the numerous Bedouin camps, herds of cattle, goats and in the villages, the patient camels carrying the unthreshed wheat in huge loads on their backs. We saw threshing being done with horses that drew a kind of stone boat round and round to break and release the grain and we were told hay was cut by hand—although we did see one combine.

"Bedouin women appear to have a hard life but we were told they prefer the wide open spaces and would not take kindly to enclosed rooms and baths.

"In Amman, we stayed at the Philadelphia Hotel, and learned that the city was originally called by that name. Opposite this hotel was the semi-circle of an old Roman amphitheatre and we could still see where the animals were let into the circle to stage contests in those days of Roman occupation.

Jericho, Elijah and the Dead Sea

"The road to the Red Sea was hot and desert-like and we passed many refugee camps. We saw the ancient city of Jericho, in ruins; the new Jericho, a typical Arab village; the famous well where Elijah changed bitter water to fresh (there was a large refugee camp beside this well) and we crossed the River Jordan.

"The Dead Sea was certainly salty but the shores were crowded with people who were going swimming, most of them refugees from nearby camps.

"Back in Jerusalem we stopped to see the Good Samaritan Inn, built on the site of the old inn of Bible times, made famous because of the parable of Jesus and the Good Samaritan. Today's inn is new and spacious with many open balconies.

"Today we visited the Holy Sepulchre and the old city of Jerusalem, 53 acres in area. Within the ancient walls we saw the pool of Bethseda.

"We have also trod the Via Dolorosa, the narrow road that Jesus walked carrying his cross to Calvary. Each spot where he stopped is marked by a sign to designate it.

"We have seen the site of King Solomon's Temple and the famous rock inside the mosque, preserved through the centuries.

"Frequently we have seen signs of the bombings in the 1948 war and in conversations, the year 1948 comes up time and again.

"We have also met many refugees from Palestine. The driver of our car tells us, quite simply, that he goes across the border every so often (a six-mile walk) to see his people and his own country which he says, is very beautiful.

"We are told he would be hung, if caught!

Beirut, Lebanon.

"Returning to Beirut from Jerusalem, we saw from the air, the country we had traveled by car, the rugged hills of Jordan and Syria, far below.

"Women of the Village Welfare Society met us on arrival here and took us out to visit three villages in the hills of Lebanon. They had been destroyed by earthquakes and rebuilt of cement. (Stone is plentiful here but strangely, cement is cheaper.)

"In one centre girls were being taught to draft patterns for clothing and they had made their dress forms of paper. Children of a school started by the Village Welfare Society were on hand to sing for us. They were getting ready for the laying of the corner stone of a new school . . . the first time they have had a school in that particular area.

"This is our last night in Beirut! Tomorrow we fly to Rome!"

Mrs. Diefenbaker Now Settled in Ottawa Home

OTTAWA (CP)—Small white boats plied the Ottawa River, skirting lazily-drifting log booms as the wife of Canada's prime minister entertained the women of the capital's press corps recently.

The scene from the drawing and dining rooms of 24 Sussex Street is becoming a familiar one to Mrs. John Diefenbaker.

She and her husband moved into the prime minister's official residence in late June. The sedate, greystone mansion at the edge of Ottawa's business district stands on a high bluff facing the sunrise over Quebec's Gatineau Hills and the Otawa River.

Wearing a summery, blue and white dress, Mrs. Diefenbaker chatted informally over coffee with the 10 reporters.

The three-storey house, built in 1868, was acquired by the federal government in 1949.

Completely altered, redecorated and furnished with everything from ashtrays to paintings from the National gallery, it was opened in 1951 with Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent as its first resident prime minister.

CHANGE DISHWASHER

The 20-room mansion combines servants' quarters, guest rooms and the Diefenbakers' private quarters—two large bedrooms and a comfortable living-room with a small kitchen.

So far, the major changes made by the new residents have been to exchange a noisy dishwasher for large, stainless steel sinks in the main kitchen and to install an automatic clothes washer and dryer.

With its furnishings, produced mostly in Canada from Canadian materials and its best silver bearing the Canadian crest, this house with its winding staircase and splendid chandeliers stands on a tree-lined street. The French Embassy is next door.

Government House, residence of Governor-General Massey, is around the corner. Flowers to brighten the still-formal rooms at 24 Sussex Street often come from Rideau Hall's greenhouse.

Mrs. Diefenbaker, who greets guests with warmth, charm and dignity, expects that the more homey touches will be gradually introduced as the house is lived in by its new residents.

Books from the Diefenbakers' Prince Albert, Sask., home, for instance, soon will fill empty bookshelves in the pine-paneled library.

NAVAL FAMILY MOVING EAST

Mrs. Beverly J. Gillespie, with Archie, nine; Anne, two years; Stephanie, seven, and nine-month-old Laura Lee, will leave with Lieut.-Cmdr. Gillespie on Aug. 22 to motor to Ottawa, where Lieut.-Cmdr. Gillespie has been appointed to the staff of the director of naval information. The young family has lived in Victoria for the past three years. En route to Ottawa they will visit relatives in southwestern Ontario.

Couple United With Double Rings

A double-ring ceremony in First United Church united in marriage Miss Beverly Anne Vye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Vye, Kings Road, and Bernard Robert Peatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Peatt, Gordon Head Road. Malcolm Hamilton played organ music and Rev. C. Leighton Streight officiated.

Multi-colored gladioli decorated the church, and white satin bows tied with sweet peas marked guest pews. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a strapless, floor-length white gown of tier upon tier of chantilly lace over satin. She wore a short lace jacket with lily point sleeves, and her chapel-length veil of illusion net was held in place with a rhinestone tiara. Cascading red roses and white carnations formed the bridal bouquet.

Matron of honor, Mrs. J. Lamb, chose a blue taffeta ballerina-length dress. She carried a colonial bouquet of white gladioli. Bridesmaid, Miss Judy Bone, and bridesmatron, Mrs. W. Robbins, wore identical gowns of crushed strawberry taffeta. They carried yellow gladioli colonial bouquets with yellow feathered carnations in their hair.

Flower girls Misses Leigh Prince and Elaine Peatt were dressed alike in delicate pink nylon dresses and carried white and yellow gladioli posies.

Mrs. Vye, mother of the bride, chose gown of wine lace over taffeta, with black accessories and a pale yellow corsage. Mrs. Peatt, mother of the groom, wore a dress of beige lace over taffeta with dusty rose accessories and a corsage of rose carnations.

Cliff Wilkins acted as best man, while Ernie North and Bud Vye, brother of the bride, were ushers.

Colored gladioli decorated the Uplands Golf Club, where a reception was held. A white lace cloth crocheted by the late grandmother of the groom covered the bride's table, which was centred by a three-tier wedding cake flanked by white candles in silver candelabra. W. R. Bone proposed a toast to the bride's happiness.

For her honeymoon, which will be spent motoring to San Francisco and through the interior of B.C., the bride chose a polished pink cotton sheath with blue Swiss linen duster lined with the dress material, black and pink accessories and a tinted pink gardenia corsage. The couple will live on Dean Park Road, at Sidney, on their return.

It makes good sense that a firm which has its own light pick-up service can offer just a little more for those small items of furniture and household furnishings that are surplus to your needs. It's also reasonable to assume that with 20 years experience in valuing in Victoria we can give a fair estimate. Please phone Wally Gray's used furniture. 2-1631.

Nat King Cole Hosts Harry Belafonte on Channel 4 at 10

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

WEEKEND COMMENT—Either amateur tennis big guns are only cap pistols when measured against top calibre pros or they've got the injun sign on Australia's Lew Hoad. Or maybe it's a bit of both.

Certainly the boy from Down Under looked more like a chump than a champ, Sunday afternoon, as America's Tony Trabert took him apart at the seams in the $10,000 Masters round-robin tournament as seen from Los Angeles via Channels 11 and 12. In spite of the occasional flashes of brilliance Hoad, time and again, flubbed shots in a manner that would have made a beginner turn in his racket for a snowshoe.

When promoter Jack Kramer lured him into the pro ranks with a nice, fat $125,000 it was expected he would soon be waging a nip-and-tuck net war with the world's No. 1 racquet-wielder Pancho Gonzales.

He may yet, and we hope he does. But you could never prove it by his showing Saturday when Gonzales virtually chewed him up in a rout described as 6-3, 6-2, which occupied only 35 minutes of Pancho's day. To date the towhead has won few against the play-for-pay boys. Everyone, it seems, can beat the two-time champion of Wimbledon.

But what must be undermining Hoad even more than the beatings is the outspoken encouragement from his professional playmates. Sunday, Pancho Segura, Gonzales, Trabert and the rest asked the public not to sell Hoad short. They were all helping him to be as good as they were.

★ ★ ★

WHILE WATCHING the tennis matches another thought struck us. If there is indeed such a difference between the amateurs and the pros then the August 22 bout between world heavyweight king Floyd Patterson and challenger Olympics champion Pete Rademacher should be halted before it is begun and someone is killed.

Be that as it may, right now we are on the outs with the whole fight picture. They are not repeat not going to televise the fight of the year, the meeting between Carmen Basilio and Sugar Ray Robinson set for Sept. 23.

By the way, daytime viewers shouldn't be surprised if their favorite program on Channel 5 suddenly turns up equipped with a rooster tail. Through the week, beginning at 10 a.m., KING-TV will interrupt its regular programs to show any hydroplanes on Lake Washington attempting a qualifying run for the Gold Cup.

Whopping Turnout To See Exhibition

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Cincinnati's slugging power came too late—in a four-run ninth-ning—and Detroit beat the Redlegs, 6-5, Monday night in a major league exhibition baseball game.

The two big league teams drew a record throng of 21,689, largest in the two-year history of the stadium.

Detroit built a 6-1 lead into the final inning. Then a walk, a double, a single and George Crowe's line drive homer over the right-field fence brought Cincinnati four runs.

Peer Slapped For Repeating Royal 'Slur'

(From Times News Services)

LONDON—An angry Briton slapped Lord Altrincham on the face tonight after he repeated his complaints against Queen Elizabeth's royal retainers in a nationwide television broadcast.

The outspoken peer was accosted when he left the headquarters of the Independent Television Authority in downtown London.

Lord Altrincham, whose complaints against royal "priggishness" fired off a nation-wide tempest, had just told a TV audience he had not meant to be "personal or beastly" in his criticism of the Queen.

But he said "the boss" should fire some of her advisors.

A crowd was waiting when Lord Altrincham left the studios and one man stepped up to him, aimed a forceful slap at his face and cried out: "That's for insulting our Queen."

Lord Altrincham, a husky 33, haughtily replied, "You can't even hit hard enough." He did not return the blow.

GRABBED BY POLICE

Two husky bobbies, meanwhile, grabbed the attacker and marched him off to Bow Street police station.

The man who delivered the slap was short and grey-headed and barely could reach up to the tall, lithe peer.

The outspoken peer refused to retract his criticisms of the Queen's court. But he denied that his royal criticism were "personal."

"They were not meant to be personal or beastly or anything like that," Altrincham said. "I have only the warmest personal feelings for the Queen as I should."

Altrincham said his criticisms instead were made "in hopes of bringing about a change in the atmosphere which surrounds the Queen and in the country's attitude toward the monarchy."

APOLOGY DEMANDED

In a television appearance immediately after Altrincham's, but over the nationalized British Broadcasting Company, the leading councillor of the city of Altrincham called on the peer to "apologize publicly" to the Queen.

"The Queen is the head of our family," Councillor Edward Chorlton said. "She should not be criticized in public by peer or commoner and a peer like Lord Altrincham should certainly know better."

Meanwhile, Lord Altrincham found a friend today in the League Against Cruel Sports—the people who side with the foxes against the aristocratic hunting set.

"We congratulate Lord Altringham on his outspoken and forthright comments on the tweedy nature of the mediocrities who surround the present Queen," said the league's executive committee.

'NOT SERIOUS'

Reported in good condition after surgery, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower was resting today in Walter Reed Hospital in Washington. The operation was for "a benign condition" and took two hours to perform.

British Set To Attack Rebels

MANAMA, Bahrein (Reuters)—British ground forces which have been moving into Oman now are ready to start counter - attacks against rebel tribesmen, an official communique announced today.

As the British troops made last-minute preparations at a newly prepared field base, representatives of the Arab League met in Cairo to formulate a uniform plan of aid for Oman in its "struggle against the British."

The league already has called on Communist China and 19 other Afro-Asian states, as well at its own members, to intervene in the fighting between the rebellious Iman of Oman and the pro-British sultan. The Imam's representative in Cairo Monday also asked the United States and Russia to stop the fighting.

Preparations for British ground moves followed numerous RAF strikes by rocket-firing jet fighters against large stone and mud forts controlled by the Iman.

BASE READY

An official British spokesman said Brig. J. A. R. Robertson, who is commanding ground forces in the Arabian peninsula state, has established a logistical field headquarters in Oman in readiness for operations against rebel tribesmen.

Open Sky Plan For All Bases Asked by Reds

LONDON (UP)—The Soviet Union asked today why the Western disarmament proposal for open skies inspection did not include American and NATO bases in North Africa, the Near East, Turkey and Pakistan.

The question was the first official Russian reaction to the plan advanced last week at the five-power disarmament conference here by U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

It was put before today's session of the conference by Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin as one of three formal questions in which he sought further information about the West's plan.

Dulles set forth the Western proposal last Friday. He offered to open all the United States and most of Western Europe to air and ground inspection in exchange for similar rights in the entire Soviet Union.

The first proposal was to open all the territory of North America north of the Mexican border to air and ground inspection in return for similar inspection of all of the Soviet Union.

Should this proposal be rejected, the Western powers offered similar inspection of an Arctic zone to include all of the Soviet Union, Canada, Alaska, Denmark and Norway north of the Arctic circle, and specified portions of the United States and the Soviet Union, as well as the Kamchatka Peninsula, the Aleutians and Kuriles Islands.

If the Soviet Union accepts either of these zones, a zone of inspection in Europe will be offered. This would extend southward from the Arctic circle.

35,000 HP Plant For Power Board

By PETER MURRAY

Plans for a major new hydro development on the northern end of Vancouver Island were disclosed today by the B.C. Power Commission.

Cost of the project on the Kokish River is estimated at about $12,000,000.

Commission officials emphasized the development is still in the early planning stages.

An application for a water licence on the river now is before the provincial water rights branch.

A. F. Paget, water rights controller, said he is awaiting detailed plans from the commission and representations from any interested groups before dealing with the application.

The Kokish River flows into the eastern shore of the Island at Beaver Cove, five miles southeast of Alert Bay.

Plans call for an 86-mile, 138,000-volt transmission line to Campbell River to join with the commission's main system.

A rock-fill dam would be built half a mile downstream from the confluence of the east branch of the Kokish, which would raise the level of Bonanza and Ida Lakes.

A 5½-mile conduit, including a 600-foot-long tunnel, would carry the water to the 35,000-horsepower generating station about a mile from Beaver Cove.

The area is one of the most remote on the Island. There are no roads and the only access is by sea or air.

New Road Needed to Build Line

Unless the proposed Kelsey Bay-Port Hardy road is completed by that time, the Commission would have to put through its own road for construction of the transmission line.

Highways department engineers now are surveying the long-talked-of northern road link. Logging firms with big holdings in the area would pay part of the cost.

Logging is the main activity in the region. Northern Pulpwood Ltd. has an operation in the Kokish Valley and a base camp at Beaver Cove, and Canadian Forest Products has a shipping centre at Beaver Cove.

The new hydro project would supply low-cost power to Port Hardy and Beaver Cove, and likely increase the demand there.

Total area drained by the Kokish is 110 square miles. It is not considered to be a fish river and no problem is expected in this regard.

The Kokish runs almost parallel to the larger Nimpkish River but has a greater head than the Nimpkish.

Exact estimate of the cost has not been determined, but Commission officials said it would be at least as much as the Ash River development, which is expected to cost $12,000,000.

The Ash River project, first stage in the three-part Somass Valley development in the Alberni district, is of a similar size.

Cost of transmission lines is a major item in both projects.

The Kokish River plan is the Power Commission's latest in its efforts to keep pace with the rapidly-expanding demand for power on Vancouver Island.

The fact that it is going so far north indicates there are few suitable hydro sites left on the Island.

Besides the Somass Valley and Upper Campbell developments now underway, the Commission is investigating the possibility of harnessing the Homathko River on the mainland and bringing the power across to the Island.

Mine Union Asks Retaliation Against U.S. Metal Tariff Boost

Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A plea to the Canadian government to stockpile lead, zinc and copper and to consider retaliatory action against the United States if the American Congress approves higher tariffs against base metals, was made Tuesday to the Canadian government by a delegation from the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

A brief was submitted to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Hon. Gordon Churchill, minister of trade and commerce; Hon. Davie Fulton, justice minister, and Hon Leon Balcer, solicitor-general, by the executive of the union.

The union said unemployment was already mounting in the base metal industry as a result of falling world prices. Five base metal producers had already shut down and the largest, the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of British Columbia, was cutting down production.

To provide immediate relief the union officers asked the government to establish support prices and to stockpile lead, zinc and copper.

Nels Thibault, Sudbury, president; Harvey Murphy, Vancouver, vice-president; William Kennedy, Winnipeg, national vice-president, and W. Longridge, Toronto, secretary treasurer, headed the delegation.

In their brief the union officers contended that the new sliding scale of tariffs on lead and zinc proposed to the U.S. Congress by President Eisenhower's administration would raise duties three times as high as those now in effect and intensify the instability of an already unstable industry.

"Accordingly the union urges the government of Canada to consider taking "retaliatory action," the brief declared.

Messrs. Thibault and Murphy said they received a good hearing from the cabinet and that the cabinet ministers promised that the government would give early consideration to the problems outlined in the brief.

The submission said: "The U.S. is dependent not only on Canadian lead and zinc which they now propose as far as possible to exclude, but it is even more dependent on Canadian nickel, Canadian iron ore, Canadian asbestos and Canadian pulp and paper.

"Let the U.S. government be told that if the higher tariffs proposed against lead and zinc are put into effect, Canada for its part will tax and place restrictions on the export to the U.S. of nickel, iron ore, asbestos and pulp and paper," the brief said.

French Troops Ambushed By Algerians

ALGIERS (Reuters)—French troops backed by planes and artillery today battled with a large Algerian rebel band that killed 21 soldiers in an ambush in the rugged Bou Zegba mountains.

Reports reaching here said 21 other French soldiers were missing and 20 wounded in the ambush. Sixteen rebels were reported killed.

Fires started by shells and bombs could be seen in Algiers, 44 miles away from the battle area.

Five French generals commanded the operation. The rebels were reported armed with mortars, bazookas and machine-guns.

According to reports, a unit of French soldiers mistook the rebels—dressed in khaki uniforms and steel helmets—for their own and were shot down at point-blank range.

Gov't Appointments Expected Wednesday

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he will announce appointments of some new cabinet members and parliamentary assistants Wednesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker, talking to a reporter, declined to say how many in each category would be named.

He would say only that there would be "some" of each.

There now are five cabinet vacancies, and Mr. Diefenbaker has 16 ministers besides himself. He holds temporarily the external affairs portfolio.

The ministerial vacancies are agriculture, defence production, health and welfare, citizenship and immigration, and mines and technical surveys.

It is expected one of the new appointments will be to the agriculture portfolio, now held by Resources Minister Harkness.

The parliamentary assistants will be the first appointed by Mr. Diefenbaker since his government took office June 21.

The preceding Liberal government had up to about 15 assistants at various times.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he expected the appointments would be made public about noon Wednesday.

Anti A-Bomb Demonstrators Held in U.S.

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) — Eleven demonstrators against atomic tests were arrested today as they attempted to enter the Nevada test site.

There was no violence as Atomic Energy Commission guards took the demonstrators into custody at the main gate of Camp Mercury, headquarters for the U.S. nuclear testing program.

The demonstrators are members of the committee for non-violent action against nuclear weapons. The group's membership comes from pacific organizations throughout the country.

The first group of three which started through the gate was led by Lawrence Scott, 48, ordained Baptist minister, formerly of Chicago and Kansas City.

AEC guards arrested them when they advanced two feet inside the gate.

The arrests were made under the state's trespass law.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, who created the morning freshness and sparkling dew, renew in our lives each new day fresh hope and the will to move on to the day's tasks with zeal. Strengthen our determination to do the work before us to the best of our ability, knowing that Thou wilt show us the answer to the most difficult problems if we will put our trust in Thee. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

Bennett Rejects Debate Challenge On Debt, BCHIS

Premier Bennett has declined an invitation by Erhart Regier, CCF MP for Burnaby-Coquitlam, to debate British Columbia's debt picture and hospital insurance.

Mr. Regier issued the challenge after the premier sent out a challenge of his own to the editors of a Vancouver newspaper. (The newspaper suggested Mr. Bennett write a letter instead).

To Mr. Regier's invitation the premier said Monday:

"We have lots of debates on these subjects in the proper place—the legislature — where the CCF is represented."

Lou Boudreau Fired

CHICAGO (AP) — Lou Boudreau was replaced today as manager of Kansas City Athletics by Harry Craft, a coach with the American League club.

Bomb Blast in Store Marks Cuban Unrest

HAVANA, Cuba (UP) — A bomb exploded in a Woolworth store in the heart of Havana today, killing one person and injuring eight others. Some of the injured were reported in serious condition.

The rest of the city generally was quiet. There was no sign of a predicted general strike, since attempts to start a walkout apparently had failed.

In Santiago, a stronghold of rebel sympathizers, Americans who work there were sending their wives and children to safer places. It was reported that mounting tension in the capital city of Oriente Province might explode into large-scale violence at any time.

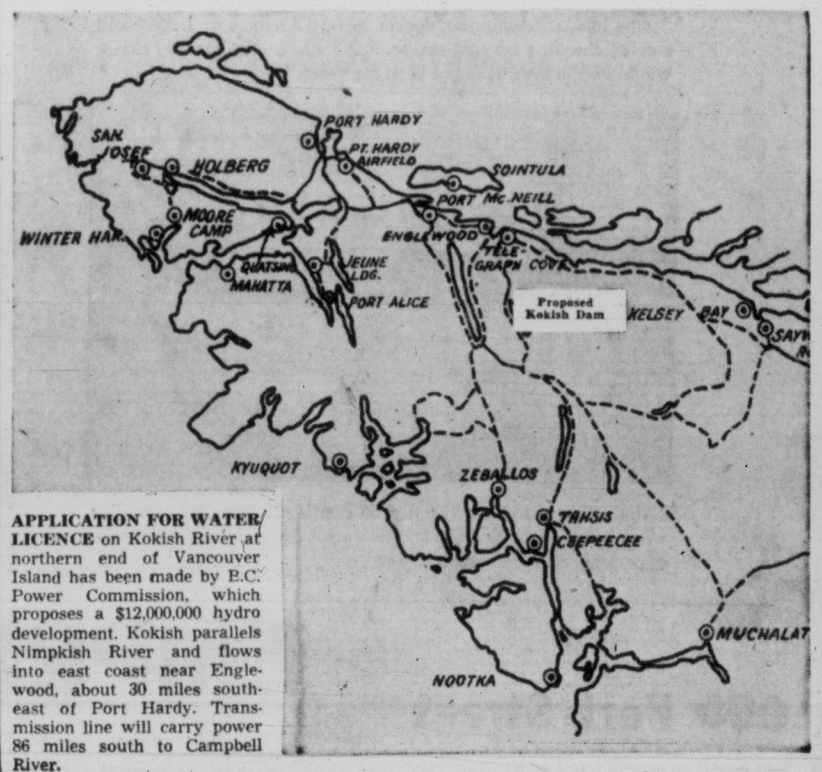
It was in Santiago that a demonstration against President Fulgencio Batista last Wednesday caused some friction in Cuban-American affairs.

The demonstration was staged during a visit to that city by U.S. Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith. Santiago police acted forcefully to crush the opposition, and Smith criticized the police brutality.

Cuban critics promptly condemned Smith for his comments, but U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gave the Ambassador a vote of confidence in Washington today.

Dulles told his news conference that Smith's remarks may have been technically unwarranted. But Dulles said he felt the Ambassador's comments were a very human reaction, and he hoped the Cuban government would understand them in their proper frame of reference.

Ten to 15 wives of U.S. employees of the Texas company's 14-million-dollar refinery in Santiago have left this troubled provincial capital in the past few days. Others are expected to leave soon.



APPLICATION FOR WATER LICENCE on Kokish River at northern end of Vancouver Island has been made by B.C. Power Commission, which proposes a $12,000,000 hydro development. Kokish parallels Nimpkish River and flows into east coast near Englewood, about 30 miles southeast of Port Hardy. Transmission line will carry power 86 miles south to Campbell River.

Bulganin Denies Illness Rumors

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Bulganin scotched any rumors about his health Monday night by his robust apperance at a World Youth Festival reception here.

Bulganin appeared in fine fettle as he raised several glasses of wine during toasts 3,000 delegates. Speculation about his health had followed his withdrawal from the top-level Soviet delegation going to East Germany Wednesday.

Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev was mobbed at the dinner by autograph hunters who pushed any piece of paper handy—including cheque books and bus tickets—for him to sign. The enthusiastic crowds shouted "duzba" friendship as they grabbed him around the neck.

Khrushchev was accompanied by Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, Defence Minister Georgi Zhukov and other members of the praesidium.

Many western ambassadors, including those of the United States, Britain, France and Italy, declined to come to the reception. They said their governments were not associated with the festival aims.

Speculation has been rife in the West that Bulganin may be ousted as premier.

Many experts believe Bulganin may have lost out in the big shakeup which brought the dismissals of Georgi Malenkov, Vyacheslav Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich from the party central committee last month. It was thought that he first sided with the Molotov faction but switched when he saw Khrushchev had the winning votes.

In Cario Monday, the representative of the Iman of Oman, fighting a pro-British sultan in a tribal war, went to the Soviet Embassy to deliver a message asking Russian aid to stop the fighting in the Arabian peninsula state. "It is better to change the name of the recipient from Marshal Bulganin to President Klimenti Voroshilov," the embassy said.

Observers think that if Bulganin does fall it will not affect Soviet policy-making, since he was largely a figure-head premier.

WHITE HOUSE TO BE HOME FOR QUEEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will stay at the White House during their Washington visit in October.

There had been some doubt whether the Royal Couple would be guests in the White House or in nearby Blair House, where distinguished foreign guests usually are housed.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty announced the decision today with the explanation that President and Mrs. Eisenhower are personal friends of the Queen and her husband and would like to have them in the White House where there will be an opportunity for informal chats.

Appointment of 685 teachers, 34 more than taught here last year, has been almost completed by Greater Victoria School Board it was announced today. There were 135 new appointments. The district student body is expected to number over 19,000 when school starts September 3. This is 1,000 more than were registered last year. Late registrations will be accepted at district schools later this month. Details will be announced.

Liquor Store Vote Opposed By Norris

It is up to the Liquor Control Board to decide whether or not Oak Bay can have a liquor store outlet, Reeve Fred Norris told his council Monday.

He was commenting on a suggestion by Councillor Fred Hawes that a referendum on the subject be taken among residents. Whether the vote was "yes" or "no", would have little bearing on the government board's decision, said the reeve.

The matter came up at council before a letter from LCB chairman Col. Donald McGugan was received and filed.

The letter was in answer to a council query asking feasibility of establishing the store, and enclosed signatures of approval from some 180 citizens.

The LCB reply was inconclusive, council agreed.

Reeve Norris said "To let him get away with an answer like that is balderdash."

Council also approved contract award for construction of a new municipal hall on the site of the old Oak Bay High School to Pollard Construction Co. for a low bid of $184,481 of the five tenders received.

HEALTH BILLS FOR REFUGEES PILING UP

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Health bills are piling up here as a result of Canada's generous open-door immigration policy for Hungarian refugees when the strict health requirements of the Immigration Act were waived.

Health authorities here today said about 10 per cent of the 33,000 refugee immigrants are now hospitalized or under active treatment for two diseases, tuberculosis and syphillis.

The two diseases bar immigrants from coming to Canada under normal conditions, but the barriers were lifted when Canada swung wide its doors to admit Hungarians after Communist Russia moved into that country.

The daily hospitalization and medical costs are now well over $25,000. The bills go to the National Health and Welfare Department.

Health authorities reported the rate of active TB cases among the immigrants is 5 per cent, or over. The rate for active syphillis cases is approximately the same.

U.S. Cyprus Aid Asked by Britain

LONDON (UP) — Britain sought United States support for a solution of the explosive Cyprus issue during last week's visit of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles but Dulles was cool to the idea, official sources disclosed today.

The Foreign Office also said it had been "in diplomatic contact" with both Greece and Turkey over the possibility of direct negotiations on the future of the troubled Mediterranean island.

The new moves followed long deliberations by the British cabinet in which Cyprus Governor Sir John Harding took part.

The Foreign Office denied Athens reports that London has actually sent out invitations to Greece and Turkey to a full-dress conference. The present efforts are described as preliminary soundings.

Present feelers are for a round table conference among Britain, Greece and Turkey—the chief parties in the dispute over the island.

But there is hesitation stemming from the dismal experience of the tripartite Cyprus conference convened in London in the summer of 1955 by then Premier Sir Anthony Eden which ended in total failure and in even sharper antagonism between Greece and Turkey.

Britain as well as the other powers want to avoid a repetition of this experience. The plan now is to hold, if possible, a new conference in which the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be represented as an observer.

NATO has agreed to mediate in the dispute, and NATO Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium is known to be ready to accept such a mandate.

Britain would also want the United States to identify itself with such a move by sending an observer to the projected meeting.

Liz Taylor Has Daughter

NEW YORK (UP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, wife of producer Michael Todd, had a girl by caesarian section today, a spokesman at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital said. The baby had not been expected until Oct. 15.

Both Mrs. Todd and the four-pound, 14-ounce baby are doing well, the hospital said.

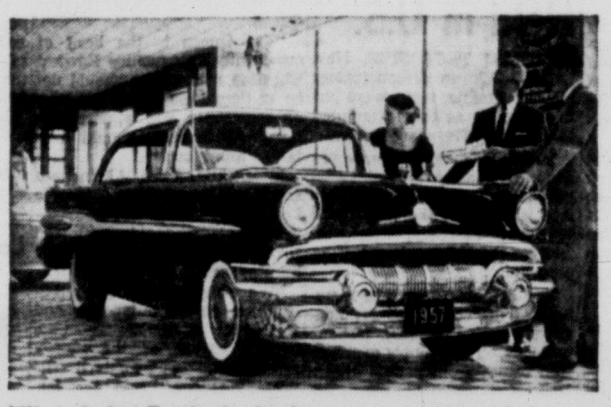
I bought Pontiac again!

"Seems like, suddenly you decide to buy a new car. I did—and started checking ads and makes. But I was pretty sure my choice would be Pontiac, as it has been for years."



"We looked at Pontiac in the showroom, my wife and I. It's got 'em all beat by miles for looks and style. And Marg—that's my wife—was wild about the new interiors."

"The dealer and I went for a Demonstration Drive. That was my first time behind a '57 Pontiac's wheel—and what an experience. Slickest, smoothest car on any road—and it convinced me!"

"I kind of hated to part with my '55 Pontiac . . . running as well as when I bought it. But the trade-in price certainly eased the pain of parting. Still looks good, doesn't it?"

"And here are the neighbours admiring our new Pontiac. And after the envious glances and pointed remarks I wouldn't be surprised to see them blossom out in a new Pontiac, too!

Preferred again, and again,

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

The 'Thin Man' and Leisure

WILLIAM Powell, 65, suave and sophisticated, has shaved off his whitening moustache and come to a significant philosophical conclusion.

"A man my age," says the urbane Mr. Powell, "shouldn't have to work if he doesn't want to."

Mr. Powell has always impressed me as a highly knowledgeable man. But when it comes to enunciating his philosophy of leisure, it seems that he doesn't "catch on very quick."

Stott

I have been saying the same thing for a couple of decades, only nobody was listening.

At that, I'm a little slow myself. Possibly four out of five teen-agers have already reached the same conclusions about work. If they haven't, they do an extremely good job of producing evidence which seems to support the case.

Back in the 'thirties, which most men over 45 like to talk about, we were sold on the idea that we wanted jobs. It was the old attraction of scarcity. There weren't enough to go around so they became hightly desirable.

THEY ONLY WANT AN INCOME

I've heard a few honest old Socialists dispute the point. These men of integrity have, on occasion, confessed publicly that they never did particularly want a job. All they wanted was an income.

Quite a few of today's youngsters haven't got around to the confession, but they're showing that actions speak louder than words.

The better-behaved youngsters do it very nicely. They appear eager to please. They talk a good helping-hand. They're ready to give you their assistance on this little project or that. But something almost inevitably intervenes between the offer and the performance:

They have attained a mastery of "tomorrowism." Sure they'll dig in and help—only would be it be all right if they did it on the afternoon of the next day. You see, today they were going to . . . and they present a long explanation of important plans made among themselves, plans which can't be put off to the future, like a chore can be.

The teen-ager, if my experience counts for anything—which I doubt—has not been sold on the nobility of toil. Neither were the teen-agers I remember 30 years ago. If you're old enough to think back that far, maybe you'll agree.

According to my recollection, packing in a load of wood was one of the most exhausting undertakings a teen-ager could contemplate. It was twice as hard as playing five sets of tennis, which also produced exhaustion. But that was different.

By the grace of progress, packing in wood is a labor which very few teen-agers face today. Oil and electricity and this marvelous age of ours have all but eliminated the woodpile as well as the woodshed, except for a few atavists living in the wilds of Shawnigan.

Mechanical inventiveness, petroleum and electronics have taken the agony out of a lot of work. They have helped to reduce any appreciation now existing for the nobility of toil, unless it's the labor of a football game, square-dance or general rough-house.

And it seems to me that the mere removal of labor from everyday activity and household operation shouldn't necessarily make us effete.

INTERNAL CONSTRUCTION

Only, under the old program, we who had not solved the problem of avoiding work whenever we wanted to seemed to build something into ourselves by working. Sometimes it was resentment. More often it was an inclination to persevere in order to get a job done. If it was hard, we had to work a little harder at it. That, I think, constructed a little more character in the person who undertook the chore.

Accept that theory, if you wish, but don't strain the logic by assuming virtue comes only from working harder than is necessary. You don't have to bail a leaking boat with a thimble to accomplish the bailing. And there isn't much sense in using a thimble when there are better ways of doing the job.

It seems to me that a lot of better ways will be found for doing all kinds of jobs as we move further into automation. Only what happens to the people who move into it? What kind of characters do they build when they don't have to work or develop the skills they once had to know for survival in a less mechanically advanced age?

Maybe the answer's not hard to find. You glide gracefully through a push-button life, pushing buttons that do the work for you until you hit the last button. It's rigged to make you work, as you would have worked without the other buttons.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Itching Skin

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Many persons ask what to do for an itching skin. Obviously, the person should see a skin specialist who will promptly check to make sure that he hasn't diabetes, or Hodgkins' disease, or extreme nervousness, or any of the other troubles that cause wide-spread itching. The doctor, of course, will make sure that there is no local disease of the skin. Itching between the fingers or in the groins can be due to the tiny itch-mite. Itching between the toes can be due to the mold that produces so-called athlete's foot. Itching of the shins of older persons in cold weather is due to a lack of sufficient oil in the skin. It is washed out in the morning bath, and the cure is to rub some cold cream or oil into the skin every day.

Dr. Alvarez

Itching in the crotch calls for careful examination, often by several specialists. In a big clinic the skin specialist, the gynecologist, the rectal specialist, the psychiatrist and the internist may all have to consult on the problem. Often the local itching is due in part to nervousness, and perhaps a psychic conflict.

UTERINE FIBROIDS

Every week a number of women ask me if they must have their fibroid tumor out. Usually they say that it hasn't bothered them in any way, and was discovered accidentally on a routine examination. They haven't been flooding; they are not anemic, and they have no pain. I am happy to note that, today, most of these women tell me that at least one or two of the surgeons they have consulted have advised against an operation. They have said that they could see no urgent need for removing the thing. It was silent, and they did not have any fear that it would turn into cancer. Especially when a woman is in her twenties or thirties and wants children, no surgeon wants to remove her womb.

Commonly, a hysterectomy doesn't do much harm, but we must face the fact that in some cases the woman becomes depressed and moody and unhappy; she may feel that her useful life is ended, and she may lose her sexual interest, thereby losing her husband. Because there are these dangers I see no sense in operating unless there is a definite reason for it.

I am so happy that today more and more gynecologists are saying that the mere presence of a fibroid or myomatous (muscular) nodule on the uterus is not an indication for surgery. We should remember that every third white woman has some fibroids, and every other colored woman has them. These nodules are made of muscle, much like the muscle in the rest of the uterus. The lump is not cancerous, and it very rarely changes into cancer. This happening is so rare that I cannot remember ever having seen a case of it. Sometimes the presence of myomas seems to interfere with a woman's ability to conceive, but I have known women with a good-sized tumor on the womb to have several children.

CRAMPS AND PAIN IN THE LEGS

Many elderly persons get severe pain in the legs if they try to walk fast. They have to stop and, after a few minutes, they can go on again. This is called intermittent claudication, and is due to the narrowing of an artery in the leg. With this narrowing only enough blood gets through for a resting muscle. When the muscle is active and needing more blood, not enough for it can come through. Then comes pain.

An expert can usually tell with tests whether it pays to try any of the drugs that are used to help this sort of thing. Experts tell me that in most cases the arteries are so stiff that even the best of the drugs will not do much good. In some cases, after tests show that the arteries can dilate with the help of drugs, a surgeon may go in in the back, and cut the sympathetic nerves that supply the arteries. After these nerves are cut, the arteries may remain more widely opened, and then they may supply an adequate amount of blood. In other cases the arteries are so stiff that cutting the nerves will not help.

Today, in bad cases, expert surgeons are cutting in, and replacing the narrowed bit of artery with a prepared piece of artery from an animal, or an artery made of nylon or some other material.

Naturally, most of us physicians do not see enough of this new type of work to know much about it, and hence usually the person will do well to go to some large clinic or university center where he can find the experts who know how to transplant segments of arteries. It is a wonderful new advance in surgery.

Perfection Needed For Show Standards

If you are jealously nursing a squash or marrow with the intent of putting it in one of the fall shows, be sure that the surface is free from blemishes, and the color even all over.

Jack

To prevent damage to the underside, place each fruit on a piece of wood or a sheet of glass, and to obtain the even color, turn each fruit.

Turning is quite an art and must be done carefully so that the vine is not broken. Seasoned exhibitors start when the fruits are quite small and thus eliminate the white mark on the underside.

When a class calls for a plate of berries, the plate should be adequately covered with the fruits. The number involved will depend on the individual size.

As you pull beets and carrots for kitchen use, cut a few roots crosswise as the judges do, and study the texture and colors. Whitish and red rings in a beet indicate old age. Light and dark rings are more pleasing to the judge, and a small core and wide flesh in a carrot will gather points.

The largest beans are not always winners. Prime condition for immediate eating is the standard. Where six or 12 of one kind of vegetable must be shown, uniformity in size, texture, and color takes high points.

As a guide to what the judges are looking for, drop into (or write) the Department of Agriculture, Douglas Block, Government Street, for a copy of Circular 50, "Exhibition Standards of Perfection for Fruits, Vegetables, Field Crops, Dairy Products, Eggs and Honey." All that title—and it's free!

Arabs Must Mend Social Systems Conference Told

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)—An Arab States spokesman said today the Arab League countries must abolish or drastically reform their obsolete social systems before they can become prosperous, democratic states.

Dr. Fayez A. Sayegh, acting director of the Arab States delegation's office in New York City said quasi-feudal systems of land holding, curtailment of women's rights and indifferent or oppressive uses of government power are obstacles to Arab progress.

He spoke at the Couchiching conference on international affairs on Lake Couchiching near Orillia.

Dr. Marshal McLuhan, of the University of Toronto, said true Canadianism consists of an "untaught and spontaneous habit of appraisal of other cultures and other scenes than our own."

Texts of both speeches were released to the press before delivery.

SEARCH FOR FREEDOM

Dr. Sayegh said his peoples' strongest urge is to "attain or to re-enforce our freedom, and to better our lives."

Resources development and creation of progressive and democratic societies in the Middle East depended on "the total eradiation or the essential modification of obsolete institutions, systems and outlooks."

There was an overpowering desire for unity among Arabs, cutting across artificial political boundaries which split the Middle East after the First World War.

If the formerly dominating powers reconciled themselves to a new nationalism in the Arab states and accepted them as equals, then the Arabs would certainly outgrow their bitterness and suspicion.

WON'T REPEAT MISTAKES

For, he said, the nations of Europe had evolved during centuries of struggle whereas the new nations of the Middle East and Africa are entering a world in which international organization is a reality.

"Nothing, then, makes it inevitable for them to repeat the costly mistakes committed by European nationalism."

Dr. McLuhan said Canadianism would "never be found in the search for an elusive national psyche." The country's national and literary identity would develop as she became more aware of the influences which "have so long postponed the development of this dubious egotism."

A rise in critical standards of literary work might be due to exposure to several media, he suggested.

There had been as "great enlargement of reading interests which has resulted from movies and television."

MINORITIES DEFENDED

Anti-Roman Catholic Motion Faces Church Council Defeat

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A demand that the World Council of Churches pass a resolution branding the Roman Catholic Church with suppressing religious liberties in some countries appears likely to be dropped.

Officials, assessing sentiment at a meeting of the council's policy-making central committee here, predicted this outcome today.

The proposals came Monday night in an impassioned speech by Methodist Bishop Sante Uberto Barbieri of Argentina, who said religious minorities are oppressed "wherever the Roman Catholic Church is dominant."

"I have been pleading for many years for the World Council to stand up in defence of liberty in these Roman Catholic countries," said the bishop. He termed the Roman Catholic Church a "totalitarian power" and said it forces itself on populations "not by the grandness of the gospel of Jesus Christ, but by political means and treachery."

"We should not keep silent . . . we should state the facts of the struggle and insist that the Roman Catholic Church have the same respect for Protestants we have for it."

The Roman Catholic Church does not belong to the World Council, which is made up of 165 Protestant and Orthodox churches in 50 countries.

The flareup came over a proposed resolution saying Protestants in Columbia have suffered "grave disabilities" and expressing hopes that the new government there will "restore religious freedom." It did not mention the Roman Catholic Church.

Rev. K. Slack of London called the statement "timed and tepid," and theologian H. C. W. d'Espine of Geneva also said it was inadequate.

He said religious liberty "means more" at the present in Communist Czechoslovakia and Hungary than in predominantly Catholic Spain and Columbia.

The Anglican bishop of Chichester, England, Most Rev. Dr. George K. A. Bell, said Bishop Barbieri's proposal "goes into deeper and bigger questions" than the council is prepared to appraise at this time.

He moved that the statement on Columbia be abandoned, and the meeting so voted. But officials said a general statement on religious liberty will be offered later.

1,000 Students Stage Riots Against Reds

PEIPING (Reuters)—Chinese Communist newspapers reported that more than 1,000 high school students in Nanyang, central China, rioted and demonstrated against the government June 12 and 13.

The reports said "counter-revolutionaries"—all since arrested—incited the students to smash the local Communist party offices and kidnap leading local Communists and beat them up.

Students at the school at Nanyang, on the Yangtze River, shouted slogans such as: "Welcome to Kuomintang Chinese nationalist party to come back quickly."

Gene Receives Applause But Roberto Grabs Cash

CHICAGO (AP) — Virtually all of the top name golf pros were girding themselves today for the start of the game's richest event — the $101,200 "world" championship.

While they waited for practice rounds on the Tam O'Shanter course where the battle for a $50,000 first prize and $50,000 exhibition tour contract begins a 72-hole grind Thursday, talk centred on Gene Littler.

Littler's course record-matching 63 Monday all but overshadowed the fact that Roberto Vicenzo won the all-American title.

It was Littler's last round effort that drew the applause, and not De Vicenzo's final 70 which gave the hefty Argentine, now a club pro in Mexico City, a 72-hole tally of 273-15 under par—and the $3,500 first prize.

Littler's final round equalling Lloyd Mangrum's mark set in 1948, ballooned him to second place with 277, worth $2,300.

Sam Snead was third with 278. Then followed Paul Harney with 279 and Art Wall Jr., Dow Finsterwald, Fred Hawkins and Bob Rosburg at 281.

LEONARD IN MONEY

Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a 69 and finished in an eight-place tie with 71-70-74-69—284, earning $775.

Littler would have won a $10,000 prize for breaking the tourney mark if he eagled the last hole. He was 120 yards away. The shot was near perfect. It hit in front of the pin and skidded to a stop 2½ feet beyond. He was down with a birdie three.

"But where I really lost the record was on the sixth hole," said Littler. "On the 445-yard sixth hole, a wedge shot hit the pin and stopped eight inches away. I got a par four, but if the pin had been out, I'd have gone in.

De Vicenzo uses a brassie without teeing up the ball on nearly all holes where others use a driver.

"I keep them straight with brassie. When I want to play a hook, I tee them up," he smiled.

PACE-SETTING FARMERS HOST BURNABY TONIGHT

With the Northern Division title of the Northwest International Baseball League all sewn up, Farmer Construction will take on Bill Kinder's Burnaby Athletics in an attempt to add a little padding tonight at Royal Athletic Park.

Manager Ed Ash is not certain who he will have working on the mound for Farmers, but it will be either veteran left-hander Art Worth or rookie right-hander Dave Emery.

Playoff time is drawing near and from the look of the Southern Division it will be Bellingham Bells who will be here to decide the playoff champion, possibly within the next two weeks.

Kerr Tops Field At Uplands Club

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Gorge Vale and Royal Colwood are in the midst of club championship play. Dr. George Bigelow rules at Victoria club and the quest for club crowns will end Oct. 6 when finalists at Uplands meet in a 36-hole final.

City titleholder Laurie Kerr took the first step in the direction of the Colwood championship Sunday when he posted a two-under-par 68 to take medalist honors. Laurie's steady 34-34 rounds gave him a five-stroke cushion over runner-up Dick Hanley.

Harold Lineham, Bill McColl and George Andrews tied for third, each with 74. With 81 good enough to qualify for the championship, others in the top 16 include Ken Brousseau, Tom Harris, Jim Robertson, Vince Clarkson, Mike Bartkow, Bob Woods, Don Ross, George Sparling, Vic Painter, Gil Anderson and Cy Spaven.

Scoring was steady but not spectacular. Painter, perennial threat for top honors in Island tournaments, related the day's sorriest story. He barely qualified with an 80.

The par-four 10th provided Vic with all the grief of an otherwise solid round. He knocked four balls out of bounds and wound up with an 11.

McColl also met with difficulty. Playing the 17th, and only one over par at the time, Bill's second shot landed in a fir tree and stayed there. He had to consider it a lost ball and took a penalty.

A field of 72 started out Sunday. Match play gets under way next weekend.

NORM BODEN

★ ★ ★

Chief threats for the Gorge crown advanced without mishap. Medalist John Merriman defeated Al MacLeod 3 and 2 while defending champion Norm Boden beat Hugh Fletcher 2 and 1.

Handicap champ Harry Donaldson recorded the easiest win of the day, 5 and 4 over Eric Barber, while Jack Storrie downed Al Senior one up.

★ ★ ★

The father-son combination of John and Mel Carlow both were forced into overtime. Mel had to go to the 20th to defeat Mike Kolb, the sharpshooting junior, while "dad" bowed out to Ron Cush on the 19th.

Others moving into the eights were Jack Clark, who downed Ted Bradshaw 3 and 1, and Jim McColl, Jr., who sidelined Roy Chappelle 4 and 3.

★ ★ ★

M. F. Smith, B. Cavanaugh and W. Hibbert each posted net 66s to tie for low net honors in the Class "B" championship played at Uplands. They'll play off for first prize later this week.

★ ★ ★

E. H. Williams won low gross honors while A. C. Watkins was runner-up.

Seniors will vie for the Harold Robinson trophy at Uplands next weekend.

Fletchers Drub Tars; Enter Final

Fletchers stepped from the semifinals into the finals in the Senior "B" Mens' Softball League playoffs at Heywood Avenue Park Monday when they handed Navy a 10-2 drubbing.

It was the second straight win for the Clothiers, who hammered the Tars, 5-2, in the semi-opener Sunday night.

Marching toward the B.C. playoffs, Fletchers now have to wait and see who wins between Brodies and Firefighters in the other semifinal.

Sunday was Firefighters' day as they took a one-game lead in the series with a 5-2 win. The teams meet again Thursday at Heywood Park in what could be their final tilt.

Fine pitching and plate power scuttled Navy as Ken Sturrock and Gerry Stillson combined to hurl a five-hitter, and Fletcher's Chuck Gummer had a big day at the plate with a two-run homer and a triple.

Totems Romp To Easy Win

Little Leaguers wound up everything but provincial championships Sunday as BCGE Totems swamped Victoria Sports 22-6 in the final game of the James Bay Little League.

Officials called the game at the end of the fourth when the outcome was beyond doubt.

Marlene Again Player to Beat

MONTREAL (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit, Canada's No. 1 woman golfer, starts out today in defence of her Canadian ladies' open amateur title against 31 challengers.

A big, hopeful field of more than 100 was shaken down Monday in a tough qualifying round to 27 Canadian girls and four Americans — plus the poker-faced little champion from Fonthill, Ont.—for the perilous, swift elimination match play competition.

The first round draw indicated no particular worries for Marlene or for the small but highly ranked American delegation. For the Canadian girls, otherwise, there were cut-throat matches galore.

AIMS FOR FIFTH

Marlene is gunning for her fifth open title. Last Saturday she won the Canadian ladies' close championship for the seventh straight time. In the six years she has won the open four times.

From the way she waltzed through her qualifying round Monday with a four-under-par 73, she will take a lot of beating even at match play from anybody.

Three challengers from south of the border were next in line.

Mrs. Maurice Glick, of Baltimore, Md., eight times state champion of Maryland, shot a par 77. Marjorie Burns, a tall, capable golfer from Greensboro, N.C., shot 78. Mrs. C. F. Spalding, of Greenwich, Conn., shot 79, ad Mrs. Norma Woolworth, of New Canaan, Conn., qualified easily with 84.

Another American, Kathy Newton, of Cleveland, lost out in a playoff for the last qualifying spot. The playoff was for scores of 90.

Mona Morup of Calgary grabbed the last place at the third extra hole.

Mrs. Streit today meets Mrs. R. D. Bagley of Winnipeg, who shot 84 in her qualifying round.

The Canadian representation is a cross-country challenging field, including 14-year-old Gail Harvey of Toronto who qualified with an 87.

Closest score to Marlene's 73 Monday was 81, belonging to Janet MacWha of suburban St. Lambert and Kay Helleur, of Woodbridge, Ont.

Gold Cup Bids Set Fast Times

SEATTLE (AP) — The Gold Cup qualifying record was broken twice Monday as the first of the 20 speedboats expected to enter Sunday's main event here began qualifying runs on Lake Washington.

Miro Slovak, a Czech airman who fled to the West and became a speedboat pilot, pushed the Miss Wahoo to a record of 112.344 miles an hour over a three-mile course.

Two hours later Bill Stead drove Edgar Kaiser's Maverick at an average of 117.054 to top Slovak's mark.

The marks bettered the 108.160 set last year by Such Crust III on the Detroit River. Faster qualifying speeds have been set, however, on the old 3¾-mile Lake Washington course.

O.C. CRICKET

LONDON (Reuters) — Monday's close-of-play cricket scores:

Gloucestershire 352, Somerset 125 and 222. Gloucestershire won by an innings and five runs.

Glamorgan 141 and 99 for 4, West Indies 254.

Sussex 243 and 187 for 7, Middlesex 178.

Leicester 167 and 96 for 5, Northamptonshire 240.

Nottinghamshire 226 and 38 for 1, Surrey 293.

Kent 257 and 113 for 2, Hampshire 188.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then Ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Thomas Dygert, aged eight, of Detroit, Mich., for his question:

Who Was Nostradamus?

His real name was Michel de Notredame. Nostradamus was the pen name he used, the name with which he signed the books he wrote. He lived in the sixteenth century, some 400 years ago. And some of the things which Nostradamus wrote amaze people to this day. Your old Andy, however, is more interested in what Nostradamus did than in what he wrote.

Young Michel was born in St. Remi, France, on Dec. 13, 1503. As a boy, he was a splendid student. At school in Avignon he was interested in philosophy and humanity. From these noble studies he learned about his fellow men and the difference between good and bad conduct. Michel came to the conclusion that he could help his fellow men best by being a doctor of medicine. At the age of 26 he graduated from Montpellier as a qualified doctor of his day.

For the next 15 years, Dr. Michel de Notredame treated his patients in various small towns of France. Of course, medical treatment was very different in those days. Chances are the doctor tried to cure his patients by letting out blood from their veins. There were no anticeptics, no antibiotic drugs and surgery was rare and dangerous. However, Dr. de Notredame did better than most. Twice his home town was attacked by the dreaded plague. And so hard and so well did he work to save the sick that his fame spread over the whole land.

But the busy doctor was not satisfied. He wanted to do more to comfort the sick and worried people in his care. He had the notion that they would like to know what would happen in the future. Naturally, we would all like to know the future. But Dr. Michel had the idea that our future depends upon what the stars do. He was an astrologer, a person who claims to tell the future from the stars.

There are astrologers today. They amuse us by pretending to figure out little messages from the stars. But religious people and sensible people frown when we take this fun too seriously. Andy thinks that astrology is a playful parlor game. No one can know the future for certain. What will happen next year depends a great deal on what we do this year. But we have to wait to see the results.

In Dr. Notredame's day, a great many people took the game of astrology very, very seriously. Maybe the good doctor also took it seriously. In any case, he wrote a book of verses. Each little poem claimed to be a prediction of things to come. However, he did not sign his book by his right name. He used the name Nostradamus. Perhaps he was only spoofing and did not want his friends to take him too seriously. But they did.

People puzzled over the poems of Nostradamus trying to figure out what he meant would happen. For his words were as mysterious as the future itself. Does he mean this event will happen, or that one, they wondered. When an event did happen, they said "Ah, that is what he meant." They kidded themselves that Nostradamus could foretell the future.

His fame spread and he was invited to spend his remaining life at the court of France. He added more and more writings to his fortune telling. Even today there are people who try to puzzle out what he meant. But his writings are still as big a puzzle as the mysterious future for which we all must wait.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Kathy Wingenbach, age 9, of Leadville, Colo., for her question:

Is the koala bear a real bear?

The cuddly little koala bear is not really a bear at all. He is a member of the clan of marsupials, the pouched animals. The fat little koala is a relative of the leaping kangaroo. Both are natives of the big island continent of Australia. Most of the world's marsupials are Australians, but one member of the clan lives in North America. Our native marsupial is the shy little opossum—a very distant cousin of the koala bear.

The koala bear is a sleepy, lazy fellow who dreams away most of the time perched in a tree. He has a most charming face with large nose, bright eyes and a pair of floppy, furry ears. His thick, soft coat is ashy grey and he feeds on eucalyptus leaves. Junior is an only child. As a marsupial, he spends his cradle days in Mama's furry pouch. But he soon scrambles out and views the world as he clings to Mama's back.

ONLY GAL IN TOWN

Lover Boy Platypus Deserted by Spouse

NEW YORK (AP) — Penelope, the Bronx zoo's shy girl platypus, has walked out on her lover boy.

No Marilyn Monroe, Penelope. But as platypuses go, she's got what it takes—webbed feet, duck bill and a broad tail. She's about 13 inches long and a curvesome two pounds.

To Cecil, the zoo's mate platypus, she was a living doll. And why not? She's the only lady platypus in town. In fact, she and Cecil are the only two platypuses outside Australia.

Penelope disappeared July 26. Zoo keepers have dug up 185 feet of mudbank without finding her. They don't know whether she's somewhere on the zoo grounds or whether she's headed elsewhere.

"If she's outside, people should know that she's absolutely harmless," acting curator of mammals Leonard J. Goss said. "She hasn't any teeth and she dines on earthworms and crawfish."

Automobile Battle Between Hubby, Wife

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — An outraged wife chased her husband around town in her eight-year-old car, repeatedly ramming his brand-new one, police said Monday.

When the dust settled the husband had fled afoot, leaving a car that was ready for the junk heap, and his spitfire spouse was in jail. Police reconstructed events this way:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smallfield, both 42, argued while drinking at their home. The subject: other women. Smallfield departed before his wife had finished the dispute.

He hopped in his car, then she in hers.

She caught him at a corner and banged into him, shouting: "I'll teach you."

She slammed into him again at another intersection shouting, "Turn around and fight like a man."

After the third hit, the husband lit out for the side streets, and lost his pursuer.

With a sigh of relief, he headed for his office. That was a mistake. Mrs. Smallfield was lying in ambush. Whammo!! Another crumpled fender.

Smallfield abandoned ship. As he hiked away, he heard repeated crashes as his wife slammed her car again and again into his.

Booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, Mrs. Smallfield admitted all, police said.

"But," she told officers, "you would have done the same thing yourselves."

SCOUT JAMBOREE ROUND-UP

B.C. Boys See Musical Ride For First Time in England

SUTTON PARK, England (Reuters)—Several British Columbia scouts got their first look Monday at the RCMP musical ride—in a performance nearly 7,000 miles from home.

The British Columbians are part of the Canadian contingent at the world boy scout jubilee jamboree here, attended by 34,000 scouts from 84 lands.

The Canadian scouts flocked with thousands of others to watch an RCMP police detachment which is on tour in Britain go through its musical paces at the jamboree arena.

Afterward, Ted Winslow of Vancouver said:

"It's the same thing as happens all the world over. We've lived in Canada all our lives and yet we've never seen the Mounties give a musical display."

A number of B.C. scouts have helped erect large paintings of Cathedral Mountain and the Lions near Vancouver at the entrance of a Canadian sub-camp site.

ATTRACT VISITORS

"It was quite a job getting this thing up," said Courtney Brouson, of West Vancouver. "It's more than 10 feet high but it was well worth it because it has attracted so many visitors in the last few days."

Winslow told of a meal he and two other Scouts had in a London restaurant.

"David Pym, from Point Grey, in Vancouver, went up to the counter and ordered 11 hamburgers, five milk shakes, five orange drinks and five side orders of chips for three of us.

"The waitress thought it was a terrible joke, and David had to repeat the order three times before she decided she had better give him what he wanted.

"She was still more amazed when she saw David devour most of it himself."

The British Columbia Scouts have rigged up a miniature sawmill, worked by a donkey engine, outside their encampment. Daily they cut chunks off a large red cedar log brought over from Canada and distribute pieces of cedar wood to visitors.

SUTTON PARK, England (CP)—A midnight storm forced hundreds of Boy Scouts to evacuate their tents in this world jamboree camp, but camp life was quickly getting back to normal this morning.

Upwards of 600 scouts, including a small segment of the 1,500-strong Canadian contingent, sought temporary shelter under marquees, in the camp theatre and in private homes in the area.

Camp officials said there was "no panic" among the 35,000 scouts from 84 countries and that the camp "is rapidly getting back to normal."

An inch of rain fell on the 750-acre campsite in less than an hour, covering low-lying ground and washing out some telephone lines.

SLEEP ON SHELVES

At Camp Copenhagen, one of the hardest-hit sub-camps, a troop from London, Ont., had a huge fire going to dry out their clothes. Another, from Newfoundland, spent the night "sleeping in tiers" on the shelves of an equipment store.

A number of Canadians turned out in the rain to dig trenches around the camp hospital tents to keep rain from seeping into the sick quarters.

Taking the rain in stride were scouts from British Columbia.

"We started singing One More River to Cross, and pretty soon the whole camp was taking it up," said Fred Sexsmith of West Vancouver. "What's a little rain? It is just one of the normal risks of scouting."

Jamboree officials called a special press conference to ease the minds of parents around the world. Officials denied earlier reports that 1,000 scouts had had to be evacuated to nearby private homes, schools and public halls.

"The facts are that certain parts of the camp did suffer unpleasant conditions, but these were quickly handled by the boys hemselves," an official statement from jamboree headquarters added.

SUTTON PARK, England (CP) — Does the Boy Scout movement need a new Baden-Powell to inject new life into the world-wide youth organization?

A visitor to this ninth world jamboree camp, surveying the impressive sight of 35,000 boys from 84 countries living under canvas in close harmony, would answer "no." But many Scout leaders at the camp are inclined to reply with a qualified "yes."

For the main topic of discussion among Scout leaders at the camp is the problem of "leakage"—the term used by scoutmasters to describe the movement's loss of boys in the transition stage between Wolf Cub and Scout.

"It is much easier to get the boys than to keep them," says Robert Hertog, 38-year-old Toronto manufacturer and head of the 185-man Canadian contingent.

In Canada at least half the Wolf Cubs—age eight to 11—drop out of scouting before becoming full-fledged Scouts. And the number who carry on to become rover Scouts, aged 17 to 24, is about one per cent of the total Canadian membership.

The problem is by no means confined to Canada. A survey of British Scouts undertaken in 1954 showed that less than 50 per cent of the Wolf Cubs became Scouts and that the number of Scouts was declining.

"When Canada and some other countries have twice as many Cubs as Scouts there is something seriously wrong," says Archie Lewis of Belleville, Ont., deputy Canadian leader.

"Part of the trouble is that the youngsters are growing up faster than they used to and it is difficult to retain their interest."

NEW BRIDGE URGED

VANCOUVER — Mayor Fred Hume said Monday he will ask the provincial government to speed up plans for a new First Narrows crossing of Burrard Inlet.

Heavy traffic jams on the present Lion's Gate span prompted his approach.

"I am going to ask Premier Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi what they intend to do," Mr. Hume said. "It's up to them to decide whether they want a second bridge or a tunnel, but whatever it is, something must be done quickly."

TRIPLET GIRLS TRIPLED HOPES

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Dawn's husband always wanted a daughter and he got one. But seven minutes later he got a second and five minutes after that he had three.

Mrs. Dawn, 22, gave birth to triplets in the general Hospital Saturday. Her comment Monday night was:

"I'm really feeling quite well, and I'm delighted because my husband always wanted a daughter."

Pants Bandits Pocket Loot In Game Raid

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A gang of pants-bandits broke up the oldest established permanent floating crap game in Philadelphia and got away with an estimated $50,000.

Armed with shotguns, pistols and knives, the bandits invaded the basement of a private club —supposedly leased for a wedding reception—where a group of about 50 gamblers were shooting dice.

The dice players were forced to hand over their wallets and take off their trousers.

Police said later they had been trying to locate the game for more than a year. They said the game was held in different places each week and that players had to have at least $1,000 to bet before they were admitted.

Patrolmen heard a group of men shouting.

They found some 30 men in their undershorts, stumbling around in a darkened cellar looking for their trousers.

"What's going on here?" the police asked. The only answers they got were unprintable.

Magnificent Myra, Bruised But Unbowed, Toasted by Swimming Clan

By DINAH KERR

Ol' Man Juan de Fuca's biggest threat in many a murky night, Myra Thompson held court at the Monterey Restaurant Monday.

Traces of her courageous advance on the strait Sunday still hung in scrapes about her neck and feet, but Myra shone with happiness.

After all, hadn't she pulled the beard of the ol' man, and won Victoria's heart and the Jaycee's pocketbook—all in the space of 16 hours, and 31 minutes?

Nine of the field of 17 swimmers in the mass assault on the strait attended the Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored reception.

The compact 22-year-old girl had whipped every swimmer in the room. But now they were offering their congratulations on the unbelievable swim that had taken her within dreaming distance of Port Angeles.

And Myra had been dreaming. "When I saw the street lights of Port Angeles, I really thought I would make it," she said.

"For the last hour of the swim I was spending the $5,000 prize money."

Then, 1½ miles from Ediz Hook, the ebb tide carried her westward, and the big dream was over.

Now Myra's looking for a lady masseur.

She didn't get much sleep after the swim because "every time I dozed and moved, the pain in my muscles woke me up."

"I still can't get up and down stairs very well," she said.

Officially engaged to her trainer Vic Anderson while in Victoria, Myra hopes to be married on February 14, Valentine's Day.

Marriage won't interfere much with Myra's swim career. "As long as I'm winning, I'll keep it up," she said.

Myra received a $2,500 cheque and the strait challenge trophy from Jaycee president-elect Ira Hill. Her speech of thanks to the Jaycees, her crew, and "all the people who were pulling for me" was short and simple.

"I'm more nervous standing up here than in the starting line," she said.

Second prize was presented by Harry Watts of CKDA to Amy Hiland, who confided earlier that she'd taken a dip in the strait a few hours after finishing her swim.

"It was like taking the hair of the dog that bit you," she said, "but it was fun and it limbered up my muscles."

She laughed at heavy bruises about her neck caused by chafing bathing suit straps. "That's where Doc (her trainer Dr. Bill Slater) whipped me," she said.

The $750 third prize was given to Victorian Billie Benedict, who didn't have any scrapes at all. She swam most of the strait with the top of her bathing suit down.

Billie lost five pounds in her game try. "Funny the things that come to you when you're swimming," she said. "In the last few hours all I could think was 'Well, at least I've started my reducing program'."

Gene Perle of Long Beach, winner of $500 fourth prize, announced his attempt on the strait wouldn't be repeated. "That cold water," he shuddered, "I can't stand it."

Although out of the money, five of the other swimmers plan to give the strait their best again.

"I'm mad now," said Paul Herron.

UCLA freshman Toufie Blake "definitely" will try again, and next time he'll train harder.

Victoria's Ben Laughren claimed he wasn't "in good condition." "I'm very disgusted with myself," he said. Big Ben was last year's winner of the top prize money.

A Greek from California Jason Girganos, will try for a strait title in two weeks time "if I can get a sponsor," he said.

Next year the Junior Chamber of Commerce hopes to have a bigger prize list, and the challenge trophy will be awarded "for keeps."

Jaycee swim director Jim Nicol presented a box of cigars and a card signed by all the swimmers to Capt. Ellice Cavin, Island Champion skipper who has guided two swimmers across the strait.

He apologized for not making Myra the third. "The tide wouldn't work the way I wanted," he said.

New Snag Faces Centennial Plan

Lake Land Dedication As Park Held Essential

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria's four-in-one Centennial project was approved by Oak Bay council Monday night but there was still doubt today it will be okayed by the provincial government.

Oak Bay followed Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt in sanctioning the latest plan for disbursement of the $141,408 pot.

Recommended by the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee was expenditure of $70,908 to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, $52,000 to Beaver-Elk Lake development, $10,000 to Esquimalt's Gorge Park and $8,500 to Oak Bay to be spent on any permanent project it desires.

OAK BAY AWAITED

So far Oak Bay has not made public its plan.

No application to the province for its share of the project money can be made until Oak Bay acts on the matter.

The province will contribute 60 cents per capita to each municipality. The municipalities must match the grant.

Most worrisome question in the minds of municipal officials is whether the provincial government will approve the Beaver-Elk Lake expenditure.

At present, Victoria owns the land which would be developed. Some officials feel, unless this land is forever dedicated as a park, the province won't approve.

COULD SELL

Theoretically, the city could sell the land for other purposes, at some future date, unless it is dedicated.

Mayor Percy Scurrah said today he did not feel his council would approve dedicating the land unless there is some "reasonable compensation."

He felt either Saanich or the Capital Improvement District Commission should repay the city for its past investments in the lake area.

The mayor said prior to 1910 the city had spent $37,000 in the park and more had been spent since.

He felt the land to be developed under the grant would be the all-round margin of the lakes and the area in which the old filter beds are located.

MUCH MORE

If the city is to dedicate all the holdings near the lake, the compensation should be "a good deal more."

"The question of dedication was not discussed when council agreed to put its (Centennial) share into the project," he stated.

If the province balks at putting money into undedicated land, the next move will be up to Saanich or the CIDC. If neither will buy the area from the city, Greater Victoria Centennial Committee will be back where it started.

The provincial centennial committee meets Wednesday morning to consider applications from B.C. points which have decided on their project.

Greater Victoria's application has not yet been sent in.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today:

Jerry Denis Walter, 1697 Earle, $10 for failing to carry auto registration in a conspicuous place.

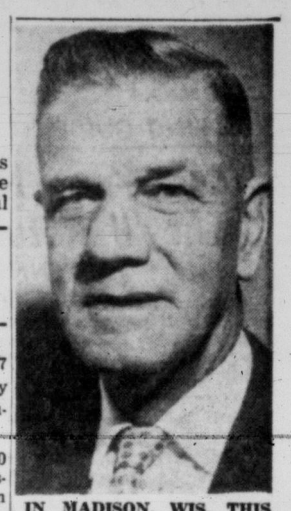
Harvey Alexander Shaw, 320 Cook, $10 for unloading a passenger while his cab was in an intersection.

John R. Bean, 615 Vancouver, $35 and 30-day licence suspension for careless driving.

In Esquimalt police court Monday:

Michael Ernest Rye, RCN, $25 for driving without a licence.

William Pittman, RCN, $25 for violation of driver's licence restriction.



IN MADISON, WIS. THIS WEEK for meetings with credit union leaders in the western hemisphere will be Robert F. Williams, 1012 Finlayson Avenue, treasurer of the Credit Union National Association. Williams is president of the Victel Credit Union for telephone employees, treasurer of the Greater Victoria Chapter of Credit Unions and a director of the B.C. Credit Union League.

MONTE ROBERTS

I had pretty well sworn off mentioning Strait swims in this space.

But I do feel I should make official record of my admiration for Miss Myra Thompson.

I think Miss Myra Thompson is my favorite swimmer.

I have never met the lady, but just look at the record:

She did not make the swim for the challenge, she did it for the dough.

She did not say she would lick Old Man Juan de Fuca next time.

In fact, to the best of my knowledge she made no mention of a next time, and shows every indication of settling down as a normal housewife.

All this, and she's pretty, too.

Gad!

But I think someone was rather neglected during the hulabaloo over the prize winners in the recent mass swim marathon.

This someone, of course, is Old Man Juan himself—the winner again and, in my book, still champion.

How many times has he lost?

Three times, that's how many.

And how many times has he won?

Take a couple of weeks off and count them. Old Man Juan has a won-lost record of which he can well be proud.

Caps off to Old Man Juan de Fuca—bathing caps, that is.

The swim day remark I liked best came just after the start, when the crowd along the Dallas waterfront was untangling itself.

From the centre of a busy mob scene came an exasperated voice::

"Why didn't the city charge admission? They'd have made a pot of money."

So much for swimming. Now for today's item of general knowledge to add to your memory file:

George Hees, the new Minister of Transport who was here Monday, is said to have an assured future in politics.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Unauthorized solictors who claim to be collecting money for the Red Cross have brought protests from residents in three areas of the city, Red Cross headquarters said today.

The "canvassers" are reportedly children, three of them ranging to 14 or 15 years of age.

The Red Cross stressed that a national campaign is held in March only, and canvassers are always acredited adults.

$112 Per Capita For Big Saanich Sewer Program

How do you sell a sewer?

That will be the problem faced by Saanich Council if it decides to go ahead with the master sanitary sewer plan drawn up by a Portland engineering firm.

H. Loren Thompson, consulting engineer, told councillors Monday night they would have to have a good selling program to convince ratepayers of the advantage of sewers.

He suggested a program of newspaper advertising and printed leaflets.

$400 PER FAMILY

The campaign will emphasize that the per capita cost of the $16,000,000 long-range plan would be $112, or about $400 for a family unit.

This is about the same cost as a septic tank, but councillors agreed home-owners will "howl" when council asks for the money.

Mr. Thompson advised council that storm sewers are not practical in Saanich at its present stage of development.

SANITARY SEWERS

"With the money you have it would be better to concentrate on sanitary sewers," he said.

Mr. Thompson appeared before council to explain the master sanitary plan drawn up by his firm, Stevens and Thompson of Portland, Ore.

He recommended that the municipality concentrate on improving its open drainage system, particularly the Colquitz River.

Blackberries Top Jumbo Fruit Crop

A bumper fruit crop on Vancouver Island with estimated increases this year over 1956 as high as nearly 6,000 per cent in at least one major fruit category, were predicted today by provincial agricultural officials.

The jump in all major fruit production this year is attributed to a come-back from the heavy 1955 frosts which drastically cut production last year.

Heaviest production increase expected is in blackberries. In 1956 only 100 crates were produced; this year 6,000 crates are anticipated for shipment, giving a 5,900 per cent boost.

APPLES DOWN

Only estimated drop this year is in apples, from 16,429 boxes last year to 16,000 this year. Close and yellow transparencies are already over their peak, but other varieties are "doing well."

Here's the fruit breakdown: Strawberry production in 1956 was 50,279 crates; this year it will be around 64,000, a 27 per cent increase.

Loganberries in 1956 totalled 15,374 crates, and this year will be about 55,000 crates, a 257 per cent increase.

Black currant production is up only slightly by comparison, a mere 25 crates from the 275 in 1956. This is still nearly a 10 per cent rise.

Plums also will be up, from 1,800 crates to 2,000.

On the vegetable front, the growth of second early potatoes are in full swing, although damp chilly weather the past two weeks has all but halted growth of corn and tomatoes.

Pastures are good, kept green by the cool, moist period.

In 1956 total value of Vancouver Island fruit production was $348,197.

Night Course Planned on New Municipal Act

District municipal officials will be able to get first-hand instruction in understanding the new B.C. Municipal Act.

A special course on the legislation is to be included in the fall and winter syllabus of Greater Victoria Evening Classes.

The instructor will be deputy minister of municipal affairs J. E. Brown.

The new act which sets the rules for every phase of municipal government will be main subject of study at the forthcoming Union of B.C. Municipalities convention at Nelson.

Victoria aldermen have prepared 50 pages of suggested amendments.

The Greater Victoria School District evening division will have 14 other new courses to offer an anticipated enrolment of 4,500 adult students when classes begin September 30.

Esquimalt Moves To Head Off 'Tenements'

Construction of "tenement" buildings will be ruled out in Esquimalt.

The new municipal zoning by-law, to be given first reading by Esquimalt Council next Monday, limits apartments to two dwellings per level.

The restriction is imposed because council is "quite concerned" about the tendency to build "tenement" style apartments with three or four dwellings on one level," Reeve A. C. Wurtele said.

"With a four-plex crowded on a lot that's too small for it, there isn't sufficient space for parking cars," the reeve said. "The crowding of garbage cans and washing lines alone takes away from the value of other homes in the district."

The by-law also restricts Gorge Park and Fernhill district to single family dwellings, and combines garage and commercial areas.

Spiritualist Minister Dies; Rites Thursday

Rev. Harold Moore, 51, of 1228 Oscar Street, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Monday after a long illness.

With his wife, Rev. Elsie Moore, he had been co-pastor of the Open Door Spiritualist Church, Cook Street, since coming to Victoria six years ago.

Prior to that he served Spiritualist congregations in Winnipeg. Mr. Moore was born in Barnsley, England, and came to Canada in 1914.

Surviving are the widow, two daughters, Mrs. W. B. Naylor, and Sylvia Gail, both of Victoria; one grandson; his mother, Mrs. Martha Ann Moore, Victoria, and one brother, Lawrence, in Virden, Man.

Rev. Mildred E. Fedde of Ellensburg, Wash., will officiate at a funeral service in McCall's Chapel Thursday at 3 p.m., to be followed by cremation.

ESQUIMALT TO ACCEPT GRANT FOR GORGE PARK FROM KINSMEN

Esquimalt council will give formal approval next Monday night to a Victoria Kinsmen offer of $20,000 for beautification of Gorge Park.

Parks and playgrounds chairman Coun. James Bryant recommended acceptance of the offer at a special council meeting Monday.

Development would be confined to 21 acres on the south shores of the Gorge and, for footing the bill, the club specifies that "Kinsmen" must appear in the title.

The municipality will follow a plan prepared earlier this year by municipal engineer John Graeme.

Call for Help Believed False Alarm

Air-sea rescue headquarters at Vancouver today gave up attempts to trace a mysterious wireless call for help, believed to have originated in the Nanoose Bay area.

A boat moored in Nanaimo Harbor reported the call Monday night. The garbled message mentioned West Wind and possibly Nanoose Bay.

An air-sea spokesman today said it was almost certainly a false alarm.

Four RCN Ships Return Friday

A four-ship naval training fleet will return to base at Esquimalt Friday after a two-month training cruise in the Pacific.

They are the cruiser Ontario, the Tribal class destroyers Cayuga and Athabaskan, and the new DDE Skeena. Aboard are cadets enrolled in the regular officer training plan.

Ontario will dock at the government jetty, approached through HMCS Naden; the other ships berth at Dockyard.

Arrival time is 10 a.m., and friends and relatives of the ships' companies will be permitted entry.

Another training cruise, also for junior officer candidates, started Monday when two frigates sailed on the third and final cruise of the year for University Naval Training Division cadets.

HMCS Sussexvale and HMCS Ste. Therese will visit Pearl Harbor and Californian ports, returning to Esquimalt Sept. 1.

Japanese to Survey Iron Ore in B.C.

Japan will make its own survey of British Columbia's iron ore resources before deciding whether to set up a steel plant here, D. Toru Hagiwara, newly-appointed Japanese ambassador to Canada, said on his arrival in Victoria today.

"As yet we do not know the extent of British Columbia's iron ore resources," said the dapper, quiet-spoken envoy who flew here from Vancouver to meet Premier Bennett, Chief Justice Gordon Sloan and Hon. Robert Mayhew, former Canadian ambassador to Japan.

Mr. Mayhew gave a luncheon in his honor at the Union Club.

Dr. Hagiwara said Japan is now importing about 500,000 tons of iron ore from B.C. every year.

NEED MORE

"That is a very small contribution to our steel industry," he said. "We must be sure there is very much more than that before we can consider setting up a steel plant here."

He added that the delegation of Japanese industrialists which visited B.C. last June will present "a formal report" on marketing problems in about two months' time.

"We have already three big steel mills in Japan which enable us to work much iron ore into finished steel. Therefore we are not very much interested in buying pig iron at the moment."

By the end of 1957, Dr. Hagiwara expects Japan will have purchased goods from Canada totalling about $120,000,000 and including some 900,000 tons of wheat.

$60 MILLION

Over this same period Japan will export more than $60,000,000 worth of goods to Canada consisting mainly of textiles, steel products, heavy machinery, oranges, canned fish, agricultural goods, toys and cameras.

"Our trade with Canada and the United States is improving," he said, "but we must also try to improve our trade with the Asian countries.

"With this in mind we have been thinking of offering assistance to Asian countries to which we do not pay reparations."

The ambassador will return to Vancouver Wednesday for a visit to Kitimat and Kemano.

Bridge, Tunnel Under Study For First Narrows

The provincial government is studying the need for another crossing — either bridge or tunnel — at Vancouver's First Narrows, Premier Bennett said today.

The premier made the comment after Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver said the government should do something "quickly."

Lion's Gate Bridge, operated by the provincial Toll Highways and Bridges Authority, cannot handle the heavy flow of traffic to the north and west shores, Mayor Hume said.

"We're watching the situation," Mr. Bennett said.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

After Marathon These Readers Gain Again

It is time to remember how rapidly the next few weeks will pass. Before we know it summer will have gone and fall will be upon us, with a huff and puff. I am sure you know what I am thinking! This is just camouflage before I throw the hook into you.

What about getting into those fall and winter clothes? Have you gained a few pounds during the hot months, or are you going to buy some new clothes? Had you promised yourself that you will never again go shopping when you are overweight? Even 10 extra pounds can make that a chore instead of a pleasure.

This week I have been printing some letters from Marathon winners. This one will give you cause for thought.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman, This is the third year I have joined your Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon. I do not know what I would have done without it! Every year I lose from 15 to 18 pounds (all I need to lose). I also drop inches and look like a different person but, come fall and winter, I have gained them back.

"I have a friend who always sends for your Marathon when you print letters from winners in the late summer. SHE gains in the summer, uses Marathon and loses and then gains it back during the next summer. She is writing to you again this summer. We are disgusted with ourselves and wish you would give us some advice as to how to stay the way we are at the end of Marathon. I guess we are just weak minded and shouldn't expect you to help. Thanks."

This writer and her friend are not weak minded but just human. They evidently have will power once they make up their minds. I think I can give them, and any of you who are in the same boat, some helpful suggestions.

In the first place don't go haywire the minute you stop dieting. Add just a few hundred calories to your daily intake and only a FEW of the things you like especially and had given up, not ALL of them.

With a dieting period as long as eight weeks you will have somewhat lost your craving for the rich calorie packed foods, anyway, so that it is easier to use them moderately and occasionally. Do not let it become a habit again.

Second, make an absolute rule that you never will become more than five pounds overweight, six at the most. If you go on a trip where part of the fun is eating foods which are different or if you have house guests or an especially gala week or so, enjoy them, but not past five or six pounds worth.

Usually those who gain easily lose easily. Anyway if you go after the first five pounds as soon as they arrive in the spots you least want them, you never will have a big reducing job on your hands.

If you missed my Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon and want to get in shape for fall and winter clothes, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the Marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

YOUNG COWGIRL TOP HAND AT SOUTH ALBERTA RANCH

HIGH RIVER, Alta. (CP) — The top hand at Happy Valley Ranch is attractive, hard working, capable—and feminine.

Working in a man's domain isn't new to Muriel MacLeod, 22-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. MacLeod, High River, 30 miles south of Calgary.

Last spring she was the only girl to graduate from the faculty of agriculture at the University of Alberta.

How did the agriculture students like having a female invade their classes?

"They were a little suspicious at first," Muriel says, "but when they realized I was really serious and meant to stick to it, they were wonderful. All of them—even the professors—treated me just like one of the boys."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Lost Keys No Problem—They'll Return by Mail

By PENNY SAVER

You won't need to worry if you lose your house or apartment keys if you take advantage of the service one Victoria firm offers. For 25 cents, you can buy a key ring with a plastic tag giving a number on one side and the firm's name and address on the other.

Your number is registered, and the finder just needs to pop the keys in the nearest mailbox. The firm will return them to you.

It won't help you much, of course, if you're a person who loses your keys in the accumulated junk in the bottom of your handbag or in your other coat pocket.

The leaves of your indoor ivy or philodendron plants may lose their gloss, especially later on when you have the furnace on.

You can restore their lustre by giving them a beauty treatment with a product I've found. You just dab it onto the leaves with a sponge—it won't do the plant any harm and it will definitely improve their appearance.

A bottle is 50 cents.

MADE HERE

I came across some whimsical little ornaments today, made of seashells and ceramic work on a driftwood base. They're the handiwork of a Victoria woman.

Every one is different, and most have pert little gnomes hiding under shells or peering out over tiny flowers. They're $1 each.

Similar but smaller are place-card holders, set with dainty violets and roses. These are 50 cents each, and would be nice for party guests to take home afterwards.

If members of your family complain that ordinary cups don't hold nearly enough coffee, why not get them giant size cups or mugs?

The cups would hold about four times as much as an ordinary one and come in several designs at $2.50 each. The huge mugs are $2.

China banks in the form of rather smug-looking pigs will hold plenty of pennies. One is marked "For Baby," the other hopefully says "For My Mink". Price of these is $1.95.

I'll be pleased to tell you where I found any of these items if you call me at 2-3131.

On Etiquette

Neighbors' golden wedding:

We have received an invitation to a Sunday afternoon reception to be given in honor of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of a neighbor couple. We are not close friends or long-time neighbors, but we like them very much and they have always been so nice to our children. Please advise what we might take along as a gift—something moderate in price. Are gifts expected for such an occasion? Also, may we take the children along?

Louise Davis

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS:

People receiving invitations to a golden wedding anniversary party usually wish to send the couple something, but there is no definite obligation. Those giving such a reception primarily want the family and friends around to share in the happy occasion. The main thing is their "pleasure of your company." Such a milestone has a priority over others, such as birthdays or any other anniversaries, so the thought of a gift is logical. If you are getting something have it delivered to the couple's home before the reception, rather than take it with you. I hope you know the couple well enough to know what they might like or need and that can be your guide. It is difficult for me to make suggestions, not knowing the couple, but if you puurchase something, be sure it is for both and not something personal for just one of them. Your gift doesn't have to be gold. It can suggest it. It doesn't have to be expensive either. Yellow flowers, such as roses, would be appropriate. Unless your children were included in the invitation, don't take them.

Hamburgers Jerez

Hamburgers take on a special taste when marinated for a minute before broiling in a mixture of half a cup of soy sauce and half a cup of dry Spanish sherry, either a dry fino or nutty amontillado, to which has been added half a teaspoon of ginger. The marinade is good on both beef or lamb hamburger, and also on steaks or shish kebab. A green salad, crusty bread and Spanish sherry and soda water completes the meal.

Peer Slapped For Repeating Royal 'Slur'

(From Times News Services)

LONDON—An angry Briton slapped Lord Altrincham on the face tonight after he repeated his complaints against Queen Elizabeth's royal retainers in a nationwide television broadcast.

The outspoken peer was accosted when he left the headquarters of the Independent Television Authority in downtown London.

Lord Altrincham, whose complaints against royal "priggishness" fired off a nation-wide tempest, had just told a TV audience he had not meant to be "personal or beastly" in his criticism of the Queen.

But he said "the boss" should fire some of her advisors.

A crowd was waiting when Lord Altrincham left the studios and one man stepped up to him, aimed a forceful slap at his face and cried out: "That's for insulting our Queen."

Lord Altrincham, a husky 33, haughtily replied, "You can't even hit hard enough." He did not return the blow.

Two husky bobbies, meanwhile, grabbed the attacker and marched him off to Bow Street police station.

The man who delivered the slap was short and grey-headed and barely could reach up to the tall, lithe peer.

The outspoken peer refused to retract his criticisms of the Queen's court. But he denied that his royal criticism were "personal."

British Set To Attack Rebels

MANAMA, Bahrein (Reuters)—British ground forces which have been moving into Oman now are ready to start counter-attacks against rebel tribesmen, an official communique announced today.

As the British troops made last-minute preparations at a newly prepared field base, representatives of the Arab League met in Cairo to formulate a uniform plan of aid for Oman in its "struggle against the British."

The league already has called on Communist China and 19 other Afro-Asian states, as well at its own members, to intervene in the fighting between the rebellious Iman of Oman and the pro-British sultan. The Imam's representative in Cairo Monday also asked the United States and Russia to stop the fighting.

Preparations for British ground moves followed numerous RAF strikes by rocket-firing jet fighters against large stone and mud forts controlled by the Iman.

BASE READY

An official British spokesman said Brig. J. A. R. Robertson, who is commanding ground forces in the Arabian peninsula state, has established a logistical field headquarters in Oman in readiness for operations against rebel tribesmen.

French Troops Ambushed By Algerians

ALGIERS (Reuters)—French troops backed by planes and artillery today battled with a large Algerian rebel band that killed 21 soldiers in an ambush in the rugged Bou Zegba mountains.

Reports reaching here said 21 other French soldiers were missing and 20 wounded in the ambush. Sixteen rebels were reported killed.

Fires started by shells and bombs could be seen in Algiers, 44 miles away from the battle area.

Five French generals commanded the operation. The rebels were reported armed with mortars, bazookas and machine-guns.

According to reports, a unit of French soldiers mistook the rebels—dressed in khaki uniforms and steel helmets—for their own and were shot down at point-blank range.

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — Forty-four nurses and 73 lay staff have accepted wage increases offered by the Jubilee Hospital here.

The nurses accepted a contract based on increases awarded to nurses at Penticton General Hospital after they threatened to strike last month. They will receive a $14-a-month increase retroactive to Jan. 1 on their basic salary of $230 plus a 5 per cent increment each year for five years.

Bennett Rejects Debate Challenge On Debt, BCHIS

Premier Bennett has declined an invitation by Erhart Regier, CCF MP for Burnaby-Coquitlam, to debate British Columbia's debt picture and hospital insurance.

Mr. Regier issued the challenge after the premier sent out a challenge of his own to the editors of a Vancouver newspaper. (The newspaper suggested Mr. Bennett write a letter instead).

To Mr. Regier's invitation the premier said Monday:

"We have lots of debates on these subjects in the proper place—the legislature—where the CCF is represented."

Mine Union Asks Retaliation Against U.S. Metal Tariff Boost

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A plea to the Canadian government to stockpile lead, zinc and copper and to consider retaliatory action against the United States if the American Congress approves higher tariffs against base metals, was made Tuesday to the Canadian government by a delegation from the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

A brief was submitted to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Hon. Gordon Churchill, minister of trade and commerce; Hon. Davie Fulton, justice minister, and Hon Leon Balcer, solicitor-general, by the executive of the union.

The union said unemployment was already mounting in the base metal industry as a result of falling world prices. Five base metal producers had already shut down and the largest, the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of British Columbia, was cutting down production.

To provide immediate relief the union officers asked the government to establish support prices and to stockpile lead, zinc and copper.

Nels Thibault, Sudbury, president; Harvey Murphy, Vancouver, vice-president; William Kennedy, Winnipeg, national vice-president, and W. Longridge, Toronto, secretary treasurer, headed the delegation.

In their brief the union officers contended that the new sliding scale of tariffs on lead and zinc proposed to the U.S. Congress by President Eisenhower's administration would raise duties three times as high as those now in effect and intensify the instability of an already unstable industry.

"Accordingly the union urges the government of Canada to consider taking "retaliatory action," the brief declared.

Messrs. Thibault and Murphy said they received a good hearing from the cabinet and that the cabinet ministers promised that the government would give early consideration to the problems outlined in the brief.

The submission said: "The U.S. is dependent not only on Canadian lead and zinc which they now propose as far as possible to exclude, but it is even more dependent on Canadian nickel, Canadian iron ore, Canadian asbestos and Canadian pulp and paper.

"Let the U.S. government be told that if the higher tariffs proposed against lead and zinc are put into effect, Canada for its part will tax and place restrictions on the export to the U.S. of nickel, iron ore, asbestos and pulp and paper," the brief said.

Gov't Appointments Expected Wednesday

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he will announce appointments of some new cabinet members and parliamentary assistants Wednesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker, talking to a reporter, declined to say how many in each category would be named.

He would say only that there would be "some" of each.

There now are five cabinet vacancies, and Mr. Diefenbaker has 16 ministers besides himself. He holds temporarily the external affairs portfolio.

The ministerial vacancies are agriculture, defence production, health and welfare, citizenship and immigration, and mines and technical surveys.

It is expected one of the new appointments will be to the agriculture portfolio, now held by Resources Minister Harkness.

The parliamentary assistants will be the first appointed by Mr. Diefenbaker since his government took office June 21.

The preceding Liberal government had up to about 15 assistants at various times.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he expected the appointments would be made public about noon Wednesday.

Feller who sed th' fust hunderd years are th' hardest must hev had centennial project plannin' in mind.

$12 Million Project For Power Commission

By PETER MURRAY

Plans for a major new hydro development on the northern end of Vancouver Island were disclosed today by the B.C. Power Commission.

Cost of the project on the Kokish River is estimated at about $12,000,000.

Commission officials emphasized the development is still in the early planning stages.

An application for a water licence on the river now is before the provincial water rights branch.

A. F. Paget, water rights controller, said he is awaiting detailed plans from the commission and representations from any interested groups before dealing with the application.

The Kokish River flows into the eastern shore of the Island at Beaver Cove, five miles southeast of Alert Bay.

Plans call for an 86-mile, 138,000-volt transmission line to Campbell River to join with the commission's main system.

A rock-fill dam would be built half a mile downstream from the confluence of the east branch of the Kokish, which would raise the level of Bonanza and Ida Lakes.

A 5½-mile conduit, including a 600-foot-long tunnel, would carry the water to the 35,000-horsepower generating station about a mile from Beaver Cove.

The area is one of the most remote on the Island. There are no roads and the only access is by sea or air.

New Road Needed to Build Line

Unless the proposed Kelsey Bay-Port Hardy road is completed by that time, the Commission would have to put through its own road for construction of the transmission line.

Highways department engineers now are surveying the long-talked-of northern road link. Logging firms with big holdings in the area would pay part of the cost.

Logging is the main activity in the region. Northern Pulpwood Ltd. has an operation in the Kokish Valley and a base camp at Beaver Cove, and Canadian Forest Products has a shipping centre at Beaver Cove.

The new hydro project would supply low-cost power to Port Hardy and Beaver Cove, and likely increase the demand there.

NO FISH PROBLEM

Total area drained by the Kokish is 110 square miles. It is not considered to be a fish river and no problem is expected in this regard.

The Kokish runs almost parallel to the larger Nimpkish River but has a greater head than the Nimpkish.

Exact estimate of the cost has not been determined, but Commission officials said it would be at least as much as the Ash River development, which is expected to cost $12,000,000.

The Ash River project, first stage in the three-part Somass Valley development in the Alberni district, is of a similar size.

Cost of transmission lines is a major item in both projects.

The Kokish River plan is the Power Commission's latest in its efforts to keep pace with the rapidly-expanding demand for power on Vancouver Island.

The fact that it is going so far north indicates there are few suitable hydro sites left on the Island.

Besides the Somass Valley and Upper Campbell developments now underway, the Commission is investigating the possibility of harnessing the Homathko River on the mainland and bringing the power across to the Island.

Open Sky Plan For All Bases Asked by Reds

LONDON (UP)—The Soviet Union asked today why the Western disarmament proposal for open skies inspection did not include American and NATO bases in North Africa, the Near East, Turkey and Pakistan.

The question was the first official Russian reaction to the plan advanced last week at the five-power disarmament conference here by U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

It was put before today's session of the conference by Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin as one of three formal questions in which he sought further information about the West's plan.

Dulles set forth the Western proposal last Friday. He offered to open all the United States and most of Western Europe to air and ground inspection in exchange for similar rights in the entire Soviet Union.

The first proposal was to open all the territory of North America north of the Mexican border to air and ground inspection in return for similar inspection of all of the Soviet Union.

Should this proposal be rejected, the Western powers offered similar inspection of an Arctic zone to include all of the Soviet Union, Canada, Alaska, Denmark and Norway north of the Arctic circle, and specified portions of the United States and the Soviet Union, as well as the Kamchatka Peninsula, the Aleutians and Kuriles Islands.

If the Soviet Union accepts either of these zones, a zone of inspection in Europe will be offered. This would extend southward from the Arctic circle.

Bomb Blast in Store Marks Cuban Unrest

HAVANA, Cuba (UP) — A bomb exploded in a Woolworth store in the heart of Havana today, killing one person and injuring eight others. Some of the injured were reported in serious condition.

The rest of the city generally was quiet. There was no sign of a predicted general strike, since attempts to start a walkout apparently had failed.

In Santiago, a stronghold of rebel sympathizers, Americans who work there were sending their wives and children to safer places. It was reported that mounting tension in the capital city of Oriente Province might explode into large-scale violence at any time.

It was in Santiago that a demonstration against President Fulgencio Batista last Wednesday caused some friction in Cuban-American affairs.

The demonstration was staged during a visit to that city by U.S. Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith. Santiago police acted forcefully to crush the opposition, and Smith criticized the police brutality.

Cuban critics promptly condemned Smith for his comments, but U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gave the Ambassador a vote of confidence in Washington today.

Dulles told his news conference that Smith's remarks may have been technically unwarranted. But Dulles said he felt the Ambassador's comments were a very human reaction, and he hoped the Cuban government would understand them in their proper frame of reference.

Ten to 15 wives of U.S. employees of the Texas company's 14-million-dollar refinery in Santiago have left this troubled provincial capital in the past few days. Others are expected to leave soon.

Bulganin Denies Illness Rumors

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Bulganin scotched any rumors about his health Monday night by his robust apperance at a World Youth Festival reception here.

Bulganin appeared in fine fettle as he raised several glasses of wine during toasts 3,000 delegates. Speculation about his health had followed his withdrawal from the top-level Soviet delegation going to East Germany Wednesday.

Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev was mobbed at the dinner by autograph hunters who pushed any piece of paper handy—including cheque books and bus tickets—for him to sign. The enthusiastic crowds shouted "duzba" friendship as they grabbed him around the neck.

Khrushchev was accompanied by Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, Defence Minister Georgi Zhukov and other members of the praesidium.

Many western ambassadors, including those of the United States, Britain, France and Italy, declined to come to the reception. They said their governments were not associated with the festival aims.

Speculation has been rife in the West that Bulganin may be ousted as premier.

Many experts believe Bulganin may have lost out in the big shakeup which brought the dismissals of Georgi Malenkov, Vyacheslav Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich from the party central committee last month. It was thought that he first sided with the Molotov faction but switched when he saw Khrushchev had the winning votes.

In Cario Monday, the representative of the Iman of Oman, fighting a pro-British sultan in a tribal war, went to the Soviet Embassy to deliver a message asking Russian aid to stop the fighting in the Arabian peninsula state. "It is better to change the name of the recipient from Marshal Bulganin to President Klimenti Voroshilov," the embassy said.

Observers think that if Bulganin does fall it will not affect Soviet policy-making, since he was largely a figure-head premier.

WHITE HOUSE TO BE HOME FOR QUEEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will stay at the White House during their Washington visit in October.

There had been some doubt whether the Royal Couple would be guests in the White House or in nearby Blair House, where distinguished foreign guests usually are housed.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty announced the decision today with the explanation that President and Mrs. Eisenhower are personal friends of the Queen and her husband and would like to have them in the White House where there will be an opportunity for informal chats.

Appointment of 685 teachers, 34 more than taught here last year, has been almost completed by Greater Victoria School Board it was announced today. There were 135 new appointments. The district student body is expected to number over 19,000 when school starts September 3. This is 1,000 more than were registered last year. Late registrations will be accepted at district schools later this month. Details will be announced.

Liquor Store Vote Opposed By Norris

It is up to the Liquor Control Board to decide whether or not Oak Bay can have a liquor store outlet, Reeve Fred Norris told his council Monday.

He was commenting on a suggestion by Councillor Fred Hawes that a referendum on the subject be taken among residents. Whether the vote was "yes" or "no", would have little bearing on the government board's decision, said the reeve.

The matter came up at council before a letter from LCB chairman Col. Donald McGugan was received and filed.

The letter was in answer to a council query asking feasibility of establishing the store, and enclosed signatures of approval from some 180 citizens.

The LCB reply was inconclusive, council agreed.

Reeve Norris said "To let him get away with an answer like that is balderdash."

Council also approved contract award for construction of a new municipal hall on the site of the old Oak Bay High School to Pollard Construction Co. for a low bid of $184,481 of the five tenders received.

HEALTH BILLS FOR REFUGEES PILING UP

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Health bills are piling up here as a result of Canada's generous open-door immigration policy for Hungarian refugees when the strict health requirements of the Immigration Act were waived.

Health authorities here today said about 10 per cent of the 33,000 refugee immigrants are now hospitalized or under active treatment for two diseases, tuberculosis and syphillis.

The two diseases bar immigrants from coming to Canada under normal conditions, but the barriers were lifted when Canada swung wide its doors to admit Hungarians after Communist Russia moved into that country.

The daily hospitalization and medical costs are now well over $25,000. The bills go to the National Health and Welfare Department.

Health authorities reported the rate of active TB cases among the immigrants is 5 per cent, or over. The rate for active syphillis cases is approximately the same.

U.S. Cyprus Aid Asked by Britain

LONDON (UP) — Britain sought United States support for a solution of the explosive Cyprus issue during last week's visit of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles but Dulles was cool to the idea, official sources disclosed today.

The Foreign Office also said it had been "in diplomatic contact" with both Greece and Turkey over the possibility of direct negotiations on the future of the troubled Mediterranean island.

The new moves followed long deliberations by the British cabinet in which Cyprus Governor Sir John Harding took part.

The Foreign Office denied Athens reports that London has actually sent out invitations to Greece and Turkey to a full-dress conference. The present efforts are described as preliminary soundings.

Present feelers are for a round table conference among Britain, Greece and Turkey—the chief parties in the dispute over the island.

But there is hesitation stemming from the dismal experience of the tripartite Cyprus conference convened in London in the summer of 1955 by then Premier Sir Anthony Eden which ended in total failure and in even sharper antagonism between Greece and Turkey.

Britain as well as the other powers want to avoid a repetition of this experience. The plan now is to hold, if possible, a new conference in which the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be represented as an observer.

NATO has agreed to mediate in the dispute, and NATO Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium is known to be ready to accept such a mandate.

Britain would also want the United States to identify itself with such a move by sending an observer to the projected meeting.

Both Mrs. Todd and the four-pound, 14-ounce baby are doing well, the hospital said.

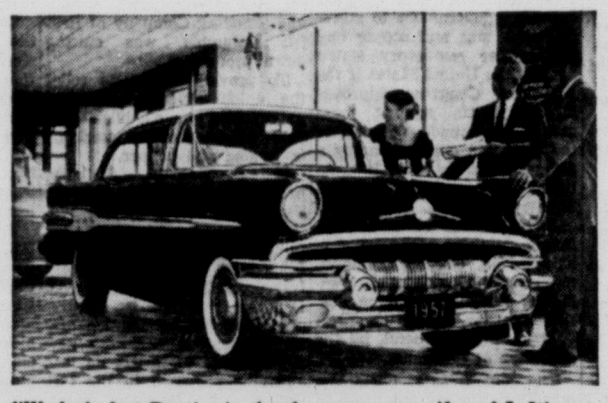
I bought Pontiac again!

"Seems like, suddenly you decide to buy a new car. I did—and started checking ads and makes. But I was pretty sure my choice would be Pontiac, as it has been for years."



"We looked at Pontiac in the showroom, my wife and I. It's got 'em all beat by miles for looks and style. And Marg—that's my wife—was wild about the new interiors."

"The dealer and I went for a Demonstration Drive. That was my first time behind a '57 Pontiac's wheel—and what an experience. Slickest, smoothest car on any road—and it convinced me!"

"I kind of hated to part with my '55 Pontiac . . . running as well as when I bought it. But the trade-in price certainly eased the pain of parting. Still looks good, doesn't it?"

"And here are the neighbours admiring our new Pontiac. And after the envious glances and pointed remarks I wouldn't be surprised to see them blossom out in a new Pontiac, too!

Gene Receives Applause But Roberto Grabs Cash

CHICAGO (AP) — Virtually all of the top name golf pros were girding themselves today for the start of the game's richest event — the $101,200 "world" championship.

While they waited for practice rounds on the Tam O'Shanter course where the battle for a $50,000 first prize and $50,000 exhibition tour contract begins a 72-hole grind Thursday, talk centred on Gene Littler.

Littler's course record-matching 63 Monday all but overshadowed the fact that Roberto Vicenzo won the all-American title.

It was Littler's last round effort that drew the applause, and not De Vicenzo's final 70 which gave the hefty Argentine, now a club pro in Mexico City, a 72-hole tally of 273-15 under par—and the $3,500 first prize.

Littler's final round equalling Lloyd Mangrum's mark set in 1948, ballooned him to second place with 277, worth $2,300.

Sam Snead was third with 278. Then followed Paul Harney with 279 and Art Wall Jr., Dow Finsterwald, Fred Hawkins and Bob Rosburg at 281.

LEONARD IN MONEY

Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a 69 and finished in an eight-place tie with 71-70-74-69—284, earning $775.

Littler would have won a $10,000 prize for breaking the tourney mark if he eagled the last hole. He was 120 yards away. The shot was near perfect. It hit in front of the pin and skidded to a stop 2½ feet beyond. He was down with a birdie three.

"But where I really lost the record was on the sixth hole," said Littler. "On the 445-yard sixth hole, a wedge shot hit the pin and stopped eight inches away. I got a par four, but if the pin had been out, I'd have gone in.

De Vicenzo uses a brassie without teeing up the ball on nearly all holes where others use a driver.

"I keep them straight with brassie. When I want to play a hook, I tee them up," he smiled.

PACE-SETTING FARMERS HOST BURNABY TONIGHT

With the Northern Division title of the Northwest International Baseball League all sewn up, Farmer Construction will take on Bill Kinder's Burnaby Athletics in an attempt to add a little padding tonight at Royal Athletic Park.

Manager Ed Ash is not certain who he will have working on the mound for Farmers, but it will be either veteran left-hander Art. Worth or rookie right-hander Dave Emery.

Playoff time is drawing near and from the look of the Southern Division it will be Bellingham Bells who will be here to decide the playoff champion, possibly within the next two weeks.

Kerr Tops Field At Uplands Club

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Gorge Vale and Royal Colwood are in the midst of club championship play. Dr. George Bigelow rules at Victoria club and the quest for club crowns will end Oct. 6 when finalists at Uplands meet in a 36-hole final.

City titleholder Laurie Kerr took the first step in the direction of the Colwood championship Sunday when he posted a two-under-par 68 to take medalist honors. Laurie's steady 34-34 rounds gave him a five-stroke cushion over runner-up Dick Hanley.

Harold Lineham, Bill McColl and George Andrews tied for third, each with 74. With 81 good enough to qualify for the championship, others in the top 16 include Ken Brousseau, Tom Harris, Jim Robertson, Vince Clarkson, Mike Bartkow, Bob Woods, Don Ross, George Sparling, Vic Painter, Gil Anderson and Cy Spaven.

Scoring was steady but not spectacular. Painter, perennial threat for top honors in Island tournaments, related the day's sorriest story. He barely qualified with an 80.

The par-four 10th provided Vic with all the grief of an otherwise solid round. He knocked four balls out of bounds and wound up with an 11.

McColl also met with difficulty. Playing the 17th, and only one over par at the time, Bill's second shot landed in a fir tree and stayed there. He had to consider it a lost ball and took a penalty.

A field of 72 started out Sunday. Match play gets under way next weekend.

Chief threats for the Gorge crown advanced without mishap. Medalist John Merriman defeated Al MacLeod 3 and 2 while defending champion Norm Boden beat Hugh Fletcher 2 and 1.

Fletchers Drub Tars; Enter Final

Fletchers stepped from the semifinals into the finals in the Senior "B" Mens' Softball League playoffs at Heywood Avenue Park Monday when they handed Navy a 10-2 drubbing.

It was the second straight win for the Clothiers, who hammered the Tars, 5-2, in the semi-opener Sunday night.

Marching toward the B.C. playoffs, Fletchers now have to wait and see who wins between Brodies and Firefighters in the other semifinal.

Sunday was Firefighters' day as they took a one-game lead in the series with a 5-2 win. The teams meet again Thursday at Heywood Park in what could be their final tilt.

Fine pitching and plate power scuttled Navy as Ken Sturrock and Gerry Stillson combined to hurl a five-hitter, and Fletcher's Chuck Gummer had a big day at the plate with a two-run homer and a triple.

Marlene Again Player to Beat

MONTREAL (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit, Canada's No. 1 woman golfer, starts out today in defence of her Canadian ladies' open amateur title against 31 challengers.

A big, hopeful field of more than 100 was shaken down Monday in a tough qualifying round to 27 Canadian girls and four Americans — plus the poker-faced little champion from Fonthill, Ont.—for the perilous, swift elimination match play competition.

The first round draw indicated no particular worries for Marlene or for the small but highly ranked American delegation. For the Canadian girls, otherwise, there were cut-throat matches galore.

AIMS FOR FIFTH

Marlene is gunning for her fifth open title. Last Saturday she won the Canadian ladies' close championship for the seventh straight time. In the six years she has won the open four times.

From the way she waltzed through her qualifying round Monday with a four-under-par 73, she will take a lot of beating even at match play from anybody.

Three challengers from south of the border were next in line.

Mrs. Maurice Glick, of Baltimore, Md., eight times state champion of Maryland, shot a par 77. Marjorie Burns, a tall, capable golfer from Greensboro, N.C., shot 78. Mrs. C. F. Spalding, of Greenwich, Conn., shot 79, ad Mrs. Norma Woolworth, of New Canaan, Conn., qualified easily with 84.

Another American, Kathy Newton, of Cleveland, lost out in a playoff for the last qualifying spot. The playoff was for scores of 90.

Mona Morup of Calgary grabbed the last place at the third extra hole.

Mrs. Streit today meets Mrs. R. D. Bagley of Winnipeg, who shot 84 in her qualifying round.

The Canadian representation is a cross-country challenging field, including 14-year-old Gail Harvey of Toronto who qualified with an 87.

Closest score to Marlene's 73 Monday was 81, belonging to Janet MacWha of suburban St. Lambert and Kay Helleur, of Woodbridge, Ont.

Gold Cup Bids Set Fast Times

SEATTLE (AP) — The Gold Cup qualifying record was broken twice Monday as the first of the 20 speedboats expected to enter Sunday's main event here began qualifying runs on Lake Washington.

Miro Slovak, a Czech airman who fled to the West and became a speedboat pilot, pushed the Miss Wahoo to a record of 112.344 miles an hour over a three-mile course.

Two hours later Bill Stead drove Edgar Kaiser's Maverick at an average of 117.054 to top Slovak's mark.

The marks bettered the 108.160 set last year by Such Crust III on the Detroit River. Faster qualifying speeds have been set, however, on the old 3¾-mile Lake Washington course.

Anti A-Bomb Demonstrators Held in U.S.

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) — Eleven demonstrators against atomic tests were arrested today as they attempted to enter the Nevada test site.

There was no violence as Atomic Energy Commission guards took the demonstrators into custody at the main gate of Camp Mercury, headquarters for the U.S. nuclear testing program.

The demonstrators are members of the committee for non-violent action against nuclear weapons. The group's membership comes from pacific organizations throughout the country.

The first group of three which started through the gate was led by Lawrence Scott, 48, ordained Baptist minister, formerly of Chicago and Kansas City.

AEC guards arrested them when they advanced two feet inside the gate.

The arrests were made under the state's trespass law.

They staged their attempted entrance on the 12th anniversary of dropping of an atomic bomb by the U.S. on the Japanese city of Hiroshima during the Second World War.

A test explosion of an atomic device had been scheduled here this morning but was postponed 24 hours because of high winds.

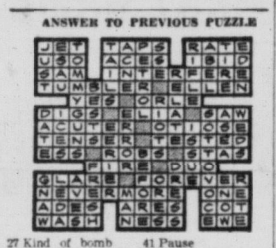
ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then Ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Thomas Dygert, aged eight, of Detroit, Mich., for his question:

Who Was Nostradamus?

His real name was Michel de Notredame. Nostradamus was the pen name he used, the name with which he signed the books he wrote. He lived in the sixteenth century, some 400 years ago. And some of the things which Nostradamus wrote amaze people to this day. Your old Andy, however, is more interested in what Nostradamus did than in what he wrote.

Young Michel was born in St. Remi, France, on Dec. 13, 1503. As a boy, he was a splendid student. At school in Avignon he was interested in philosophy and humanity. From these noble studies he learned about his fellow men and the difference between good and bad conduct. Michel came to the conclusion that he could help his fellow men best by being a doctor of medicine. At the age of 26 he graduated from Montpellier as a qualified doctor of his day.

For the next 15 years, Dr. Michel de Notredame treated his patients in various small towns of France. Of course, medical treatment was very different in those days. Chances are the doctor tried to cure his patients by letting out blood from their veins. There were no anticeptics, no antibiotic drugs and surgery was rare and dangerous. However, Dr. de Notredame did better than most. Twice his home town was attacked by the dreaded plague. And so hard and so well did he work to save the sick that his fame spread over the whole land.

But the busy doctor was not satisfied. He wanted to do more to comfort the sick and worried people in his care. He had the notion that they would like to know what would happen in the future. Naturally, we would all like to know the future. But Dr. Michel had the idea that our future depends upon what the stars do. He was an astrologer, a person who claims to tell the future from the stars.

There are astrologers today. They amuse us by pretending to figure out little messages from the stars. But religious people and sensible people frown when we take this fun too seriously. Andy thinks that astrology is a playful parlor game. No one can know the future for certain. What will happen next year depends a great deal on what we do this year. But we have to wait to see the results.

In Dr. Notredame's day, a great many people took the game of astrology very, very seriously. Maybe the good doctor also took it seriously. In any case, he wrote a book of verses. Each little poem claimed to be a prediction of things to come. However, he did not sign his book by his right name. He used the name Nostradamus. Perhaps he was only spoofing and did not want his friends to take him too seriously. But they did.

People puzzled over the poems of Nostradamus trying to figure out what he meant would happen. For his words were as mysterious as the future itself. Does he mean this event will happen, or that one, they wondered. When an event did happen, they said "Ah, that is what he meant." They kidded themselves that Nostradamus could foretell the future.

His fame spread and he was invited to spend his remaining life at the court of France. He added more and more writings to his fortune telling. Even today there are people who try to puzzle out what he meant. But his writings are still as big a puzzle as the mysterious future—for which we all must wait.

SCOUT JAMBOREE ROUND-UP

B.C. Boys See Musical Ride For First Time in England

SUTTON PARK, England (Reuters)—Several British Columbia scouts got their first look Monday at the RCMP musical ride—in a performance nearly 7,000 miles from home.

The British Columbians are part of the Canadian contingent at the world boy scout jubilee jamboree here, attended by 34,000 scouts from 84 lands.

The Canadian scouts flocked with thousands of others to watch an RCMP police detachment which is on tour in Britain go through its musical paces at the jamboree arena.

Afterward, Ted Winslow of Vancouver said:

"It's the same thing as happens all the world over. We've lived in Canada all our lives and yet we've never seen the Mounties give a musical display."

A number of B.C. scouts have helped erect large paintings of Cathedral Mountain and the Lions near Vancouver at the entrance of a Canadian sub-camp site.

ATTRACT VISITORS

"It was quite a job getting this thing up," said Courtney Brouson, of West Vancouver. "It's more than 10 feet high but it was well worth it because it has attracted so many visitors in the last few days."

Winslow told of a meal he and two other Scouts had in a London restaurant.

"David Pym, from Point Grey, in Vancouver, went up to the counter and ordered 11 hamburgers, five milk shakes, five orange drinks and five side orders of chips for three of us.

"The waitress thought it was a terrible joke, and David had to repeat the order three times before she decided she had better give him what he wanted.

"She was still more amazed when she saw David devour most of it himself."

The British Columbia Scouts have rigged up a miniature sawmill, worked by a donkey engine, outside their encampment. Daily they cut chunks off a large red cedar log brought over from Canada and distribute pieces of cedar wood to visitors.

SUTTON PARK, England (CP)—A midnight storm forced hundreds of Boy Scouts to evacuate their tents in this world jamboree camp, but camp life was quickly getting back to normal this morning.

Upwards of 600 scouts, including a small segment of the 1,500-strong Canadian contingent, sought temporary shelter under marquees, in the camp theatre and in private homes in the area.

Camp officials said there was "no panic" among the 35,000 scouts from 84 countries and that the camp "is rapidly getting back to normal."

An inch of rain fell on the 750-acre campsite in less than an hour, covering low-lying ground and washing out some telephone lines.

SLEEP ON SHELVES

At Camp Copenhagen, one of the hardest-hit sub-camps, a troop from London, Ont., had a huge fire going to dry out their clothes. Another, from Newfoundland, spent the night "sleeping in tiers" on the shelves of an equipment store.

A number of Canadians turned out in the rain to dig trenches around the camp hospital tents to keep rain from seeping into the sick quarters.

Taking the rain in stride were scouts from British Columbia.

"We started singing One More River to Cross, and pretty soon the whole camp was taking it up," said Fred Sexsmith of West Vancouver. "What's a little rain? It is just one of the normal risks of scouting."

Jamboree officials called a special press conference to ease the minds of parents around the world. Officials denied earlier reports that 1,000 scouts had had to be evacuated to nearby private homes, schools and public halls.

"The facts are that certain parts of the camp did suffer unpleasant conditions, but these were quickly handled by the boys themselves," an official statement from jamboree headquarters added.

SUTTON PARK, England (CP) — Does the Boy Scout movement need a new Baden-Powell to inject new life into the world-wide youth organization?

A visitor to this ninth world jamboree camp, surveying the impressive sight of 35,000 boys from 84 countries living under canvas in close harmony, would answer "no." But many Scout leaders at the camp are inclined to reply with a qualified "yes."

For the main topic of discussion among Scout leaders at the camp is the problem of "leakage"—the term used by scoutmasters to describe the movement's loss of boys in the transition stage between Wolf Cub and Scout.

"It is much easier to get the boys than to keep them," says Robert Hertog, 38-year-old Toronto manufacturer and head of the 185-man Canadian contingent.

In Canada at least half the Wolf Cubs—age eight to 11—drop out of scouting before becoming full-fledged Scouts. And the number who carry on to become rover Scouts, aged 17 to 24, is about one per cent of the total Canadian membership.

The problem is by no means confined to Canada. A survey of British Scouts undertaken in 1954 showed that less than 50 per cent of the Wolf Cubs became Scouts and that the number of Scouts was declining.

"When Canada and some other countries have twice as many Cubs as Scouts there is something seriously wrong," says Archie Lewis of Belleville, Ont., deputy Canadian leader.

"Part of the trouble is that the youngsters are growing up faster than they used to and it is difficult to retain their interest."

NEW BRIDGE URGED

VANCOUVER — Mayor Fred Hume said Monday he will ask the provincial government to speed up plans for a new First Narrows crossing of Burrard Inlet.

Heavy traffic jams on the present Lion's Gate span prompted his approach.

"I am going to ask Premier Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi what they intend to do," Mr. Hume said. "It's up to them to decide whether they want a second bridge or a tunnel, but whatever it is, something must be done quickly."

personal or beastly or anything like that," Altrincham said, "I have only the warmest personal feelings for the Queen as I should."

Altrincham said his criticisms instead were made "in hopes of bringing about a change in the atmosphere which surrounds the Queen and in the country's attitude toward the monarchy."

In a television appearance immediately after Altrincham's, but over the nationalized British Broadcasting Company, the leading councillor of the city of Altrincham called on the peer to "apologize publicly" to the Queen.

"The Queen is the head of our family," Councillor Edward Chorlton said. "She should not be criticized in public by peer or commoner and a peer like Lord Altrincham should certainly know better."
